NON-POLITICAL PLATFORM

City Administration Must Be Strictly Business Under a New Charter for Home Rule and Subway Growth.

The Committee of One Hundred was selected and a declaration of principles to control its action in the coming municipal campaign adopted at a mass meeting held in Cooper Union last night. The birth of the new reform movement, launched for the purpose of obtaining for this city a business administration, was attended by considerable travail. In the stormy annals of Cooper Union meetings, the gathering last night is likely to go down as one of the stormiest.

The trouble was caused by half a dozen individuals allied with the so-called Minute Men who recently held a mass meeting at Union Square to denounce the passage by the Legislature and approval by Gov. Hughes of the Travis-Robinson bill making the construction of subways by private capital permissible. The Minute Men want only city-constructed and city-owned subways, and don't care a snap for the debt limit or financial solvency. At the meeting last night they started to make trouble as soon as the meeting was called to order, and kept up the disturbance off and on for the next three hours, until the ringleaders finally were yanked out of the hall just before the meeting adjourned.

The attendance at the initial meeting of the new reform movement was slim. At no time were there more than 500 persons in the hall, which seats nearly 2,000 people.

After Mr. Schwab had been elected permanent Chairman of the meeting and had explained its purpose, Edward P. Lyons, a Brooklyn lawyer, was called upon to present a resolution to ratify the nominations made for the Committee of One Hundred by the Nominating Committee of Nineteen.

On this list the various boroughs received the following representation: Manhattan and the Bronx, 60; Brooklyn, 27; Queens, 10, and Richmond, 3. Of the 100 members, 18 are lawyers, 15 labor men, 12 bankers, 15 merchants, 6 manufacturers, 2 builders, 3 real estate men, 3 publicists, and 2 capitalists. This is the list:

CURTISS FLIES HERE.

In the Air a Minute at Morris Park Race Course.

Glenn H. Curtiss got his aeroplane in the air yesterday on the old Morris Park race track grounds and gave a short exhibition to about a score of Aeronautic Society members and other interested persons who had patiently lingered on the grounds until 8 o'clock in the evening, waiting for him to put the machine in working shape.

The machine started from the lower end of the track in front of the clubhouse, and, after running along the ground about 250 feet, rose in the air with the utmost ease to a height of about twenty feet, flying in a line up the old straightaway to its extreme end. The total flight of the machine was about 2,000 feet, and it was in the air somewhat less than a minute.

Mr. Curtiss, in his descent, came down quickly, but his brake failed to work properly, and the machine bumped into the fence at the end of the track. No injury was done to it, however. It took a long time arranging the engine and getting it to work properly after it was attached to the aeroplane in the afternoon.

The aviator at all times had the machine under perfect control. It followed a straight, clean-cut line, and as the planes rose gracefully above the ground and gathered momentum it gave the impression that it was actually endowed with life and was eager to cut through the air at a fast pace.

"I think I was going at least forty-five miles an hour," said Mr. Curtiss after the test. "It was very satisfactory. It was too late to try a more extended flight or make any curves. I am simply going to study the general conditions of flight on the grounds and familiarize myself with the wind conditions. To-day I may do a little more, if conditions are favorable."

Mr. Curtiss will probably make trial flights every favorable day this week.

FOOLS KEEPER, FLEES ASYLUM

H. T. Beatty, Now in Hoboken, Declines to Return.

Herbert Thornton Beatty, for nearly two years an inmate of the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane on Ward's Island, obtained permission on Saturday to visit Manhattan to transact some business. Keeper Simon J. F. O'Mahoney was sent along as escort and guard.

The two men visited several downtown business houses, and at last Beatty got the keeper in the neighborhood of the Hoboken ferry. Presently, before O'Mahoney could stop him, Beatty boarded a ferryboat. The keeper just managed to get aboard also. In Hoboken Beatty stepped off the boat, the keeper following and pleading with him to return. Beatty called a policeman, however, and, pointing to O'Mahoney, said:

"Arrest this man. He is annoying me."

The startled O'Mahoney tried to explain. Beatty insisted, however, that in New Jersey he was a perfectly free agent, and the policeman agreed with him.

"Get away from here now, or I'll run yez in," he told O'Mahoney.

The keeper ceased importuning Beatty to return, but stuck to him, nevertheless, and when the ex-inmate of the asylum took a room in Meyers's Hotel, at Third and Hudson Streets, O'Mahoney took one, too.

Beatty was still there last night, but O'Mahoney, acting on orders from the asylum, had returned to his post there.

Meantime Beatty had been thoroughly enjoying himself. He called up Dr. William Mabon, head of the insane hospital, and told him he didn't intend to come back to the institution, but that he would remain in New Jersey or Pennsylvania and ask the courts to appoint a commission in lunacy to examine into his sanity.

In accordance with this plan Beatty actually did retain Corporation Counsel John J. Fallon of Hoboken yesterday. He told the lawyer that he was wealthy in his own right, and that it was because of his mother and his wife, the latter a niece of ex-Gov. Curtin of Pennsylvania, that he had been committed to an asylum. He said that attempts had been made to deprive him of his fortune, and that his commitment to an asylum was part of the plot.

Beatty said he hoped to obtain the services of Britton D. Evans, the alienist, to assist him in proving his sanity, and told Fallon that he would also retain Samuel Houston, a lawyer of Philadelphia.

Dr. Mabon said last night that Beatty had been known in the hospital as a sufferer with chronic-depressive insanity. He said that the man might go on for almost any length of time appearing as sane as his neighbor, but that any excitement might be sufficient to induce a recurrence of the attacks. He admitted, however, that unless Beatty chose to return to the hospital voluntarily he could not make him do so while he remained in New Jersey.

JOHN J. SCANNELL ROBBED.

Thieves Loot His Country Home of Goods Worth $3,000.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., June 16.—Tammany Sachem John J. Scannell of New York, who owns a country house and stock farm about two miles north of this place, has had detectives at work on a robbery in which he lost personal effects valued at more than $3,000. He intends to remove his household effects to his home on Riverside Drive, New York, and when he made an inspection he missed a number of them.

Among the missing articles is a $1,000 sealskin coat which Mr. Scannell used when driving on the Speedway in New York behind his fast horses. Vases worth $800 and an otter skin robe valued at $800 are also missing.

PREHISTORIC FOREST FOUND?

Dredge Near Long Beach Strikes Big Stumps 40 Feet Under the Mud.

Workingmen employed in digging an inland canal from Rockaway Inlet to Long Beach to drain 1,000 acres or more of sunken meadows behind Long Beach were surprised on Tuesday morning to find the large steam dredge with which they had been working suddenly cease to operate. An investigation showed that the dredge had become entangled, some forty feet below the surface, in what seemed to be the remains of a prehistoric forest.

For a considerable area the mud at this level was studded with tightly set stumps, thick and heavy as large piles of wood. Whether they formed the relics of a prehistoric grove or were merely the remains of a long-abandoned pier could not be ascertained last night, Prof. Hermon C. Bumpus, director of the American Museum of Natural History, and most of the Columbia University professors of geology, mineralogy, and botany being away from the city for the Summer.

WARNS 'CHANGES TO REFORM THEMSELVES

Wall Street Report Says That to Abolish Speculation Would Do More Harm Than Good.

BUT THERE ARE MANY EVILS

Public Will Insist on Regulation if the Exchanges Don't Clean House—Remedies for Abuses Urged.

The report of the Wall Street Investigating Commission to Gov. Hughes, submitted to him under date of June 7, was made public yesterday. The commission finds that while there is need of regulation, any effort to abolish speculation in securities and commodities would do more harm than good. The commission recommends several laws, mainly along the line of clarifying or strengthening existing laws which bear on the matter of speculation. The committee records itself as opposed to the forced incorporation of the Stock Exchange which would bring it under direct State control.

The evils of overspeculation, the commission says, could be greatly lessened by stricter control exercised by the Exchanges themselves, and most of the changes which the commission has found ought to be made are put in the shape of recommendations to the Exchanges themselves. If the Stock Exchange should appear to the public to be derelict in its exercise of its powers to prevent wrongdoing, the public, the commission says, will doubtless insist upon the incorporation of the Exchange.

The Stock Exchange, while punishing infractions of its rules, has not, the commission reports, done all it ought to do to check wrongdoing, nor all that the public has a right to expect from it. In refraining from urging the incorporation of the Exchange, the commission says it does so in the belief that the Stock Exchange will in the future be active in preventing the wrongdoing which has occurred in the past.

Larger Stock Margins Urged.

To prevent speculation by persons of small means the commission urges the advisability of brokers exacting 20 per cent. margins on all margin accounts. This is suggested for trading on the Cotton Exchange as well as on the Stock Exchanges. Of the Consolidated Exchange the commission says that it is evident that it supplies facilities for speculation by persons of very small means, and that its utility as a provider of capital for enterprises is exceedingly limited. The repeal of the charters of the Metal and the Mercantile Exchanges is urged by the commission on the ground that their quotations seldom if ever represent actual transactions, and that as at present conducted these Exchanges do actual harm to producers and consumers. Trading in mining stocks on the Produce Exchange, the report says, should be abandoned.

The recommendations made in the report so far as the matters discussed by the commission have led to specific findings may be divided into recommendations for new laws and recommendations to the Exchanges to put new rules into effect on their own authority. These are the most important changes in law urged by the commission:

Making it a misdemeanor for a broker to accept new orders or to trade for his own account when he is insolvent.

Making a broker guilty of larceny who sells securities purchased for a customer, whether these are paid for in full or only in part, for his own account, or except to satisfy default by the customer.

Providing that if it is pleaded in a suit to which a broker is a party that the transaction was a fictitious one that the jury shall return a special finding on this point, and if the transaction is found to have been fictitious the customer shall recover three times the amount of his loss.

False News Condemned.

Making the publishing in the public prints or through the mails of statements about a corporation known to the person making them to be false a misdemeanor. The making of statements which the person making them could not reasonably believe to be true to be held equally criminal. Newspapers or other publications publishing such advertisements must keep on record a signed statement from the advertiser that he holds himself responsible for the statements made in the advertisement. Any failure to obtain such a statement and to keep on record the name and address of the advertiser to be a misdemeanor on the part of the publication.

A law exempting telegraph companies from the necessity now imposed upon them as common carriers to supply quotations purchased from the Exchanges to any one making application for them and paying the regular rate therefor, the proposed law leaving discretion to the telegraph companies as to whom they will supply with these quotations, and making it criminal for the telegraph companies to supply quotations to bucket shops; the telegraph companies to be obliged to publish semi-annually a complete list of all persons to whom they supply quotations.

Amending the bucket shop law, providing that when infraction of the law is alleged it be necessary only to show that the bucket shop keeper intended the transaction to be a gambling one. Now it is necessary to show that both parties to the trade meant it to be a trade, only in differences or a gambling transaction. The change recommended follows the line of the Massachusetts law. It is also recommended by the commission that witnesses be compelled to testify and produce records, even about matters which might incriminate them, but that when so compelled to testify witnesses shall be free from prosecution or penalties in respect to the matters about which they have testified.

The commission also suggests the advisability of repealing the usury law in this State.

Argument for Usury Law Repeal.

The suggestion that the usury law be repealed was based on the commission's belief that money inevitably seeks the point of highest return and that in nine other States of the Union no usury laws are now on the statute books. In respect to call loans the commission says that before these loans were excepted from the application of the usury law, call loans were made at 6 per cent. plus a commission, and thus in effect rates higher than 6 per cent. were paid on such loans then as now.

The commission says that the impression that Wall Street and the Stock Exchange are one and the same thing is erroneous. The commission investigated the origin of the orders on one day when the dealings on the Exchange reached 1,500,000 shares and found that 52 per cent. of this trading originated in New York City and 48 per cent. in other places.

Among the changes which the commission finds the Stock Exchange itself should make with a view to checking overspeculation and wrongdoing by brokers are these:

Price Manipulation Criticised.

Brokers members of the Exchange should be required to exact margins of at least 20 per cent. on margin accounts.

Manipulation to lower or raise prices should be checked by the Exchange. The powers of observation of the Governors of the Exchange are sufficient, the commission suggests, to detect such manipulation and to discover the prevalence in the market

ELIOT NAMES BOOKS FOR 5-FOOT LIBRARY

Some of the 25 Volumes That, Well Read, Would Give a Liberal Education.

SHAKESPEARE IS NOT IN IT

Penn, Franklin, Marcus Aurelius, Plato, Milton, and Darwin Named—"Arabian Nights" Included.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 16.—Dr. Charles W. Eliot has made public a partial list of the twenty-five volumes which constitute his five-foot shelf library, which he believes will give any man the essentials of a liberal education.

In making choice among the different works of a great author the aim, he says, is to take the author's most characteristic work or that one which will be most intelligible to the people of the day.

"It is my belief that the faithful and considerate reading of these books, with such rereadings and memorizings as individual taste may prescribe, will give any man the essentials of a liberal education, even if he can devote to them but fifteen minutes a day."

The selections as far as have been made follow. It is necessary to explain that several titles are supposed to be bound into one volume:

"Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin."
"Journal of John Woolman."
"Fruits of Solitude," by William Penn.
Bacon's "Essays" and "New Atlantis."
Milton's "Areopagitica" and "Tractate on Education."
Sir Thomas Browne's "Religio Medici."
Plato's "Apology," "Phaedo," and "Crito."
"Golden Sayings" of Epictetus.
"Meditations of Marcus Aurelius."
Emerson's "Essays."
Emerson's "English Traits."
The complete Poems of Milton.
Jonson's "Volpone."
Beaumont and Fletcher's "The Maids' Tragedy."
Webster's "Duchess of Malfy."
Middleton's "The Changeling."
Dryden's "All for Love."
Shelley's "Cenci."
Browning's "Blot on the Scutcheon."
Tennyson's "Becket."
Goethe's "Faust."
Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus."
Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations."
"Letters" of Cicero and Pliny.
Bunyan's "Pilgrims' Progress."
Burns's "Tam O'Shanter."
Walton's "Complete Angler" and "Lives" of Donne and Herbert.
"Autobiography of St. Augustine."
Plutarch's "Lives."
Dryden's "Aeneid."
"Canterbury Tales."
"Imitation of Christ" by Thomas à Kempis.
Dante's "Divine Comedy."
Darwin's "Origin of Species."
"Arabian Nights."

In Atlanta, Ga., on March 15, Dr. Eliot told the pupils of the High School there that he intended to devote his immediate future to the selection of enough books to fill a five-foot shelf, the reading of which for ten minutes a day would give any man a liberal education. Dr. Eliot said in his talk to the pupils then:

"In the course of a public lecture I said some time ago that a shelf three feet long would hold enough books to give a person a liberal education if they be read for ten minutes each day.

"Immediately I was flooded with letters asking for the list of those books. I didn't have time to select them, but now that I am about to retire from the Presidency of Harvard I intend to devote my time to their selection, only I have decided to make the shelf five feet long instead of three."

MacCRACKEN REBUKES ELIOT.

Says Five-Foot Library Educational Idea Hurts Colleges.

OXFORD, Ohio, June 16.—In his address here upon the occasion of the centennial of Miami University Chancellor Henry M. MacCracken of New York University said:

"The college is wounded in the house of its friends when former President Eliot, advertising over his autograph his 'five-foot shelf of books,' allows himself to say: 'The faithful and considerate reading of these books will give any man the essentials of a liberal education.' If he is right, why maintain a college at Harvard merely to give the non-essentials of a liberal education?

"Diseased conditions in our colleges are rankest in big colleges, which are also favorites of fashion. From these they spread like insects from infected trees.

"The atmosphere to-day is full of criticisms of the college. A corporation has been chartered in New York City with $300,000 of stock for the investigation and reorganization of American colleges. What per cent. of the stock is water and what per cent. wind has not yet appeared."

SMOOTH TRIP FOR ADRIATIC.

She Brings the Hendersons Back from Paris and a Hunter of Big Game.

By Marconi Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

STEAMSHIP ADRIATIC, June 16.—The Adriatic has had a remarkably smooth passage westward on this trip, and will dock about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning.

Among her passengers are the family of David Henderson of Jersey City, who killed his daughter and then committed suicide in a Paris restaurant recently, and Dr. Rainsford, who is returning from a hunting excursion in Africa.

Dr. Rainsford delivered an interesting lecture on the scene of the Roosevelt expedition at the concert in the saloon last evening.

LETTERS BY PIGEON.

Cohen Thinks He Can Beat Mail System by One Hour.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., June 16.—David Cohen, who was recently called here from New York to manage a clothing business, proposes to keep in communication with his fiancé in the metropolis by carrier pigeon instead of by mail. She has received a dozen pigeons for that purpose, one of which took a prize at a recent show in Madison Square Garden.

By rail to New York is 118 miles, and it takes four hours for the fastest trains to get a letter there. By air line the distance is considerably shorter, and Cohen has figured that he can beat Uncle Sam's delivery system by more than an hour.

$10,275,000 CAPITAL FOR SIEGEL STORES

Siegel, Cooper & Co., Chicago, and 14th Street and Simpson-Crawford Co. Here Taken Over.

BOSTON FIRM TO COME IN

Exchange of Securities Provided for and Employes to Have a Chance to Buy $500,000 Stock.

The Siegel Stores Corporation was incorporated yesterday under the Delaware incorporation laws with a capital of $10,275,000 to take over Siegel, Cooper & Co. of Chicago, the Simpson Crawford Company, and the Fourteenth Street Store of this city. It will also in the near future take in the business of Henry Siegel & Co. of Boston. No change is to be made in the names of these stores.

The Siegel Corporation is issuing $2,000,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative, preferred stock with semi-annual dividends, and $8,275,000 of common stock. Of the $2,000,000 preferred stock $1,500,000 is to be exchanged for the $1,500,000 debenture bonds of the Simpson Security Company at par, or, will be used for the purchase of such as are not exchanged. Any balance of preferred stock not so used will be retained in the treasury of the Siegel Stores Corporation subject to sale for cash in futures at a price not less than $105 a share. It was stated by Henry Siegel yesterday that already 80 per cent. of the debenture bonds to be retired have been exchanged for the new stock.

The other $500,000 preferred stock will be sold to provide additional working capital. It is being offered at par to the employes of the stores taken over by the new corporation, and the greater part of it will be absorbed in this way. Whatever is left over will be sold at 105 to Mr. Siegel or his associates, and none of it is to be offered to the public.

The $8,275,000 common stock of the corporation is to be issued in payment for the capital stock of the companies taken over. It will be exchanged for $4,000,000 stock of Siegel, Cooper & Co. of Chicago at par; for $2,000,000 of the stock of the Fourteenth Street Store at par, for $400,000 of the 8 per cent. first preferred stock of the Simpson-Crawford Company at par, for $1,000,000 of the 8 per cent. preferred stock of the Simpson Securities Company at par, and for the $2,500,000 common stock of the Simpson Securities Company at the rate of $35 per $100 share, which aggregates $875,000.

None of this common stock is to be offered at present to the public, but application is to be made to list the new securities on the New York Stock Exchange. Provision is to be made that after the retirement under this plan of all the outstanding Simpson Securities Company debentures, no mortgage or encumbrance upon the present property of the Siegel Stores Corporation or of the subsidiary companies in excess of $1,500,000 will be permitted except upon the consent of the holders of 75 per cent. of the preferred stock.

According to the prospectus issued by the new company the assets of the three companies taken over, irrespective of any good-will or allowance for leasehold values, amount to over $5,200,000, including the net equity in the real estate owned by the Simpson Securities Company, over and above its mortgaged indebtedness of $1,200,000. The net profits for the last five years of Siegel, Cooper & Co. of Chicago and the Simpson-Crawford Company of New York have been $3,307,253, or an average of $661,500 a year, and it is estimated that the annual profits of these two stores, with The Fourteenth Street Store, will average in the next five years $1,200,000 a year. The business of the three stores amounts to $35,000,000.

The incorporators named in the papers in Delaware were Kenneth K. McLaren, Jersey City; Louis J. Dreiss, New York, and Harry W. Davis of Wilmington. The officers and Directors of the Siegel Stores Corporation are Henry Siegel, President; F. I. Vogel, Vice President and Treasurer; Robert MacMeekin, Secretary, and Max Pam, John R. Butler, Joseph Bash, I. Keim, and J. R. Davis, Directors.

Mr. Siegel explained yesterday that the object of this incorporation was to obtain economies and profits from the joint operation and management of the three stores. In particular economy would be attained in the purchasing and accounting departments.

Mr. Siegel founded the Siegel & Cooper store in Chicago in 1887, and was one of the pioneers in the departmental store business carried on on a large scale. Then the firm established in 1896 the Siegel Cooper store in this city, but sold it five years ago to Greenhut & Co. The latter concern consequently has nothing at all to do with the present combination.

In the same year, 1904, Mr. Siegel purchased the store of Simpson, Crawford & Simpson, continuing it as a high-grade store as the Simpson Crawford Company. In 1905 he established the Fourteenth Street Store, and the following year he established the house of Henry Siegel & Co. of Boston, the concern which is to be brought into the combination shortly. No further developments of the business are at present contemplated, although the Siegel Stores Corporation is empowered by its charter to establish, maintain, and conduct a purchasing and general stores system and to conduct department and dry goods stores.

DR. WIX IN AUTO WRECK.

His Leg Broken Near Dover, N. J.—Mrs. Wix Shaken Up.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., June 16.—Dr. George B. Wix, a specialist of New York, was thrown from his automobile with his wife this afternoon, when the machine turned turtle on Mount Arlington Boulevard. Dr. Wix's leg was broken, and Mrs. Wix was bruised.

Dr. Wix and Mrs. Wix, with a chauffeur, were on their way to New York from Lake Hopatcong. The doctor was driving. On one of the numerous reverse curves of the boulevard he applied the brakes suddenly and the machine turned over. The chauffeur jumped and was not hurt. Dr. Wix was attended by a local physician and then was taken to Mount Arlington, where he was placed on a train for New York. Mrs. Wix went with him.

Dr. Wix was taken to St. Luke's Hospital upon his arrival in this city. It was said last night that he had a broken leg and bruises, but that he was resting very well. Mrs. Wix was with him in the hospital, but not as a patient.

FOXHALL KEENE FALLS.

Polo Pony Falls on Him, but He Continues Game.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—Foxhall Keene had an alarming accident at Ranelagh to-day. He was playing for Beauchamp Hall, Frank J. Mackey's team, against Meadow Brook, and, crossing two opponents, he was knocked over. His pony fell on him and he was unable to rise for several minutes.

It was an ugly fall, but after ten minutes he walked off the ground. He was medically advised not to continue, but insisted on doing so, and played as well as before.

COACHING NO AID—WORDELL.

Deprecates Explanation of Failure to Get Senior Wranglership.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—Louis J. Wordell, the young Philadelphian who came near winning the last Senior Wrangleship at Cambridge, is anxious that a wrong impression should not get abroad respecting his objections to being coached for the examination.

"If I had been coached," he said to-day, "I should not have done as well as I did. This I know from past experience."

Water in Marseilles Harbor Recedes Two Feet from Normal Level.

PARIS, June 16.—Advices received here say that slight earth shocks occurred again to-day at Toulon and Marseilles.

The water in the harbor at the latter place receded two feet, returning to its usual level only after several hours.

TAFT AGAIN BEATEN AT GOLF.

With Gen. Edwards as His Partner, He Loses to Bourne and Gillett.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President Taft was again defeated in a golf match played on the Chevy Chase links this afternoon. In a foursome in which Gen. Clarence R. Edwards was his partner, against Senator Bourne and Representative Gillett, the President lost out by a score of 1 up.

The day was ideal and the President greatly enjoyed the relaxation after an arduous day's work at the White House.

GERMAN BALLOON DROPS.

Aeronaut Severely Injured in Fall on Russian Territory.

ZHITOMIR, Russia, June 16.—A balloon containing two German officers dropped to the earth near here to-day. One of the officers was severely injured by the fall.

Zhitomir is 80 miles from Kiev.

AIRSHIP MEN GET $20,000.

Osiris Prize Is Divided Between Bleriot and Voisin.

PARIS, June 16.—The French Institute has divided the Osiris prize of $20,000 between M. Bleriot, the aeronaut, and Gabriel Voisin, the aeroplane manufacturer, for their contributions to the progress of aviation.

In 1899 Daniel Osiris, the philanthropist who presented Malmaison to the French nation, gave into the keeping of the Institute of France a sum representing an annual income of about $6,500 for a triennial prize of $20,000, open to all countries, for the most remarkable work or discovery of general interest. M. Osiris died in 1907.

NOT TO MEET ABRUZZI.

Senator Elkins Says Daughter's Visit to Europe Is for Health's Sake.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Senator Elkins laughs at the suggestion that his daughter, Miss Katherine Elkins, is going to Europe to meet the Duke of the Abruzzi. He said to-day that the young woman had for some time had a slight heart affection, which is always materially augmented by heat, and that her physician had directed that upon the approach of hot weather she should go to the cooler zones of the European Continent. Miss Elkins will be accompanied by her mother, and both will probably make a brief visit to West Virginia before beginning their foreign journey.

The Senator added that the Duke was still engaged in his explorations in the Himalayas, and probably would not return to Europe during the stay there of his wife and daughter.

NO REPLY TO UNTERMYER.

Attorney General Wickersham Does Not Believe in Replying to Criticism.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Officials of the Department of Justice maintained their usual reticence to-day regarding the statement made yesterday by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Adolph Segal in his first effort to loosen the Sugar Trust's grip on the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company.

Attorney General Wickersham does not believe in answering criticisms aimed at him or at the department. When George H. Earle, Jr., receiver for the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, attacked the Attorney General and the department recently, Mr. Wickersham was asked if he had any answer to make to the charges.

"No, none," was his answer. "I do not see that I am called upon to make a formal statement in reply to the personal opinion of any one when that opinion is expressed in public."

KICKED RICH WIFE'S SHINS.

Mrs. Meyer Made a Note of It and Reads Memorandum in Court.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, June 16.—At the trial of her divorce suit against Fred J. Meyer to-day Mrs. Meyer, who is wealthy, read from a memorandum book, in which she had recorded abusive names applied to her by her husband, a former street car conductor, fourteen years her junior. Most of the epithets were such that she preferred to show them to the court in writing or to repeat them in a whisper.

Referring to the memorandum book, Mrs. Meyer read: "May 12, 1902—Husband kicked me on the shins."

"I sent my husband to college after we were married," she testified. "He studied pharmacy. He is always demanding money, is cranky and sullen."

Meyer, who is now a real estate dealer, is contesting the suit.

MORSE FREE AGAIN; UNDER $125,000 BAIL

MRS. MORSE TO THE RESCUE

She Aids in Obtaining Sureties Acceptable to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Charles W. Morse, who was convicted on Nov. 5 last year on more than fifty counts of misapplication of the funds of the National Bank of North America, of which he was President, of making false reports to the Controller of the Currency, falsifying the books of the bank and allowing overdrafts, in violation of law, was released under $125,000 bail last night following a decision by Judges Lacombe, Noyes, and Coxe of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

At his home later Mr. Morse said:

"I will take an office downtown in the financial district at once, and start in to straighten out my affairs. I feel sure that I will get a new trial in the Fall. Mrs. Morse and I got home at 7 o'clock to-night, and my telephone has been ringing ever since with friends congratulating me and offering to go on my bond."

Irwin Morse, the second son of the banker, came on from Princeton last night to be with his father.

His bail bond was signed by twenty sureties, eighteen of whom obligated themselves in the sum of $5,000 each to produce Morse for the October term of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, at which the appeal from the conviction and sentence of fifteen years in prison will be decided. Joseph D. Carroll took $20,000 of the bail, and Frederick Wagner $15,000.

Besides Mr. Carroll and Mr. Wagner the signers of the bond were James A. Lynch, Charles H. De Witt, William O. Allison, Henry S. Kearney, Elverton R. Chapman, Oakleigh Thorne, James Talcott, William H. Cheseborough, E. Clifford Potter, Henry Steers, Harry R. Wheeler, Augustus Van Wyck, James M. Gifford, Robert B. Moorhead, Harold A. Hatch, Henry W. Shoemaker, Ralph C. Hudson, and Warner Van Norden, whose name was signed by Charles A. Fisher by power of attorney.

The granting of bail came as a complete surprise to Morse and his friends, and produced one of the most remarkable scenes ever witnessed in the Federal Building. As soon as the decision became known, Mrs. Charles W. Morse, who had been at the Federal Building all the morning listening to the argument of ex-District Attorney Henry L. Stimson on the appeal of Morse from his conviction, and several of the friends of the convicted banker started to round up the twenty-five sureties who had signed the petition to the Circuit Court of Appeals on May 10 seeking Morse's release. It was a strenuous afternoon. Finally the sureties began to come into the Federal Building one by one. The arrival of each was hailed by Mrs. Morse and the little company with her, who included Ben Morse, son of the banker, with undisguised delight.

"Justice has at last been done in this matter of bail," said Mrs. Morse to those who spoke to her. "I have always believed that the courts could not permanently refuse to admit Mr. Morse to bail when such security was offered for his appearance whenever the court might demand."

Anxious Day for Morse.

The last day of Morse's imprisonment was a busy one, and full of worry. He went through the usual prison routine up to 1:30 o'clock, and then things began to happen. His wife called first, to tell him the news of the last argument on his appeal for a new trial. She had told him of Henry L. Stimson's closing argument against a new trial, and of Martin Littleton's appeal, which closed with a fervent plea that the court would again take up the matter of his client's release on bail. They were just talking over that possibility when a deputy warden brought to them the news that the court had handed down an order directing his release as soon as twenty-five men would go on his bond for $5,000 each.

Mrs. Morse left him then and rushed in her automobile to the Federal Building to confirm the news and get the advice of Commissioner Shields as to just what would be necessary to obtain her husband's release.

Mr. Littleton was the next caller, and the interview between client and lawyer was brief and to the point. Mr. Littleton gave him a rapid digest of the points raised on the motion for a new trial, as well as a brief review of the argument for his release on bail. Mr. Littleton could not stay to take part in the aftermath of his successful effort in court, but had to go to Albany.

Then for upwards of two hours Morse paced the Tombs corridor, waiting and watching, with the only interruptions coming in the form of telephone messages from his wife and his son, Harry.

"We've got ten now," and again, "We've got seventeen now," and then, "We've got eighteen now," referring to the number of willing bondsmen Mrs. Morse was gathering to obtain his freedom, and with the last message came another, through the Warden, who had received word from the Federal Building that United States Marshal Henkel was on his way up to take the prisoner before Judge Lacombe.

Then Mrs. Morse rested, while her chauffeur hurried the Marshal to the Tombs, and then as quickly brought him back with Morse. Mrs. Morse was sitting in a desk chair in front of the table at which the Commissioner was busily engaged in getting the signatures of the bondsmen. She was evidently tired by her exertions, but smiled happily as her husband walked into the room behind Marshal Henkel, and arose to greet him. Meantime the signing of the bond was going forward, though very slowly. Mrs. Morse seated herself again in the desk chair, and her husband sat on the desk beside her. Neither paid much attention to the signing until, after about fifteen minutes, Morse evidently concluded that it ought to be about done.

How many have you got now?" he asked Marshal Henkel, and was told eighteen.

Wife's Pleas Successful.

Twice Mrs. Morse left her seat to intercede in her husband's behalf. Each time she went to Judge Lacombe, who had returned to the building to approve the bond when signed, and, after arguing with him, she overcame the two obstructions that arose, first when the Commissioner declared he would have to have the refusal of each of the original signers of the petition before he could accept substitutes, and again when, with eighteen names on the bond list, it was discovered there were only two men left to sign.

Each time she returned with an order from the Judge which assured the completion of her effort at bail-getting, and neither time did her husband hear a word of the trouble that came so near to sending him back to the Tombs for another night.

Finally, soon after 6 o'clock, she brought the last word from Judge Lacombe, which was to the effect that the last obstacle in the way of his freedom had been overcome. With the bond list complete Morse's own signature was added, and the document was taken to Judge Lacombe's chambers, where, in the presence of Commissioner Shields, Marshal Henkel, Morse, his wife, and son, the Judge signed his approval of the release of the prisoner, and he was set free until October.

Outside the building, at the south door, a crowd of curiosity seekers had gathered. Ben Morse had hurried down the stairs in front of his father and got the chauffeur with the machine into place at the curb, and the crowd formed a line which the newly released prisoner walked through, smiling joyfully. Just behind him came his wife, leaning on the son's arm.

There was no demonstration, no shouting, but when a newspaper photographer stepped up and explained that on account of the failing light the camera battery could not take a snapshot, Morse consented to give them a minute, and stood for that length of time, with one foot on the step of his motor car.

Then the family party of three was whizzed uptown to the residence at 726 Fifth Avenue, which was recently sold, but which they still occupy.

Morse looked a great deal more like a man returning from a vacation, or, at worst, like a banker going home from his office after an ordinary day's work, than he did like a prisoner just released from a half year of confinement.

His face was tanned, and in place of the prison pallor that might have been expected he presented a healthy and ruddy color. His clothes and general appearance also bespoke rather the man of means fresh from his tailor and barber than a newly released prisoner, and his whole demeanor was that of a man without a trouble.

Several of the sureties during the work on the bonds wanted to double their offers of bail to facilitate matters. One of these was Joseph D. Carroll.

"Let me go the whole $125,000," he said to Commissioner Shields; but this, it was found, was impossible. So the slower process continued. William O. Allison, President of the newly formed National Reserve Bank, was another who was a little impatient over the proceedings.

"I signed the bail petition on principle," said he. "I do not know Morse, Mrs. Morse, or their son, but I believe that Morse's conviction was obtained at a time when any banker charged with doing what he was supposed to have done would have been convicted, and I want him to get a fair show."

"I am extremely glad to get out, and will devote myself to taking care of my wife and son. Now don't ask me to say anything more," he said to reporters.

Morse, with his wife and son, went to his Fifth Avenue residence from the Federal Building. That is still in Mrs. Morse's possession, although mortgages on it are in the course of foreclosure. The reunion was a particularly happy one for the reason that to-morrow marks the eighth anniversary of Morse's marriage to the present Mrs. Morse.

More than this, the release was hailed as a favorable omen in the matter of the appeal, inasmuch as the Circuit Court of Appeals, in declining some months ago to release Morse, intimated that it might consider the matter differently after the argument of the appeal if it appeared at that time that he had reasonably strong grounds for asking that the conviction be reversed.

The Court's Order.

The order of the court admitting Morse to bail reads as follows:

> In view of the magnitude of the record and of the number and intricacy of the questions presented on the appeal, the proper consideration of which will require extended examination, we order and direct that the defendant be enlarged upon bail until the term beginning the second Monday of October, 1909, upon filing a bail bond in the usual form in the sum of $125,000.
>
> Said bond must be executed by the twenty-five persons who have signed the papers annexed hereto, or persons who may hereafter sign similar papers, stating in substance that they have not and will not receive indemnity, each of said persons to sign for the sum of $5,000.
>
> Said bond must be conditioned that the defendant will not leave the United States, and will surrender himself to the custody of the Marshal within two days prior to said term. The bond must be approved as to form and sufficiency of the sureties by a Judge of this court.
>
> Before Judges Lacombe, Coxe, and Noyes, United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Petition for Bail.

Following is the petition upon which Morse's release was obtained. It was dated May 10, 1909:

> We, the undersigned, believing in the innocence of Charles W. Morse of any intent to defraud the Bank of North America, or to deceive Government officials, are willing to become responsible upon his bail bond for the sum of $5,000 each without indemnity; we do this because we do not believe he will leave the jurisdiction of the court, and that when his case is finally heard and understood he will be acquitted.

Among the signers are Warner Van Norden, Frank A. Munsey, R. R. Moore, President of the Commercial Trust Company; Harvey E. Fisk, Henry F. Shoemaker, ex-Judge Augustus Van Wyck, John D. Crimmins, E. C. Potter, W. H. Chesebrough, H. S. Kearney, Samuel Adams, James McCutcheon, E. R. Chapman, President of the Hudson Trust Company; Henry S. Black, President of the United States Realty and Improvement Company; George Crawford, James Talcott, Seth M. Milliken, W. O. Allison, President of the National Reserve Bank; Oakleigh Thorne, President of the Trust Company of America; Charles H. De Witt, Alfred J. Cammeyer, William Bradley, James Bradley, James A. Lynch, Joseph D. Carroll, Henry Steers, and Frederick Wagner.

Argument on the Appeal.

Mr. Stimson, in concluding his argument on the appeal, devoted most of his time to a detailed statement of the different transactions involved in the case as the Government views them. In connection with the charges of false entries in the books of the bank and false reports to the Controller he analyzed several of the loans which were made to Morse or to other persons in pursuance of his deals in American Ice securities stock and other manipulations. In connection with the $200,000 loan made from the Knickerbocker Trust Company, he pointed out that the National Bank of North America paid 6 per cent. interest on this loan, whereas it only received 3 per cent. on the corresponding deposit which it made with the Knickerbocker Trust.

"Now," said Mr. Stimson, "if that was Morse's loan and not the bank's loan, another crime would have been committed—the crime of misapplication. Otherwise it must have been the bank's loan, and hence we must conclude that the crime of false entry and false reports was committed.

"One or the other of these two theories applies to substantially all of the transactions involved in this situation so far as concerns the handling of the ice stock, the steamship stock, and the bank stock. If all of these transactions were purchased by the bank they were falsely entered as loans on the book. If, on the other hand, they were Morse's personal transactions then Morse misapplied the funds of the bank.

"I gave the matter exhaustive study, and concluded that they came within the first category. The Grand Juries which considered the matter and the petit jury were of the same mind. Of course, whichever theory the Government took, the defense would be sure to take the other, but the evidence appears to show that these men were gambling with the funds of the bank, and, even if they believed that ultimate benefit might result, their actions were nevertheless unlawful."

Misapplication Charges.

In regard to the charges of misapplication, Mr. Stimson called attention to the difference between the Federal and State laws on the subject of banking, the former being more general than the latter, and hence, as Mr. Stimson believed, more searching. He held that they were also more merciful in that they allowed a man to show, if accused of any act of misapplication, that he had no intent to injure the bank. Judge Ward interrupted at this point to ask if Mr. Stimson meant that an intent to deceive the Controller should be taken as tantamount to an intent to injure the bank.

Mr. Stimson declared emphatically that the Government contended only that the transactions were all those in which the bank was defrauded.

"We have divided the whole case into two parts," said he. "One part consists of crimes of deceit, which involved the deceiving of the Bank Examiner and the Controller, and the other into crimes of theft, which involved the misapplication of the funds of the bank with the intent to deceive the bank. The defendant's sales to the bank of stock at prices inflated over the normal market value, which he knew were so inflated, might or might not have been to the ultimate benefit of the bank, but nevertheless they involved the immediate misapplication of the funds of the bank.

"We stand in this particular upon the time-honored rule that a man may have an intent to injure his trust by selling to it an article at what he knows to be more than its value, even if he hopes eventually to sell the same article at a higher price to some one else and make a profit. This ultimate hope is no defense in such a case."

Mr. Stimson traced the course of the price of American Ice securities in the pool which was managed by Morse on behalf of Charles M. Schwab, Isaac Guggenheim, John W. Gates, and various other financiers, showing that whereas the stock started its upward course in January, 1905, from an average of $30 a share, and was pushed up to 90 by the manipulations of the pool from the time when the pool got it to the latter price until the crash in October of 1907, there was no opportunity to unload.

Ice Stock Manipulation.

Morse knew this, Mr. Stimson declared—knew that the prices were fictitious, that the market was only such as was made by the pool members themselves when he put the American Ice stock into the bank—2,000 shares in October of 1906, at 90, and 4,000 the following Spring, at 40.

And Mr. Stimson called attention to the fact that whereas profits of $154,500 were credited to the bank in connection with the manipulation of these shares by Morse, both blocks of stock were closed out at $30 a share, realizing a loss of $120,000 on the 2,000 shares bought at $90, and of $40,000 on the 4,000 shares bought at $40, not to speak of the loss of interest to the bank on the money which stood behind the purchase. This, declared Mr. Stimson, showed the intent to deceive the bank beyond all possible question.

In the closing moments of his argument he devoted some time to the $210,000 overdraft which Morse made at the National Bank of North America on Oct. 16, 1907, just before the panic. This overdraft went to enable Morse to lend $126,000 to F. A. Heinze and to meet calls made upon him by the brokers who were carrying his shares. Mr. Stimson declared that Morse had had plenty of warnings of the shaky condition of the bank when he made this overdraft through the reports and protests of the Controller, through a letter written by President Curtis in the previous June, and through specific warning which his Directors gave him. Hence, declared Mr. Stimson, Morse could not have made the overdraft except with the knowledge that it would seriously imperil the bank and the willingness that this should happen.

SET FREE LIKE MORSE.

Another Prisoner Profits by the Finding of the Court in His Case.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in addition to allowing Charles W. Morse to be set free on bail yesterday, granted a similar motion in behalf of Abraham L. Lowenthal, a cigarmaker convicted of having violated the internal revenue law. In Lowenthal's case bail to await the outcome of the appeal from the judgment of the lower court on conviction of a misdemeanor, set at $5,000, was furnished and the man was released.

Lowenthal was found guilty of refilling cigar boxes, and was sentenced in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court to six months' imprisonment in the Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island and fined $200.

The only argument made in opposition to the motion by Assistant United States District Attorney Pitkin was to call the attention of Judges Lacombe, Coxe, and Noyes to the refusal of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to grant bail to Morse. This contention was quickly disposed of by the announcement that Morse would get his liberty on $125,000 bail.

THE HUNDRED BORN AT STORMY MEETING

Howard O. Wood, Brooklyn, lawyer.
William F. Wyckoff, Queens, lawyer.

A Few Dissenters.

"Are all these nominees residents and voters of this city?" shouted a man in the audience the moment Mr. Lyons got through reading the long list and made a motion for the adoption of the resolution.

"As far as we know they are," said Mr. Schwab. The resolution was then adopted with only two or three dissenting votes and the Committee of One Hundred had received official life.

Dr. Henry Moskowitz, an east side settlement worker and member of the Nominating Committee of Nineteen, then mounted the platform and read a resolution embodying the declaration of principles of the Committee of One Hundred.

They provide for the promulgation of a platform pledging candidates in a municipal campaign to economy, efficiency, and non-partisan business methods, to subway extension by city money as far as practicable, improvement of schools, parks, and playgrounds, and an earnest effort to obtain for the city a new Charter which will give the city home rule and make generally for greater administrative efficiency.

The resolutions, among other things, say:

The Platform.

> Resolved, That this meeting, in appointing a committee of one hundred citizens, suggests that they promulgate a platform for the coming municipal campaign and use all proper means toward securing the nomination and election to the municipal offices of men who will carry out the following policies:
>
> Apply the moneys of the people exclusively for the greatest good of all the people and in no degree whatsoever for the purpose of favoring their friends or any private or partisan interests.
>
> Stop the waste of the people's money by introducing economy and practical business methods into the city's administration.
>
> Appoint their subordinates of all grades exclusively with regard to efficiency and in no degree whatsoever as rewards for personal or political service.
>
> Provide a comprehensive system of subways to be effectively controlled by the city, and to be owned by the city so far as consistent with the constitutional debt limit and the financial safety of the city.
>
> Extend and improve the school system so as to provide full-time instruction for all the children of all parts of the city.
>
> Extend and improve the system of parks, playgrounds, and recreation facilities for the sake of the public health and happiness.
>
> Use all means in their power to obtain from the Legislature such a charter for the city as will give the people home rule, coordinate the various departments of the Government, locate responsibility, and secure administration efficiency.
> And this meeting now pledges its support to all those candidates whom the committee may nominate or indorse.

Alfred B. Cruikshank, a lawyer, arose to second the resolutions. The close of his speech was the signal for the first outbreak of the Minute Men. The resolutions included a clause providing that all further resolutions or suggestions offered at the meeting should be referred to the Committee of One Hundred without debate. L. D. Bedford, a Minute Man, protested, saying the meeting was gagged.

Michael A. Fitzgerald, former President of the Letter Carriers' Union, declared that the committee was composed of reputable bankers, business men, capitalists, labor men, and lawyers.

After about five minutes of turmoil, with several men on their feet shouting at the top of their voices at once, the amendment offered by Minute Man Bedford was put to a vote and defeated.

City Subway Guardian Aroused.

The previous question was then moved on the original resolution, but before it could be put Seumas O'Sheel, another Minute Man, who was Secretary of the Union Square mass meeting, jumped to his feet and moved to amend the Subway clause by striking out the words "consistent with the constitutional debt limit and the financial safety of the city."

"There is one question lurking in the mind of everybody on or off the platform, and that is the traction question," shouted Mr. O'Sheel. "And somewhere there seems to be a studied effort to keep us from getting down to that question."

At this there was applause in some quarters and jeers in others. The resolutions were adopted with only a couple of dissenting votes.

The official business having been concluded, the speechmaking part was started by Charles Sprague Smith, Director of the People's Institute. Prof. Smith is not connected with the Committee of One Hundred movement, but said he approved in every particular the resolutions adopted.

At this the Minute Men renewed their disturbance.

Rabbi Stephen Wise, the last speaker, was received very warmly. He counseled the Committee of One Hundred that its work from now on must be of a more telling character than the work which has gone before.

"It may be easy to hunt lions in Africa," said the rabbi, "but it is no easy task to hunt down the tiger in New York. And incidentally I wish we had the great African lion hunter here on the job.

"We are not going to fight Tammany, nor even Murphy. We are going to fight 'the System,' which gives at its worst a Van Wyck and at its best a McClellan. The first was an unamiable vertebrate. The last is an amiable invertebrate. Tim Sullivan for Mayor, McCarren for Controller would be a typical Tammany ticket. Now they offer us a respectable candidate. Tammany may give us a respectable candidate, but no candidate can make Tammany respectable. To accept the nomination from Tammany ought to mean social ostracism and subject a man to the contempt of the community."

The Disturbers Ejected.

At this juncture three or four of the men who had been disturbing the meeting from time to time jumped to their feet and began to shout questions about traction, charging Rabbi Wise as they had Prof. Smith, with dodging the question. The disturbance grew so intense and was of such long duration that even the policemen sat up and took notice.

Despite protests from the Rabbi, they yanked O'Sheel and Bedford from their seats and shooed them out of the hall. A small fraction of the audience hissed and hooted at the police.

A majority applauded and cheered. Bedford tore himself loose from the policeman and rushed down the main aisle, and, gesticulating wildly, protested against being put it. What he said could not be heard. At this point somebody on the platform made a motion to adjourn. In the midst of the confusion the gavel fell.

LEGISLATORS STEPPING UP.

Citizens' Union Welcoming Those Who Want to Explain Their Records.

The Committee on Legislation of the Citizens' Union kept open house yesterday for legislators who desired to register complaint against the judgment passed by the committee on their performances at the recent session of the Legislature. For the last three years the organization has exercised this kind of censorship of New York City lawmakers and published its findings. This year the report will be made public in time for the Monday morning papers.

Secretary Binkerd of the Union said yesterday that he regarded it a violation of ethics to make public the names of his callers. Altogether, he said, about one-fifth of the New York delegation had dropped in, many of the visitors being Tammany men who have no liking for the Citizens' Union.

Many of those who called explained that, while the Citizens' Union would be justified in announcing that they had voted against the Hinman-Green Direct Nominations bill, this did not necessarily mean that they were opposed to the direct primary principle.

Most of the callers declared that they would have typewritten explanations of their actions to submit, and Mr. Binkerd consented to have these printed with their records.

COMMISSION PLAYS POLITICS, SAYS METZ

Controller Accuses Utilities Board of Making Capital Out of Subway Plans.

DEFENDS BELMONT REGIME

Contends Again That the Fourth Avenue Subway Is Not Feasible—Hooted After All This.

Controller Metz, speaking last night at the Palm Garden in Queens, accused the Public Service Commission of playing politics in connection with their advocacy of the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, Subway, and entered on a defense of August Belmont. He reiterated his statement that the people of New York should erect a statue to Mr. Belmont, and traversed directly the statements made by Justice Gaynor a few days ago that the Interborough had not risked a cent of its money in constructing the Subway.

At the conclusion of his speech the Controller asked if there were any questions. At once a man in a front seat got up and wanted to know why it was the Controller favored the Fourth Avenue subway four years ago and opposed it now.

Immediately an uproar began. The front of the hall was occupied by South Brooklyn men, and they hooted, catcalled, and hissed till no one could make himself heard. The Chairman pounded the table with his gavel to no avail, and Mr. Metz stood smiling quietly at the raging mob beneath him. After ten minutes Elwin F. Piper, President of the Allied Boards of Trade, managed to obtain a hearing, and told the demonstrators that they were doing harm to their cause and should be ashamed of themselves.

Then Mr. Metz said he was as much in favor of the Fourth Avenue subway as of the Lafayette Avenue route if only the waivers of the property owners with regard to damages could be obtained.

The controller entered on a justification of his official acts in declaring that the city had no money for the Fourth Avenue route, and brought forward a plan of his own. He argued that the city should concentrate its efforts at present on building the Broadway, Brooklyn, Lafayette route, which in conjunction with the loop subway now being built in Manhattan and the first three sections of the Fourth Avenue line, would form a system which could be operated as a whole.

"The Ivins commission," said Mr. Metz, "had showed us what it actually cost to build and maintain subways. It showed that the profits of transportation companies had been made by stock jobbing, and that control by the Public Service Commission would make the companies dependent in the future on fares instead of the facility to juggle the stock market. It had become a question of earning capacity instead of high finance."

Mr. Metz then dwelt on the heavy expense for which the city would be making itself liable if it began to build a subway for itself along Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn. It would have to pay damages to the owners of buildings along the route in exactly the same way as a private contractor, and he reckoned that this item of expense might easily amount to $25,000,000.

Then he propounded his own solution of the whole difficulty. Instead of spending from $27,000,000 to $30,000,000 on the Fourth Avenue route and then only dumping its passengers at Canal Street and the Bowery, the city should add $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 to the $10,000,000 already incurred in Manhattan to build the Broadway-Lafayette route, which would give it the control of the Williamsburg and Manhattan bridges. This system might be leased out to operators.

Mr. Metz declared that this route was in a different legal position from that of the Fourth Avenue line, and there would be not the same risk of damage suits from land owners against the city. Then he passed his compliments to the Public Service Commission.

"They have made no attempt," he said, "to do anything but force the Fourth Avenue Subway through. The Board of Estimate has had no chance to consider other routes. It begins to look as if the Commissioners, a majority of whom have repeatedly held appointive office in the last few years under administrations not in sympathy with the government of the city, have been making political capital out of the situation. But it is too serious to be made a political football. Abuse of city officials will not clarify the situation, and the Commissioners should do something to justify their existence, instead of making stump speeches night after night and questioning the motives of city officials."

The Fourth Avenue Subway Association at its meeting last night in Acme Hall, Seventh Avenue and Ninth Street, Brooklyn, attacked Public Service Commissioner Bassett. He has angered them because he voted against proceeding with the construction of the Fourth Avenue Brooklyn Subway. Hugh V. Monahan proposed a resolution calling on Gov. Hughes to remove the Commissioner from office on the ground that he was betraying his trust to the people and was favoring the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

WHO HAS A SKY-BLUE PEARL?

Pawnbroker Says It Belongs to a Real Indian Prince.

> One thousand dollars reward for return of pawn ticket bought of me recently for sky-blue pearl, or will buy pearl. Forgotston, 1,490 Broadway.

Behind this advertisement in the Lost column this morning there lies, according to Morris A. Forgotston, pawnbroker, at 1,490 Broadway, an absorbing tale of the misadventure of an Oriental sky-blue pearl. It is a tale that threads its way from faraway India to this country, and where the end will be no one knows.

An Indian Prince—a real Prince, says Forgotston—figures in the story. It is true that such incidentals as names and dates and addresses are not forthcoming, but Forgotston is certain, he says, that the story is true.

The pawnbroker says he sold the pawn ticket mentioned in the advertisement to an unknown man some two weeks ago for $500. Four weeks before that the pawnbroker says he bought the ticket for $150 from another stranger who dropped into his office. He was not aware then that the ticket called for an Oriental oval pearl worth untold thousands of dollars. The ticket merely indicated that it was a blue pearl, nothing more.

"Imagine my surprise," said Forgotston last night, "when a few days after I had sold the ticket for $500 a detective from a private agency came to me and asked if I had sold such a ticket as I have described.

"When I told him I had he informed me that I had done a foolish thing. 'We've been looking for the pearl for five years,' the detective went on. 'It was stolen from the ancestors of an Indian Prince thirty years ago. It's a priceless heirloom. The Prince is anxious to get it back into the family and will pay richly for it.'

"To prove what he said, the detective three days ago brought the Prince around to my office. He was attired in his princely garb, with fez hat and all. He was greatly distressed to find I had sold the ticket. He told me the history of the pearl, and offered me a large sum of money if I could get the ticket back, and much more if I could restore the pearl to him.

"Where's the Prince staying? Really, I don't know. He didn't say. He wanted me to inform the detective agency if I could get any word of the pearl. I'll pay $10,000 to any one who will bring it to me or $1,000 for the ticket. It's a twelve and one-half grain gem, and one of the rarest known. Sorry I can't tell you where you can find the Prince. If he comes back I'll ask him. He is really a fine Prince."

> of matched orders, and the Exchange, when such conditions arise, should warn its members against continuing such operations.
>
> The Governors of the Exchange should be authorized by its constitution to prevent as far as possible the disastrous results of corners by naming a settlement price whenever a corner has developed in a stock.
>
> The Exchange should conduct periodical examinations of the books and accounts of its members.
>
> Clerks and subordinate officers of moneyed institutions should be barred from trading through any member of the Exchange as brokers' clerks are now barred by the rules of the Exchange.
>
> Unlisted department on the Exchange should be abolished, and the Exchange should require fuller and more frequent statements of earnings, &c., from the corporations whose securities are listed. At time of listing companies should state how much stock was issued for cash and how much in exchange for property.
>
> The Exchange should prohibit its members having branch offices in New York City.
>
> Should do away with rule giving bids for and offers of large blocks of stock preference over 100 share lots.
>
> Should preserve Stock Exchange Clearing House sheets for six years instead of for one week, as is done now.
>
> Should undertake supervision of the Curb market, inasmuch as about 85 per cent. of the business on the Curb is done for Stock Exchange houses.

All Speculation Not Harmful.

It is impossible to do away with speculation, the commission finds, and its effects are by no means all harmful. Short selling serves to regulate market prices, and in this way exerts a good effect, it is declared. Manipulation to make a market for securities, the report says, is really nothing more than a way to advertise a security to possible purchasers, and is not to be condemned of itself. Manipulation engaged in to put prices up or down is condemned by the commission.

Wash sales, the commission says, are severely punishable under the rules of the Exchange, and they do not occur as frequently as some supposed. Matched orders, that is, orders placed by the same principal on both the buying and selling side, are not so easily prevented or regulated, but the Exchange, the commission thinks, could check the execution of such orders when they become very prevalent in a market.

The Stock Exchange, the report says, should endeavor to discover bad conditions in the affairs of its members before failure rather than after failure, when money may be irrevocably lost to the firm's customers which might have been saved by forehandedness on the part of the Exchange authorities.

The commission during its investigation heard many complaints against the practice of specialists on the Exchange trading for their own account. A specialist who does this while acting as broker for another is infringing the law as it now stands, the commission says. In respect to the general question of a broker buying or selling for his own account, the report points out that this practice frequently makes a market for stocks at times when no market otherwise would exist, and the commission refrains from condemning this practice. The summary authority enjoyed by the Governors of the Stock Exchange, instead of being a bad thing, is advantageous, the commission finds, inasmuch as it makes possible the strict maintenance of discipline. The Governors should exercise their authority even more fully than they do, the commission thinks.

Control of Quotations.

Stricter control over the distribution of quotations made on the Stock Exchange, the commission says, would exert important influence upon speculation by the public. In respect to the Consolidated Exchange in particular, the report says that without the use of the tickers which supply the Consolidated Exchange with the quotations made on the Stock Exchange the business of the Consolidated would probably be paralyzed, and the commission adds that the right to use these tickers rests solely upon a technical point in a judicial decision which enjoins their removal.

The commission thus sets forth the reasons which led to its recommendation that the Stock Exchange should forbid its members maintaining branch offices in New York City:

> Complaint has been made of branch offices in the City of New York, often luxuriously furnished and sometimes equipped with lunchrooms, cards, and liquor. The tendency of many of them is to increase the lure of the ticker by the temptation of creature comforts, appealing thus to many who would not otherwise speculate. The Governors of the Exchange inform us that they realize that some of these offices have brought discredit on the Exchange and that on certain occasions they have used their powers to suppress objectionable features. It seems to us that legitimate investors and speculators might, without much hardship, be compelled to do business at the main offices, and that a hard-and-fast rule against all branch offices in the City of New York might well be adopted by the Exchange. In any event, we are convinced that a serious and effective regulation of these branch offices is desirable.

Regarding "pyramiding" the report says:

> "Pyramiding," which is the use of paper profits in stock transactions as a margin for further commitments, should be discouraged. The practice tends to produce more extreme fluctuations and more rapid wiping out of margins. If the stock brokers and the banks would make it a rule to value securities for the purpose of margin or collateral, not at the current price of the moment, but at the average price of, say, the previous two or three months, (provided that such average price were not higher than the price of the moment,) the dangers of pyramiding would be largely prevented.

The Engraving Monopoly.

In a supplemental report made to Gov. Hughes by Chairman White the Governor is informed that, despite its protestations of a desire to do away with the American Bank Note Company's monopoly in engraving certificates accepted by the Exchange for listed securities, the Exchange does not appear to have done all in its power to rid itself of this monopoly, and that other considerations than the goodness of the work and the safeguarding of the holders of securities seem to have been operative in guiding the course of the Exchange in this matter. The matter was brought up before the commission on a complaint made to Gov. Hughes by the New York Bank Note Company, which was transmitted by the Governor to the commission.

The members of the commission were Horace White, Chairman; Charles A. Schieren, David Leventritt, Clark Williams, John B. Clark, Willard V. King, Samuel H. Ordway, Edward D. Page, and Charles Sprague Smith. Maurice I. Muhleman served as secretary to the commission. The commission served without compensation and its members held themselves personally responsible for all its expenses. The commission was appointed Dec. 14 last, and for the last six months has held many sessions and examined a great many witnesses, including Governors of the Exchanges, individuals with complaints, and others whom the commission thought might throw light on the matter submitted to them by the Governor. The sessions of the commission were held in the Chamber of Commerce Building, and the commission, in its report, extends its thanks to the Chamber for the courtesies extended to the commission.

CLAIRVOYANT SUES POLICY KING'S WIDOW

Mrs. Adams Gave Her a Note for $30,000 to Use Her Powers to Prevent Threatened Dangers.

ALSO PAID HER LARGE SUMS

Payments of $100, $500, and $1,000 Made to Ward Off Evils, and This, She Thinks, Was Ample.

Mrs. Isabella V. Adams, widow of the so-called "policy king," was the defendant before Supreme Court Justice Davis and a jury yesterday in a suit brought by Marguerite Gilbert, a clairvoyant and palmist, who seeks to recover $30,000 alleged to be due her on a promissory note.

The document reads: "I, Isabella V. Adams, hereby acknowledge my indebtedness to Marguerite Gilbert for services rendered by her, for which I promise to pay her the sum of $30,000, and in the event of my death I hereby authorize and direct the payment of the same out of the funds of my estate." The note was dated Jan. 23, 1907.

In her defense Mrs. Adams made rather a remarkable statement, setting forth in her answer that the Gilbert woman is by profession a clairvoyant and palmist, and that at various times prior to Jan. 23, 1907, she represented to Mrs. Adams that she possessed remarkable powers, and could foretell impending dangers threatening various members of Mrs. Adams's family, and that she could, by the exercise of some mysterious power, forestall and prevent such threatened dangers. Furthermore, she represented, that dangers did threaten the Adams family, particularly the children, and that these dangers would come immediately upon the death of Mrs. Adams.

Mrs. Adams took the witness stand and told of her first meeting with the plaintiff in 1900, having been introduced to her by Miss Margaret C. Vincent, a friend. Their friendship ran along until 1908. She testified that when the note was executed Mrs. Gilbert promised that if nothing happened no one should ever hear of the arrangement. She told of an appointment she had with the plaintiff at a department store, when the latter told her she would give her the note, but would not part with it to any other member of her family.

"She told me," continued Mrs. Adams, "she would give me the note the next day, but said she wanted some money for it. I did not see her the next day. She wanted $15,000 for the paper. Some weeks later I met her at Carnegie Hall and she wanted to know why I had treated her in such a manner. I told her I was very much surprised at the manner in which she had treated me in regard to the note, and she made all sorts of excuses, saying she wanted everything that was right."

"How much did you give her in cash or check?" asked her counsel.

"Oh, I don't know," responded the witness, "but there were sums of $20, $50, $100, $500, and $1,000 on two occasions, but it was prior to making the note."

"Did she make you up medicines?"

"Yes, she did make me several tonics for my nerves, and gave me some liquid tonic for which she charged me $3 to $5 a bottle, which I paid her. In fact, she did a lot for me—engaged servants, cooked my dinner some times, but she was paid for everything she ever did."

The case will go on to-day.

MRS. GOULD'S FEAT ON COACHING TRIP

Drove Full Tilt Down a Steep Hill, Returning from Larchmont, Coachman Testifies.

LIVELY TIME AT THE FARM

Mrs. Gould Was Frequently Intoxicated While on a Visit There, an Employe Testifies.

An alleged attempt to poison Mrs. Viola Katherine Gould through the medium of a cup of coffee while she was staying at her Virginia farm in November, 1906, was sprung by Clarence J. Shearn, Mrs. Gould's counsel, just before court adjourned for the day yesterday in the trial of her action for a separation from Howard Gould, which is being heard before Supreme Court Justice Dowling.

Mr. Shearn was cross-examining Robert Trotter, a master carpenter, who had been employed both at Castle Gould and Mrs. Gould's Virginia farm. Trotter had given the most damaging evidence so far adduced as to Mrs. Gould's alleged drinking habits and use of abusive language. A long cross-examination had failed to shake Trotter's testimony, when Mr. Shearn asked him about his relationship with Betty Foster, a colored woman employed in the kitchen at the farm.

In his direct examination Trotter had testified how, on one occasion, a Saturday evening, he had seen Mrs. Gould sitting in the dining room at the Blue Gap Farm. "She was grossly intoxicated," he said. It was this incident that Mr. Shearn had been sifting when he suddenly asked Trotter:

"Did you put anything in Mrs. Gould's coffee that Saturday evening?"

"I did not," replied Trotter.

"Did you get Betty Foster to put anything in Mrs. Gould's coffee that Saturday night?"

"I did not," replied Trotter, indignantly.

"Didn't Mrs. Gould charge you with having poisoned her?"

"No."

"It was right after Mrs. Gould had her meal that she fell to the floor, wasn't it?"

"No, it was two hours after."

The subject was then dropped, but not before Mr. Shearn tried desperately hard to get the witness to admit that detectives, supposedly employed by Mr. Gould, had been seen hanging around the farm about this time. Trotter was sure that such was not the case.

Trotter, the carpenter, was the star witness yesterday. He gave his evidence, as one of the counsel described it afterward, "like a natural born witness." He is apparently about 40 years old and a subject of King Edward, like many of the Gould employes. Examined by De Lancey Nicoll, he said he was employed at Castle Gould from the early part of June, 1906, to the following September, when he went to the Blue Gap Farm at Lynchburg, Va., staying there two months.

Q.—During the period that you were at Castle Gould, and before you went to the Blue Gap Farm, did you see Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor? A.—I did, several times.

Asked to give details, Trotter said that on one occasion when Mrs. Sells was a visitor at Castle Gould he was summoned by Mrs. Gould to open a door, the key to which had been lost.

Q. Did you see Mrs. Gould on that occasion? A. I certainly did. She asked me to open the door. I tried to, but I couldn't, and she said, "Smash the —— thing."

Q. Did you? A. No; I didn't. I used the chisel on the hinges.

Says He Saw Her Drunk Often.

Another occasion on which Trotter said he saw Mrs. Gould drunk was when she said to her French maid: "You must wash that floor. I'm Mrs. Howard Gould. — you, wash that floor."

Trotter said he was induced to go down to Blue Gap Farm through a letter written to another carpenter by Mrs. Gould. This was early in September, 1906.

"I saw her the morning after my arrival," he said, "and she stayed there about eight or ten days. She was occasionally intoxicated during that time."

One of the things to be done, said Trotter, was the moving of a large "grandfather's" clock which stood in the hall. He said he got a chair to stand on so as to remove some ornaments from the top of it, when Mrs. Gould asked what he wanted with a chair, and "caught the clock in her arms, and she and the clock fell against the wall."

"I got angry then," said Trotter, "and left. Later she sent for me to put up a mirror in the bathroom. I refused to go and said I was through with Mrs. Gould. Mr. Harrison came three times to get me, and at last I took my tools and went. When I reached the house I saw Mrs. Gould sitting on a chair in the dining room grossly intoxicated."

Q.—Did you do anything to help her? A.—No.

Trotter said he saw her next day, leaving the place. Before she went, he said, she gave him a telegram to send to Dustin Farnum.

Cross-examined by Mr. Shearn, Trotter said that he is now living in Scranton, Penn.; that he came here from Scranton on Tuesday, and that he is a married man, living apart from his wife. Asked how he became interested in the case, he said he saw of the trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Gould in the newspapers, and wrote to Mr. Gould, saying that if he could be of any assistance he would be glad.

Some interesting testimony was given by Reinhold Carlson, a Swede, who was head coachman at Castle Gould from October, 1904, to August, 1905. He told of some of the drives on which he accompanied Mrs. Gould.

Q.—Do you recollect at any time seeing Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor? A.—Yes. The first time was three or four days after I went to Castle Gould.

Had to Hold Her on the Wagon.

Q.—Tell us what happened. A.—I had orders to take a pair of horses and a skeleton drag to the house. Mrs. Gould came out for a drive. She was intoxicated; her face was flushed; the smell of liquor was on her breath, and she could not sit steady. I had to take the reins in my right hand and drive with my other arm behind her back in case she should fall.

Carlson was then questioned about a four-in-hand trip in July, 1905. He said Mr. Fownes, Mrs. Gould's driving master, went with them, and two grooms sat behind. Mrs. Gould drove, and on returning to Castle Gould she wanted to enter by Gate No. 2. She did not see it was closed, said Carlson, and ran into the fence. She smelt of liquor, he added.

Drove Full-Tilt Down a Hill.

The next incident was during a coaching trip to Larchmont. They went first to White Plains and then on to Larchmont, where they stopped for dinner at the Yacht Club there. Fownes was with her. When starting on the return journey to New York, Carlson said, "Mrs. Gould got on the box, and went off down the hill at full speed. She was drunk."

On Aug. 2 Miss Sells was a visitor at Castle Gould, and, according to the coachman, Mrs. Gould ordered a trap brought to the door. When it arrived Mrs. Gould pointed to a groom, who was holding the horse's head, and said: "That man's drunk."

Carlson said the man wasn't drunk, but that Mrs. Gould was.

Carlson told of an exciting drive he had that morning trying to catch a train. Mrs. Gould wanted to go to town, and was taking her maid with her. The latter was standing outside the house, when Mrs. Gould said to her:

"What are you doing, Bertha? Get in; I want to catch that train." Then, turning to Carlson, he said, she said: "You have got to catch that train. You have got to gallop those horses; I don't care a — if you kill them."

Q.—How much time did you have? A.—Nine minutes to do two and a half miles in.

Q.—What happened then? A.—Mrs. Gould said to me: "If you don't catch that train I'll make trouble for the stable."

Q.—Did you catch it? A.—No, we arrived one minute too late. Mr. Goodman, the station master, told Mrs. Gould he had held the train a minute for her, and that it had been gone a minute.

Took Back Discharged Groom.

The witness testified that Mrs. Gould then ordered him back to the stable and told him to discharge all hands. However, as there was a month and two days' pay coming to them and no money on hand to pay them with, Carlson said the men refused to leave. A little later he met Mrs. Gould.

"Have you discharged the grooms?" she asked. Carlson said he replied, "I discharged them, but I had no money to pay them with." She answered, "I won't stand for such things; you may go too."

Later on in the day, Carlson said, Mrs. Gould rang up Fownes, who, after talking to her, turned to the stable hands, saying: "You may all go to work again. Mrs. Gould wants a pair of horses quickly."

Ordered Maids to Get Up at 5 A. M.

Miss Jane McCann, who for less than a month in July, 1904, was employed at Castle Gould, in charge of the linen room, was called.

Q.—While you were there did you see Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor? A.—The first time I went there she was under the influence of liquor. The day I arrived she started to scold me for not coming the day before, although I had been engaged to start that day. She was very flushed.

Miss McCann said that when she arrived at Castle Gould she heard Mrs. Gould quarreling with the driver. One of her first duties, Miss McCann said, was to assist in the unpacking of some glass and chinaware. Mrs. Gould was there giving instructions.

Q.—Did she speak in French? A.—Yes, she answered the man in French, and then said: "How's that for French?" She was intoxicated, in my opinion.

The day before Miss McCann left Castle Gould, she said, Mrs. Gould called all the servants together and read to them some new rules which she had drawn up. One was that they were all to be up by 5:30 in the morning. After reading them she announced that all who wanted to could leave. Miss McCann deposed to once finding a bottle of brandy in Mrs. Gould's room.

Told Gould She "Was the Boss."

Miss McCann went on to tell how on this occasion she was attracted by hearing loud voices, and that she went along the hallway toward Mrs. Gould's room. She stopped when about half way, and heard Mrs. Gould tell Mr. Gould, "She'd let him know she was the boss." This was accompanied by a noise as of stamping feet, but Mr. Gould made no reply.

Q.—Have you been in the habit of creeping up on your employers? A.—I was attracted by the loud noise, and curiosity.

Another witness was Harry Turner, who has had charge of the greenhouses at Castle Gould since April, 1906. He testified that he had seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated on several occasions. One of these was on Nov. 6, 1906, when she drove up and assembled the heads of the departments. She kept repeating a dozen times, "I'm Mrs. Howard Gould."

Q.—How did she act? A.—She walked across the room and leaned against the wall.

Mr. Shearn drew from the witness that he had never seen Mrs. Gould take a drink.

William Wysong of Port Washington was the next witness. He was employed on construction work at Castle Gould in April and May, 1902, and remembered seeing Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor once.

"I was on the steam roller," said Wysong, "when she came along and I heard her call a man named Murphy a —."

"Did you ever hear of William Murphy, the bicycle rider, the famous Mile-a-minute Murphy?" "Yes, he was present."

The witness said he was about 250 feet away when Mrs. Gould called Murphy. Mrs. Gould was walking.

Cross-examined by Mr. Shearn:

Q.—During the two years that you were at Castle Gould you say you never saw Mrs. Gould take a drink, and never saw her under the influence of liquor, except on the occasion you have mentioned? A.—Yes, that is correct.

The other witness examined was Gustave Wright, who has been clerk at the Castle Gould estate office since March, 1906. He testified that he saw Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor on Nov. 5, 1906.

Q.—What were the circumstances? A.—She wanted me to let her into the storeroom to get some things. She ordered 200 blankets and 400 quilts to be sent up to the house that afternoon. She said she was "Mrs. Howard Gould, and who the devil was Malloy?"

Q.—When did you see her again? A.—In the estate office, when she told us we were fired and to get our things and get out.

Q.—How did she act? A.—She abused Mr. Malloy a little and swayed against the wall.

The trial will be continued this morning.

OFF ON A SUFFRAGETTE FIGHT.

Miss Milholland Goes to England—Frances Starr and Wm. Guggenheim Sail.

The big Cunarder Mauretania sailed yesterday for Liverpool with her cabin filled with passengers. John E. Milholland, who is interested in traction lines in London, sailed with his daughter, Miss Inez Milholland. She has just been graduated from Vassar, and is an ardent suffragette. She said that on her return here she will enter the New York University Law School with a view to fitting herself to become a militant suffrage fighter.

"My time until the Fall will be taken up in active work for the cause of woman in England," she said. "I have been able in the past to be of some assistance to the workers here, and I expect to be able to advance the cause abroad. When I return to America I shall again take up my fight here."

William Guggenheim also sailed. Another departing traveler was Miss Frances Starr, the actress, who goes abroad for a rest, and who has promised her friends that on her return she will write a book giving her views of England and its people.

Robert F. Munro, President of the American Cotton Oil Company, goes abroad on business for the company, and to get a few weeks' rest at Continental resorts.

ENDEMANN ADMITS THEFTS OF $40,000

Jefferson Bank Clerk Arrested in Brooklyn—Shortage May Rise to $77,000.

STOLE FIRST FOR FAMILY

Then Made $1,000 Bets on the Races in Hope of Squaring Accounts—He Had Just Been Promoted.

Paul Endemann, the young teller of the Houston Street branch of the Jefferson Bank, whose sudden disappearance on Monday soon after the President of the bank, Herman Broesel, had appointed him, as a reward for years of apparently faithful service, to heead the new branch at Fifth Avenue and Fifteenth Street, led to the discovery that his accounts were between $40,000 and $77,000 short, was arrested yesterday in Brooklyn. He was immediately held for examination on Friday by Magistrate Crane under $40,000 bail, and, since he could not furnish it, was locked up in the Tombs.

According to Detectives McConville and Nelson, who made the arrest, and the bank's lawyer, Emanuel Eschwege, Endemann himself admitted that he had appropriated $40,000, and a hasty examination of his books shows that the actual amount may reach $77 000.

It was on these statements by the detectives and lawyer that Magistrate Crane fixed bail at so high a figure. The President of the bank and the cashier still persist, however, in saying that the defalcation is not much more than $9,000.

Endemann himself would make no explanation, and his lawyers say that his statement to the detectives amounted to no confession; yet it appears from what the bank's lawyer can ascertain that some financial trouble oppressed him and his family several years ago. He then appropriated a small sum—not more than $2,000—to offset it. Then, to recover himself, he placed through a friend familiar with the race track a considerable bet and lost it.

That step led to others. He placed no bets himself, for the track had never attracted him. All was done through these "friends" as they were called. And the detectives believe that the men who placed his bets are the same who drank and talked with him a number of times in the Summit Hotel, Bowery and Canal Street, within the last few days. The detectives assert that in his confession he admitted that he had often lost as much as $1,000 in a single race-track bet, and that he has not a penny left of all that he appropriated.

Endemann had worked with the bank for seven years. Mr. Broesel thought he knew his business. Every one regarded him as a model teller. A couple of months ago Mr. Broesel told him this, and said that as a reward he was to take charge of the new branch.

On Tuesday, so the bank's counsel says, there came to the President of the Jefferson Bank one Steenwerth, a Brooklyn lawyer. He admitted, according to the bank's counsel, that Endemann was a defaulter, but proposed that if the young man were not prosecuted $15,000 would be returned. The bank's officers said that even if they could agree to compound a felony the company that had bonded Endemann would not.

So the detectives shadowed the lawyer, whose office is in Gates Avenue. McConville and Nelson, waiting near it yesterday morning, saw Endemann in front of 1,210 Gates Avenue and arrested him. The young man admitted that he was the man wanted.

BANKER IS MISSING.

Scores of Creditors Directed to Take Their Claims to the Italian Consulate.

Giovanni Savarese, an Italian banker, of 536 Ninth Avenue, has been missing since Monday evening, without a clue to his whereabouts. Yesterday his bank was closed, with a notice on the door directing all creditors to apply at the Italian Consulate, 226 Lafayette Street.

Although, according to Savarese's lawyer, the banker had frequently received threatening Black Hand letters demanding money, it is not believed by members of his family or by the police that this had any connection with his disappearance.

It is thought that Savarese, who had been worrying for several weeks about his business affairs, has gone away pending an adjustment of his accounts. Yesterday a committee of his creditors and a representative of the Italian Consulate took charge of the bank and the adjoining grocery, likewise owned by Savarese, and made an inventory. According to his lawyer, the assets on hand are amply sufficient to cover all his liabilities, and all creditors will be paid in full.

Irving Fox, lawyer, of 350 Broadway is acting for both Savarese and the creditors of the bank.

"An examination of his accounts," said Mr. Fox yesterday, "shows that there was no cause for Savarese's seeming uneasiness.

"For several years he had been receiving threatening Black Hand letters, demanding money. The latest came two weeks ago, when a demand was made on him for $5,000, under penalty of having his youngest daughter, Tessi, kidnapped if the money was not paid. He did not take the matter seriously, however. The late Lieut. Petrosino investigated several of the letters received by him, and once, in the guise of a street cleaner, stood by him while he 'planted' the money as ordered. But no one ever came for it."

Savarese is a Neapolitan by birth, and has been in New York twenty years. He is well-known in Italian circles, is a Mason, and President of the Societa Caracciolo. He has a wife and five children. At his home the impression seemed to be that he would return after his accounts had been straightened out, although some apprehension was expressed because of his disordered state.

No record of Savarese could be found at the Detective Bureau yesterday, nor at the headquarters of the Petrosino benefit fund, where a list of all the people with whom the late Lieutenant of detectives had dealings is kept. At the Italian Consulate it was said that Savarese had been investigated at one time, but no further information was given out.

TAFT TAX MESSAGE FAILS TO UNITE PARTY

Insurgent Senators Will Support His Revenue Plan, but Still Fight for Income Tax.

LEVY ON CORPORATIONS

President Estimates Income Will Be $25,000,000 a Year—Recommends Constitutional Amendment for States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President Taft sent his anticipated special message to Congress to-day, opposing the attempt to engraft an income tax provision on the pending Tariff bill, favoring the submission of a constitutional amendment covering an income tax, and strongly recommending the 2 per cent. tax on the net profits of corporations—except banks, insurance companies, and building and loan associations—which has been from the first his favorite of all the proposed schemes for raising revenue in addition to that furnished by the customs duties carried in the bill.

The message was received with mixed emotions, and it is probably true that it had no enthusiastic listeners on either side. It is recognized, however, as settling the fight for an income tax at this session.

Five progressive Republican Senators—Messrs. Borah, Bristow, Cummins, La Follette, and Clapp—conferred to-night to determine what their attitude was to be. They decided that the President's plan was not inconsistent with their demands for the adoption of an amendment taxing incomes, and that both might be adopted in harmony. They assumed that the President's plan was designed to "chloroform" the income tax amendment, but nevertheless announced that they will continue to fight for that idea.

Income Taxers' Statement.

In a brief statement prepared by Messrs. Borah and Bristow, the supporters of an income tax amendment say in part:

> The friends of the income tax feel it a duty to continue to put forth every effort to secure the adoption of the measure. They will therefore urge the adoption of the amendment. They also stand ready to support a resolution providing for an amendment to the Constitution of the United States. While they believe the Supreme Court will sustain the law, yet to provide against any possible contingency that may arise from an adverse decision they gladly favor the proposition to amend the Constitution.

A meeting of the Republican members of the Finance Committee was held to-night, but the President's message was not taken up formally. Both the income tax amendment to the Constitution and the excise tax on corporations are extremely hateful to Senator Aldrich and his group of high protectionists, and the genuine adherents of an income tax, both among the Republicans and the Democrats, see in the corporation tax merely a scheme to defeat their proposition, which, up to this time, put forward with the indorsement of President Taft, seemed in a fair way to go through.

Before sending in his message President Taft had a special meeting of the Cabinet there, attended by all the lawyers of his council and by Secretary MacVeagh. They went over the whole subject in detail, and it was not until they adjourned that the message was put into its final form.

The President's Message.

The text of the President's message is as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

It is the constitutional duty of the President from time to time to recommend to the consideration of the Congress such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. In my inaugural address, immediately preceding this present extraordinary session of the Congress, I invited attention to the necessity for a revision of the tariff at this session, and stated the principles upon which I thought the revision should be effected. I referred to the then rapidly increasing deficit and pointed out the obligation on the part of the framers of the Tariff bill to arrange the duty so as to secure an adequate income, and suggested that if it was not possible to do so by import duties, new kinds of taxation must be adopted, and among them I recommended a graduated inheritance tax as correct in principle and as certain and easy of collection.

The House of Representatives has adopted the suggestion and has provided in the bill it passed for the collection of such a tax. In the Senate the action of its Finance Committee and the course of the debate indicate that it may not agree to this provision, and it is now proposed to make up the deficit by the imposition of a general income tax in form and substance of almost exactly the same character as that which in the case of Pollock vs. Farmers' Loan and Trust Company (157 U. S., 429) was held by the Supreme Court to be a direct tax and therefore not within the power of the Federal Government to impose unless apportioned among the several States according to population. This new proposal, which I did not discuss in my inaugural address or in my message at the opening of the present session, makes it appropriate for me to submit to the Congress certain additional recommendations.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the income tax cases deprived the National Government of a power which, by reason of previous decisions of the court, it was generally supposed the Government had. It is undoubtedly a power the National Government ought to have. It might be indispensable to the Nation's life in great crises. Although I have not considered a Constitutional amendment as necessary to the exercise of certain phases of this power, a mature consideration has satisfied me that an amendment is the only proper course for its establishment to its full extent. I therefore recommend to the Congress that both houses, by two-thirds' vote, shall propose an amendment to the Constitution conferring the power to levy an income tax upon the National Government without apportionment among the States in proportion to population.

Remedy Defect by Amendment.

This course is much to be preferred to the one proposed of re-enacting a law once judicially declared to be unconstitutional. For the Congress to assume that the court will reverse itself, and to enact legislation on such an assumption, will not strengthen popular confidence in the stability of judicial construction of the Constitution. It is much wiser policy to accept the decision and remedy the defect by amendment in due and regular course.

Again, it is clear that by the enactment of the proposed law the Congress will not be bringing money into the Treasury to meet the present deficiency, but by putting on the statute book a law already there and never repealed will simply be suggesting to the executive officers of the Government their possible duty to invoke litigation. If the court should maintain its former view no tax would be collected at all. If it should ultimately reverse itself, still no taxes would have been collected until after protracted delay.

It is said the difficulty and delay in securing the approval of three-fourths of the States will destroy all chance of adopting the amendment. Of course no one can speak with certainty upon this point, but I have become convinced that a great majority of the people of this country are in favor of vesting the National Government with power to levy an income tax, and that they will secure the adoption of the amendment in the States if proposed to them.

Second, the decision in the Pollock case left power in the National Government to levy an excise tax which accomplishes the same purpose as a corporation income tax, and is free from certain objections urged to the proposed income tax measure.

I therefore recommend an amendment to the Tariff bill imposing upon all corporations and joint stock companies for profit, except National banks, (otherwise taxed,) savings banks, and building and loan associations, an excise tax measured by 2 per cent. on the net income of such corporations. This is an excise tax upon the privilege of doing business as an artificial entity and of freedom from a general partnership liability enjoyed by those who own the stock.

I am informed that a 2 per cent. tax of this character would bring into the Treasury of the United States not less than $25,000,000.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Spreckels Sugar Refining Company against McClain (192 U. S., 307) seems clearly to establish the principle that such a tax as this is an excise tax upon privilege, and not a direct tax on property, and is within the Federal power without apportionment according to population. The tax on net income is preferable to one proportionate to a percentage of the gross receipts, because it is a tax upon success and not failure. It imposes a burden at the source of the income at a time when the corporation is well able to pay and when collection is easy.

Must Exercise Federal Supervision.

Another merit of this tax is the Federal supervision, which must be exercised in order to make the law effective over the annual accounts and business transactions of all corporations. While the faculty of assuming a corporate form has been of the utmost utility in the business world, it is also true that substantially all of the abuses and all of the evils which have aroused the public to the necessity of reform were made possible by the use of this very faculty.

If now, by a perfectly legitimate and effective system of taxation, we are incidentally able to possess the Government and the stockholders and the public of the knowledge of the real business transactions and the gains and profits of every corporation in the country we have made a long step toward that supervisory control of corporations which may prevent a further abuse of power.

I recommend, therefore, first, the adoption of a joint resolution by two-thirds of both houses, proposing to the States an amendment to the Constitution granting to the Federal Government the right to levy and collect an income tax without apportionment among the States according to population; and, second, the enactment as part of the pending revenue measure, either as a substitute for or in addition to the inheritance tax, of an excise tax upon all corporations, measured by 2 per cent. of their net income.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Fight Heyburn's Recommendations.

Aside from the President's message and an assault on its recommendations by Senator Heyburn, an unwavering protectionist, the day in the Senate was devoid of interest, though considerable progress was made with the tariff bill. The Philippine provisions were adopted over Senator Root's protest against the low limit fixed on the free importation of Philippine cigars, the committee recommendations on zinc were adopted without a roll call, the revised silk schedule was adopted practically without opposition, and several amendments increasing duties on surface coated papers were reported without settlement.

LONDON TIMES DEAL WITH THE BOOK MEN

Told by the Latter from Their Point of View, Prior to the Change in Ownership.

DINNER WITH THE EDITOR

Chat with the Manager—Both "Good Heavy Men Whom It Takes Time to Push in Place," Wrote Hooper.

The view taken by the principals in the Encyclopaedia Brittanica publishing business, of their relations with The London Times, was brought out before Vice Chancellor Howell in Newark, N. J., yesterday at the renewed hearing of the suit brought by Walter M. Jackson of Newton, Mass., against Horace E. Hooper of London and others. Jackson is suing to establish the partnership which Hooper says did not exist in a legal sense. The English company publishing the encyclopaedia had an arrangement with The London Times by which its books were sold in conjunction with subscriptions to the paper. Recently, according to the testimony of Jackson and Hooper in this suit, they negotiated the sale of The Times to the syndicate formed by Lord Northcliffe.

Yesterday's hearing was made interesting by the reading by Sherman R. Whipple of Boston, counsel for Jackson, of extracts from letters which passed between Jackson here and Hooper in London. In a letter to Jackson, dated June 6, 1905, Hooper wrote

> I got your long letter of May 29, in regard to the book scheme. Before I got this, however, all matters had been arranged here, so your advice in regard to The Times scheme was useless. The state of the case is something like this: After a conference with Mr. Walter, chief owner of The Times, and Bell—Moberly Bell, manager, &c.—they wanted to go into the book scheme, were very enthusiastic over it, but they wanted the same guarantee that we had this year; that is, that their receipts should not go below £200,000.
>
> I told Mr. Bell last Friday that I'd think of it till Monday. On Monday I came in and said to him: "Look here, I have come downtown to this office and put my shoulder underneath you—and you are a good heavy man—and it takes me two or three weeks to push you around into a place. Then you and I have to push Mr. Walter into a place, and that takes a week or so. Then I have to go up to High Holborn and push my partner, Mr. W. M. Jackson, into a place, and then I have to go out and enthuse the public. Needless to say, Bell was scared out of his boots, and he turned and asked me what I wanted to arrange. I said that without waiting for you I would make the arrangement that we'd guarantee him that his receipts should not be below £200,000, but that any profit from the selling of books must come to us.

In a long letter, dated Sunday, May 11, 1904, Hooper wrote to his co-adventurer as Mr. Whipple referred to Jackson.

> In one of your letters to me you said that you wanted to start out with big advertising, because they were very weak-kneed at The Times. I want you to understand that they are not and have not been weak-kneed in any way, shape, or manner. I arrived on Thursday at 1 o'clock, and that same afternoon at 3 o'clock the enthusiasm in The Times office was as great as it ever has been since I have known them. They are all delighted and willing to do everything that I ask them. You can imagine how delighted they are when you look at this first page of The Times which I am sending you.
> I am taking dinner with the editor to-night to explain to him my wishes in regard to supplements. A financial supplement has been decided on; an engineering suppliment has been practically decided on, and I am now taking dinner with Buckle to explain to him how I want the sport supplement run. However, all joking aside, everything possible is being done by The Times office that we can possibly wish for. They are willing to let us say anything in our advertisements, do anything that we want, and make everything as we suggest.

The letter, Mr. Whipple said, went on to tell how Hooper had had Heath, "a very bright young Englishman," interview about fifty newsdealers, and that not one of them raised any objection to the scheme. The letter continued:

> They thought it was splendid. They'd do everything they could to further it, and all said that it would increase the circulation of The Times very largely, with two exceptions. These two, however, said it would hurt them, because the people to whom they now rented The Times or sent it away to in the afternoon for 2d., would then subscribe; in other words, their only criticism was that it would increase the circulation of The Times. They all offer to deliver anywhere from a mile to two miles away from their newsstands, and one man actually said seven miles.

Mr. Whipple then read an affidavit from Moberley Bell, stating that he regarded Jackson and Hooper as partners.

Henry W. Taft, brother of the President, who is one of the counsel in the case, will continue the argument to-day.

POLICE OPPOSE GOLDEN RULE.

Combat Kohler's Plan to Make Each Officer a Petty Magistrate.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 16.—Commotion was caused at the Police Chiefs' Convention to-day by the reading of a paper by Chief Fred Kohler of Cleveland, describing his "Golden Rule" system, and an effort by some of Kohler's admirers to have adopted a resolution indorsing that method of policing a city. For two hours the debate waxed warm, and some Chiefs asserted that Kohler was not born when his "Golden Rule" system was first practiced by policemen, while others intimated that the principal object of the system was to advertise Kohler.

It appeared from the speeches made that there would be nearly an even split for and against indorsing the Kohler scheme, and that bitterness would be engendered in the association if a vote was had, so the introducer withdrew it for harmony's sake.

A systematic inquiry extending over a considerable period convinced Chief Kohler that many of the first offenders were not so bad after all, and that most of them had committed their offense through thoughtlessness, natural passion, or in a spirit of frolic or mischief. Firm in the conviction that the policeman was the best judge and should be the final judge of first offenders, the Cleveland Chief set about to constitute every police officer a sort of magistrate who should pass upon minor offenses before bringing the offender before a formal court of justice.

The result, he said, had been to decrease the arrests two-thirds in a year's time. Against 30,418 arrests in 1907, there were only 10,085 in 1908.

A telegram was received from Commissioner Bingham of New York stating that he would be unable to attend this year's convention. A resolution was introduced to-day by Chief J. H. Haager of Louisville indorsing Commissioner Bingham's stand for the photographing of prisoners before conviction. It was referred to the Committee on Resolutions, and it is said probably will be reported out favorably.

PENROSE MEN NOMINATED.

Pennsylvania Republicans Name Senator Sisson for Auditor General.

HARRISBURG, Penn., June 16.—The Republican State Convention met here to-day and nominated the following ticket to be voted for in November:

Auditor General—State Senator Arthur E. Sisson of Erie.
State Treasurer—Former State Senator Jeremiah A. Stober of Lancaster.
Associate Justice of the Supreme Court—Judge Robert von Moschzisker of the Common Pleas Court, Philadelphia.

The candidates named were slated by the State organization of which United States Senator Penrose is the head.

The platform adopted declares that the Republican Party is fulfilling its promise to revise the tariff.

Trust Companies Increase Dividends.

The Standard Trust Company has announced a semi-annual dividend of 6 per cent., payable June 30 to stockholders of record on June 28. This is an increase from 10 per cent. to 12 per cent. per annum. The Empire Trust Company also announces a dividend at an increased rate. A semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent. will be paid on July 1 to stockholders of record on June 26, this being an increase of 2 per cent. in the annual rate.

SHERIFF ONLY HOST, SAYS CAPT. KUHNE

He Contends That the 30-Day Sentence Won't Put Him in a Criminal Cell.

PAPERS EXPECTED TO-DAY

Convicted Man Comments on the Art of Rogues' Gallery Photography—"Mugging," He Calls It.

Acting Capt. August Kuhne of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau felt most uncomfortable yesterday when he learned that there was a notion in the public mind that he was to be sent to a darksome cell in a common and vulgar prison for merely taking the John Y. McKane view of a Supreme Court order. That any one could for a moment entertain such an absurd idea quite astounded the Captain. His peevishness yielded to real indignation as the blithesome June day passed, and last night he had reached the conviction that he was the victim of an outrage.

"Me go into the coop!" exclaimed he with fine scorn. "What ridiculous ideas people can get into their heads! How can any one possibly view this little trouble as a criminal affair? I have committed no crime. All I did was to disobey an order of the Supreme Court. No coop for me. I'm going to be a guest of Sheriff Hobley for thirty days in the civil prison. My offense was not even a misdemeanor."

As the papers in the case had not arrived from Albany Capt. Kuhne enjoyed another day of liberty. Sheriff Hobley expects that they will reach Brooklyn to-day. He will then take the Captain into custody under the body attachment which has been in his hands ever since Justice Burr found him guilty of contempt of court for ignoring a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Frank Jenkins, the banker, whom Kuhne photographed and measured for the police records while the court order was in his hands.

It is believed that the Sheriff will not accept Kuhne as a civil prisoner, but turn him over to the Department of Corrections, which has charge of the criminal prisoners. As Robert M. Johnston, the Sheriff's counsel, views the law, Kuhne's offense is punishable with imprisonment in a criminal prison.

Capt. Kuhne was at the Detective Bureau yesterday attending to business, which included the photographing of several prisoners, but he found time to express his astonishment and indignation at the public view of his case. In the course of his talk he defended the gentle art of photography, particularly as affecting the case of Frank Jenkins.

"I have no money to pay the fine of $250," said Kuhne, "and I can't say whether it will be paid by Commissioner Bingham out of his own pocket or out of the city funds. The matter has not been discussed, so far as I know. I don't see how I can get out of going to jail. I have arranged for a thirty-days' leave of absence from the department. It will begin when I go to jail."

When asked if he would be photographed and measured for the police records, the captain didn't exhibit any yearning for a dose of his own medicine.

TALKS ON TEETH
BY
G. GORDON MARTIN, Inc.

New Teeth For Old People.

We put new teeth in old mouths every day in the week.

Good, strong, serviceable Martinolar teeth-without-plates, that enable the old people to chew food and keep the stomach in good shape.

Why should any man or woman spend the best years of their lives, the declining years, with a mouthful of plates, or painful, disfiguring "bridge," that is there for looks only, when, with no trouble, no pain, and no discomfort of any kind, they can get a perfect set of teeth that will be as solid as a rock in the mouth?

That's the question.

And the answer is, that we can't compel them to come and let us prescribe for them.

Many don't believe we can do anything for them, and the others are afraid they will have to undergo an operation to have the new teeth put in.

As a matter of fact, there is no pain or discomfort of any sort whatsoever in connection with this system of restoring missing teeth.

Indeed, it is so simple a plan that it is a wonder it was not discovered years before we patented it.

No cutting, no boring into the gums, nothing about the work that need be dreaded, and when the new teeth are in place, what a source of satisfaction the wearer experiences at meal time.

We don't say, "Now be careful when you eat," but "Use these teeth just as you would if they grew in your jaws."

There is but one condition we must have, and that is, two or more teeth left in either jaw.

Will you do us a favor?

Will you let us look your mouth over? You won't obligate yourself to spend a penny by doing so.

We must see the condition of the mouth before we can promise anything, and if we say we can put Martinolar teeth in successfully after this examination, you can safely allow us to go ahead, for a positive guarantee is back of all work we do.

Send to-day for our free 40-page book. It gives full particulars.

MORGAN FIRMS DENY LISTING HAS FAILED

Negotiations in Paris Regarding United States Steel Still Going On, They Say.

POLITICS BLAMED FOR HITCH

French Steel Manufacturers Oppose Any Concession to America While Tariff Bill Is Pending.

PARIS, June 16.—Morgan, Harjes & Co. deny emphatically that the project to list the common shares of the United States Steel Corporation on the Paris Bourse has fallen through. The firm issued the following statement to-day:

"The reports published in the morning papers of Paris relative to the legal and technical difficulties in the way of the accomplishment of this project are erroneous. The delicate negotiations which the new, special features of the operation involve, although of necessity slow, are proceeding as satisfactorily as could be expected under the circumstances."

The Temps says it learns, from a reliable source, that the report that the listing of Steel common on the Bourse was opposed on principle by the fiscal authorities and has been abandoned, is inexact.

"The matter, which, it is true, presents considerable technical difficulty," the Temps says, "has not yet been solved, but we believe—we know—that it is being examined in competent quarters with a desire to reach a formula which, if adopted, will henceforth render easier the introduction of foreign securities in France. These negotiations, we are assured, are proceeding at the present time."

Since the fact became known that negotiations were being carried on the campaign against the listing of Steel common has grown steadily more formidable. Certain papers denounced what they termed the proposed "raid" upon French savings, and severely censured the Government for making any concessions to the United States while the hostile American tariff was pending.

French steel interests took up arms and lodged protests, and it is believed that hostile financial interests helped along the opposition by raising every possible technical objection, especially in the Bureau of Registration, where it was contended subscription could not legally be made by a third party, such as the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, for the introduction of changeable certificates, because when these were exchanged for steel shares it would be tantamount to the introduction of steel stocks without subscription.

The net result of the campaign, besides raising every possible complication, has been to cause the fiscal authorities, who were favorably disposed to the listing of Steel common, to retard their decision in order to examine and weigh the objections. The negotiations, consequently, are likely to be considerably prolonged.

Confidence that the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation will eventually be admitted to listing on the Paris Bourse was expressed at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. in this city yesterday. It was said that, while there might be some further delay, no doubt of a successful outcome was felt.

Politics, it was said, had much to do with the more recent opposition to placing the stock on the Paris market, and it was intimated that this came chiefly from French steel manufacturers, who are said to be watching the tariff situation in America and to be fearful of an American invasion of their market.

"We are still in the midst of negotiations," said a representative of J. P. Morgan & Co., "but we look for an early consummation."

Chairman E. H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation said yesterday that he knew little about the matter of listing the Steel Corporation's shares on the Paris Bourse, but he understood that the negotiations were progressing favorably. Elsewhere it was said that hope of getting the Steel stock on the Bourse had by no means been abandoned, as the opposition which has been encountered may be overcome.

The Steel Corporation, while it has not joined in the application to have its stock listed in Paris, will take any proper steps, it was said in responsible quarters, that may be necessary to gain that end.

Ferdinand Dupont of Dupont & Furland of Paris, who carried on the negotiations which led to the admission of United States Rubber and Utah Copper to the Coulisse, said yesterday that he felt sure that other American issues would be quoted in Paris in the future, although the delay in listing United States Steel might cause the postponement for a while of further efforts in this direction. In time, he said, the Harriman stocks, Southern and Union Pacific, were pretty sure to be listed in Paris.

M. Dupont has been here for the last two months, and expects to return to Paris in ten days. His visit here, he said, was largely to make a personal survey of the recovery in business in the United States. French investors and bankers were rather doubtful, he said, about the soundness of the recovery in America, but his observations have convinced him of the favorable position of business in this country.

JAPAN TO MOVE SLOWLY.

Awaits Details Before Acting on Complaint from Hawaii.

HONOLULU, June 16.—No reply has been received by the Japanese strikers here to the cabled appeal which the arrested editor of the Jiji made to Ambassador Takahira at Washington. The appeal asserted that the authorities entered the office of the newspaper without due process of law, and thereby violated the treaty rights of the four editors now under arrest. A letter to Mr. Takahira setting forth the steps taken by the Higher Wage Association and reciting the acts of the authorities complained of in their called appeal to the Ambassador will be sent by the Alameda to-morrow.

A demand made by Attorney Joseph Lightfoot for the return of the books and papers seized in the offices of the Jiji newspaper and the Higher Wage Association was refused by the Government, which will hold them as evidence. An attempt will now be made to secure their possession by means of a replevin suit, which is in preparation.

A movement to act independently of the leader Makino has been started among the strikers of different clans. Two thousand strikebreakers, the largest number yet employed, are now at work, and small groups of Japanese are returning to their former places.

It is alleged that many Japanese are buying revolvers with the avowed purpose of resisting what they term unauthorized seizures. Some whites are also arming.

In response to appeals cabled to the Japanese of San Francisco and Seattle replies have been received by the strike leaders promising financial and moral support. All of the messages said that subscriptions have been started.

The strike leaders declare that the arrests have solidified the sentiment of the strikers and the whole Japanese community. The Japanese retail merchants' association has reconsidered its resolution favoring a return to work, and now favors the prosecution of the strike.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Following by a few hours the appeal of Japanese strike leaders in Hawaii to Ambassador Takahira at Washington, a dispatch was received at the embassy to-day from the Japanese Consul General stationed there expressing the belief that the strike would soon be settled.

At the embassy it was stated that no action would be taken until more facts are learned. It is believed that the embassy will await the action of the Hawaiian court as to the arrest of the newspaper men before reaching a conclusion as to whether the situation requires diplomatic representation to this Government.

---

TOKIO, June 16.—The Foreign Office has received no appeal from Hawaii in the matter of the alleged violation of treaty rights said to have been sustained by a Japanese subject, and the Japanese Consul at Honolulu reports that the strike situation in the islands is not serious.

BUELOW NOT TO RESIGN.

Says He Will Remain Chancellor While His Services Are Useful.

BERLIN, June 16.—Chancellor Von Buelow, speaking in the Reichstag to-day on financial reform, attacked in his most sarcastic manner the tactics employed by the Clerical Party against him. They had even dared, he said, to accuse him of disloyalty to the Emperor and infidelity to the Austro-German alliance, and they had considered it necessary to sever their social relations with him.

The Chancellor, after a rapid sketch of the Government's financial programme, referred to rumors whether or not he would retain the Chancellorship.

"I will remain," he declared, "so long as the Emperor believes that my cooperation in the internal and external policies of the Government is useful to the empire, and so long as my own political convictions and my own judgment of the political situation make me believe that I can be useful. I know no question in the field of internal politics equal in importance to that of the rapid adjustment of the financial situation, and to this great task I devote myself completely."

The Chancellor declared also that, when he believed a successor could more easily attain the aims of the imperial policy, or when circumstances should make his co-operation unnecessary, he would convince the crown that he should retire from office.

POPE JOKES WITH FARLEY.

Asks Archbishop About Ball Game in Which He Got "Glass Arm."

ROME, June 16.—Archbishop Farley of New York, the Right Rev. Michael J. Hoban, Bishop of Scranton, and Bishop Maurice F. Burke of St. Joseph, Mo., were received in private audience by the Pope to-day.

Archbishop Farley's audience lasted for half an hour, and he thanked the Pope for the interest taken in the golden jubilee of the American College. In a joking tone the Pope said to the Archbishop:

"I have been told that yesterday you went out to Castel Gandolfo and played baseball."

The Archbishop replied: "Yes, your Holiness; I pitched the first ball. It was the first game to be played at Castel Gandolfo, and I wanted it to be inaugurated by one of the oldest of the alumni." He added that the unaccustomed exertion had given him a "glass arm."

The Pope then wanted to know how Mgr. Kennedy had played, saying that as rector of the American College he was fatherly but firm.

AMERICA TO SHARE IN CHINESE LOAN

Foreign Bankers Withdraw Their Opposition to Reopening Railroad Mortgage Matter.

NEW DEMANDS TO BE MADE

United States Will Insist on Share in Furnishing Supplies and Engineers —American for Pei-Ho Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The United States is to be permitted to participate in the Chinese loan of $27,500,000, which is to be expended in the construction of the proposed Hangkow-Sze-Chuen Railroad. Word to this effect was received at the State Department to-day. In addition, the department learned that the Chinese Government has decided to appoint an American Government engineer to the Conservancy Board at Tien Tsien, which is engaged in improving the Pei-Ho River. Both dispatches were received with the deepest satisfaction as indicating that American interests are to be advanced in the Far East.

The announcement that American participation in the loan would be allowed came from the American Legation in Peking. Dispatches from the embassies in London, Berlin, and Paris also announced that the opposition to financial houses in the United States taking part of the loan had been withdrawn and that the negotiations would be conducted along different lines.

Just how much of the loan will be given to American bankers is, of course, not yet known. This Government, however, will insist that they receive a proportionate amount, and in the negotiations that will follow between the bankers of the four nations additional demands will be made. Among these will be that not less than one-fourth of the foreign engineers engaged for the construction of the railroad shall be Americans and that in the purchase of machinery and supplies this country receive its proportionate share of the business.

The State Department took immediate action when it learned more than a month ago that the Chinese Government was about to conclude an agreement for a heavy loan with European bankers. Representations to the foreign offices of Great Britain, Germany, and France are said to have brought replies that the Governments, aside from that of China, were not interested in the matter, and that the negotiations were being carried on between Peking on the one hand and private bankers on the other.

The department then took the matter up with China through the American Legation in Peking. A strong statement of the case was made in protest against the ratification of any agreement looking to a loan that would exclude American bankers. The attention of the Chinese Government was called to the Chinese-American agreement of 1904, in which the Peking Government pledged itself not to float any loans in the future without permitting American and British bankers to share in them.

As a result of these representations the Chinese Government announced yesterday that it could not sign the agreement. This declaration was followed to-day by the capitulation of the British, German, and French financial institutions, and the announcement that the financial syndicate formed in this country for the purpose of taking over part of the loan might share in it. The syndicate is composed of J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the City National Bank, and the First National Bank of New York City.

The State Department's activities in compelling China to live up to its agreement of 1904 were for the purpose of aiding the bankers named to take up part of the loan, and to prevent other nations from gaining dominant positions in China because of their financial interests. This Government is putting forward every effort to increase the prestige of America in the Far East. To that end it has strengthened the consular service, and it is for the same reason that the selection of a successor to Minister Rockhill at Peking is being made with so much care.

Scarcely less pleasing to this Government was the announcement from Peking that China had decided on the appointment of W. P. Stewart, a civil engineer connected with the United States Engineer's office in Memphis, to be assistant engineer on the Pei-Ho Conservancy Board. This is regarded as another favorable step in the promotion of American interests in China, and through the instrumentality of Mr. Stewart it is expected that there will be a greatly increased demand for American machinery and material, toward which the Chinese are really favorably disposed.

The improvements being made to the Pei-Ho River are of vast importance to both Chinese and foreign commercial interests. The undertaking is a great one and contemplates the canalization of the river for a distance of fifty miles. Tien Tsien, which is the port of Peking, is that distance from the sea, and the present water approaches are very unsatisfactory.

RUSSIA BEGINS DREADNOUGHTS

Keels of Four Great Battleships Laid in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 16.—The keels of four battleships of the "Greater Dreadnought" type were laid this morning in St. Petersburg in the presence of the Vice Minister of Marine, the foreign naval attachés, and representatives of the Russian Naval League.

Two of the vessels will be constructed at the Galernaia Yards and two at the Baltic Works. They will be of 23,000 tons each, length 608 feet and beam 82 feet. They will have a speed of 20 knots an hour and the main batteries will consist of ten 12-inch guns. A special nickel steel will be used in the hull.

It is estimated that it will take three years to construct these vessels. The Admiralty has decided not to make any changes during construction. The four vessels will form the first squadron of the new Baltic fleet and will be named Petropavlovsk, Sebastopol, Poltava, and Gangut.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

AMOY, June 16.—The clan fights in the Heuwah district, north of Amoy, continue. A number of Moelim villagers recently captured a junk with a crew of Chimboh villagers on board and killed nine of them. The remainder escaped overboard. Two of the Moelim men were killed.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 16.—Simeon Lake has arrived here from Bridgeport, Conn., to supervise the trials of four large submarines of his design.

SAN DOMINGO, June 16.—The Government acquired the wharf concession at Macoris today, and a friendly settlement with the owners is pending. The wharf concessions at San Domingo, Barahona, Azua, and Puerto Plata were acquired recently, and the Government purposes making one tariff at all of these ports.

The 1909 Series of Macy's Old-Fashioned Sales

June in New York! Do you feel it as you read these words? If you don't maybe it's because you are not lucky enough to unfold your morning paper in the metropolis.

It almost seems that we have a special sun, a special sky and special breezes given us to make June ideal.

The store is in full sympathy with the season, and we could write largely about the pleasure and economy of shopping at Macy's during the ripe month that is youth incarnate.

The Series of Old-Fashioned Sales is simply an expression of our progress and power. We concentrate on a particular trade event to illustrate sharply and directly that which is nothing more than the daily routine of the business. We never cease in our efforts to offer bargains. Tireless energy of this sort has been the promoting influence here fifty-one years.

Our advertising is one of the nerves of the store that conveys news which is watched for and read because it is weighted with descriptions and prices that convince all who from principle or necessity incline toward thrift.

Right now you are in the midst of opportunities. The signs are patent. Therefore you should balance probabilities and decide on the purchases suitable to meet them. Make a tour of the store. Study the goods and the prices. Practically everything you may want is here. Things for the person, the home, the yacht, the automobile, the stable, the garden—anything from a dainty gown to the rude articles with which to equip a camp for the roughing life.

And if you can't come, our Catalogue and Mail Order Departments are at your service.

MR. TAFT'S CORPORATION TAX.

Although he is a man without guile and void of craftiness, President Taft has set in the path and in the sight of Senator Aldrich a terrible trap into which we should not suppose that cautious statesman would knowingly set his foot. The 2 per cent. tax upon the net income of corporations which the President recommended in his special message yesterday would be, if enacted, a formidable blow at the protective tariff. While Mr. Taft makes it clear that the revenue feature of the tax is of primary importance, he sets high value upon the power of inquisition and control with which it would vest the Federal Government in respect to the corporations.

What that is new to the Government and interesting to the people would be disclosed by the tax? The great profits of the tariff-protected corporations, of course. The profits of railroad companies are already made known in sworn statements submitted to State officers and published. Most other corporations affected with a public interest, as the Judges say, publish annual statements. It happens that the Steel Corporation lets the people know the details of its business. But of the volume of business done and the profits gathered in by the great mass of corporations that enjoy Governmental bounty in the form of protection the people know nothing.

The disclosures incidental to the collection of this admittedly inquisitorial tax would be read by the people, first, with curiosity, second, with a resolve to remove protective duties where the balance sheet shows them to be no longer required. Mr. Schwab once testified that in one year the Carnegie Steel Company made $41,000,000 profit. Such interesting items as that would be made known as an incident of Mr. Taft's new tax policy. Though Mr. Aldrich and his standpatters were ten times as resolute as they are now, even though they were more numerous, they would be unable to resist the popular demand for striking off of duties that make possible earnings so grossly disproportionate to the average gains to the people.

Is that what Mr. Taft means by getting control over the corporations? If so, we cannot easily believe that he will not find Senator Aldrich in a co-operating temper. But it is only as a powerful lever for toppling over the tariff wall that we are able to find merit in the 2 per cent. tax on corporation net incomes. Under any theory of just and equitable taxation there is no reason why corporation earnings should be taxed and partnership earnings, farm earnings, great individual earnings should go untaxed. Mr. Taft says that it is an "excise tax" that he proposes, a tax "upon the privilege of doing business as an artificial entity, and of freedom from the general partnership liability of those who own the stock." That privilege is worth something, and is already taxed by the States which create the corporations. That raises a question of some moment. The Federal Government does not create corporations. Is it within its power to tax privileges which it does not confer?

The President is informed that the tax will yield $25,000,000 of revenue. Stamp taxes such as were imposed in the year of the war with Spain would now yield double that revenue, they would not be burdensome, they would not be complained of, they impose a form of taxation that is employed by most other nations, the fruits of the impost would be easily and cheaply collected. As we have already pointed out, this tax, however, lacks the merit of harassing the corporations, and so, it seems, it would not be popular. The President recommends, also, the submission to the States of an amendment removing the Constitutional obstacle to the imposition of an income tax. The adverse votes of twelve States would defeat the amendment. Possibly twelve States would not vote against it; in that case, a much controverted question would be settled once for all, and the Populists of the South and West who would be delighted to have a great part, or perhaps all, of the expenses of the Federal Government paid out of Eastern incomes, would rejoice.

A MATTER OF VOTES.

Mr. Taft had 326 Electoral votes to Mr. Bryan's 157, a majority of 169, a ratio of more than two to one. That looks like a safe superiority for the Republican vote.

Mr. Taft received 62 votes from the States of Iowa, Minnesota, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Kansas. Senators from all these States are opposing the policy of the majority as to the tariff on the ground that it betrays the promises they made in the campaign. If their people should take the same view, the Republicans might lose and the Democrats gain these 62 votes, reducing the majority in the Electoral Colleges to 45. Suppose Illinois, with 27 votes, or Ohio, with 26, should join the five States named, what would become of the Republican superiority?

REFORMING THE TRADING EXCHANGES.

Gov. Hughes's so-called Stock Exchange Commission—which has studied all the mercantile Exchanges with a view to their reformation—has done well. First, it has produced a unanimous report, thus disappointing expectation of many. Secondly, it has produced a report of a quality which ought to exercise a beneficial effect upon the disturbed or even inflamed state of the public mind on this contentious question, which is as ancient in principle as the beginnings of bargaining between men, and which is hardly at all advanced toward final settlement anywhere. London itself has just been having trouble with its Stock Exchange. Berlin is dissatisfied with its adjustment of recent troubles, and Paris is far from being a Garden of Eden for dealers in securities. It may be doubted whether with all our faults we had anything especially to be ashamed of, and perhaps action according to the recommendations of the Commission may give us just cause for pride.

The Commission's report is far from whitewashing any of the Exchanges. The Mercantile and Metal Exchanges are censured, and the repeal of their charters recommended. The quotations which they provide represent, according to the Commission, no actual market, but mere declarations of prices which the buyers would be glad to impose on sellers. The Consolidated Exchange is criticised as not fulfilling the function of providing capital for promotion of industry, and as affording facilities for speculation of the most injurious form, that which attracts persons of small means. The Produce Exchange is condemned for wandering from its familiar and appropriate business to encourage dealings in mining stocks of a character which should not be tolerated, and the curb market falls under like censure.

These are not gentle words, and the passages regarding the Stock Exchange are moderate in language rather than in thought. The responsibility for amending whatever needs amendment is laid at the doors of the Exchange itself, and it is declared to be its duty to do what it is useless to seek to do by statute. The Commission has no illusions regarding the practicability of separating transactions of exactly similar form into classes, some of which might be allowed and others forbidden. Gambling, speculation, and investment are distinguished, and wholesome advice given to the inexpert, who of course will have none of it. They are warned of the plots laid to separate them from their money, and a deserved word of praise is given to newspapers which turn away good money by censoring their advertisements. The Commission does not think it desirable to check short selling, for reasons too familiar to repeat here but which are recommended for study, but it does make a suggestion for restricting excessive manipulation for the rise by requiring that all bidders for more than 100-share units shall be required to accept all offers in that unit. This would make matched orders more difficult.

Such matters, it is clear, are subjects of Exchange regulation. The same is true of another recommendation—that 20 per cent. margins should be required. Pyramiding might be checked by taking stocks at an average price through a considerable period, rather than at the price of the day as the market rose. Corners might be mitigated by the Exchange taking power to declare when they existed, and naming a settling price. The books of Exchange members should be accessible for the enforcement of discipline, their failures should be regulated, and a statute is recommended making it larceny for brokers to sell customers' securities. Another statute is recommended allowing customers to recover triple damages in case transactions reported are not bona fide.

These are the chief if not the only statutes recommended, and they are small matters indeed compared with reforming the Exchange off the earth, as the root and branch reformers desire. The principle upon which the report seems to be formulated is that good and bad practice are best settled by the usage of the trade, which adjusts itself constantly, and is always in accordance with the sentiment of the time. Market customs and conditions vary together and so delicately that it is impossible to embody them in a law, which would forthwith get out of adjustment even if well draughted in the first place. Moreover, a statute is a rule of the game, and it is not fair to blame anybody who plays according to rule, and thereby is excused for acts which might be indefensible but for some unforeseen application of phraseology contrary to the draughtsman's intentions. Doubtless the report will be unsatisfactory to insatiate reformers. Nevertheless, it is worthy of the gentlemen who have signed it, and that is saying much.

FLEECING THE FILIPINOS.

Senator Root made a very earnest plea for simple justice to the people of the Philippines on Tuesday. It was in connection with an amendment accepted by the Finance Committee limiting the number of cigars that may be imported from the Islands. The maximum was cut down by this amendment from 150,000,000 to 70,000,000. In the course of his remarks he said:

> We are proposing to send our products into their ports free of duty. In return we are proposing to admit free their products, but with a limitation upon their great products—sugar and tobacco—at a point which, in the judgment of the House, will not injure the sugar or tobacco industries of this country. Now we are proposing to cut that in half as far as tobacco is concerned. Why don't we go further and take their free market and put a duty on all their products imported into this country?
> I am not willing to vote for a bill that denies aid to this helpless people, and I will vote against reducing the amount of free cigars from the Islands, no matter what the Senator from Wisconsin may say, and no matter if all the committees of the Senate are in favor of it.

It is a noteworthy fact that all the intelligent men who, in executive or administrative posts, have had to deal with the Philippines, have had responsibility for the policy of our Government regarding them, and ample opportunity to get accurate and adequate information, strongly urge justice for them and agree as to what justice demands. Mr. Root, next to President Taft himself, is in a position most thoroughly to understand the needs and the rights of the Islands. If the policy of the United States could be left to them and to the able and devoted officers who have had charge of the administration of the affairs of the Philippines, there would be no difficulty and little delay in fixing that policy and applying it. Mr. Root defined its general nature:

> The good faith, the good name, the honor of the American people are all pledged to lead the people of the Islands by the paths of growing prosperity and capacity for government to the point where they will be capable of supporting and governing themselves.
> We cannot fulfill that high duty by giving them money, as the Senator from Nevada would have us do. Gifts of money do not conduce to the independence of individual character. We cannot fulfill that duty by making the Islands unsuccessful in business, by retarding and confining their industries. We can fulfill it only by giving to them the opportunities to grow in the building up of national pride and national power, to grow in the accumulation of property and in the diffusion of wealth lying at the foundation of civilization.

That is what the successive Presidents of the United States—McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft—have constantly urged, and, so far as lay in their power, have tried to bring about. The military and the civil authorities in the Islands have been in sympathy with the Executive, and have admirably and loyally seconded its efforts. But in Congress the petty interests of locality and of special classes in the United States have always been put ahead of the rights of the islanders and the duties of our own Government. The notion that our great industries, with all the advantages they enjoy, cannot compete with their rivals the world over is at best cowardly and puerile. It suggests a strong adult pleading the baby act and whining for a nurse to take care of him. But in its bearing on the duty of a great Nation toward a weak and backward people of whom it has assumed control by force of arms, the notion is as mean as it is cowardly. The tobacco industry of the United States turns out every year something like 8,000,000,000 of cigar. It was proposed by the House Tariff bill to admit from the Philippines a pitiful 150,000,000 of native-made cigars untaxed, or less than 2 per cent. of the domestic output. And this the Finance Committee, urged by the home cigarmakers, have cut down to 70,000,000, or to nine-tenths of 1 per cent. In a home market consuming 8,000,000,000 of cigars they are afraid of competition to the extent of nine cigars in a thousand.

Of course in this miserable opposition to decent treatment of a subject race the tobacco men have the support of the sugar men. The trust that owns to filching $2,000,000 from the United States Treasury by false weights, and settles a civil suit by paying millions to atone for acts prima facie in violation of the criminal law, may be expected ruthlessly to press legislation that will swell its profits at the expense of the helpless Filipinos. Take it all in all, it is a nasty business.

THE PRINCESS MARIE MELON.

A dainty watermelon from the Carpathian Mountains, thin-skinned, its flesh red and amber, and no larger than a grapefruit, has been contributed to the dessert tables of his countrymen by Mr. Horace G. Knowles, lately Minister to Roumania, and has been named by him after the Crown Princess Marie of that realm. This fruit, not the monstrous watermelon of Georgia, may enter that rare company described by Henley in his "Ballade Made in Hot Weather":

> Of ice and glass the tinkle,
> Pellucid, silver-shrill;
> Peaches without a wrinkle;
> Cherries and snow at will,
> From china bowls that fill
> The senses with a sweet
> Incuriousness of heat;
> A melon's dripping shreds;
> Cream-clotted strawberries;
> Dusk dairies set with curds—
> To live, I think of these!

The Princess Marie melon will be small enough to cut delicately with a silver instrument upon fine china. Its successful propagation at the Government experiment stations last year, and in practically every climate, assures its future rivalry with the Rocky Ford muskmelon. The crop is in the care of Mr. David Fairchild, the "plant acclimatizer" of the Government at Washington, and the seed of the second generation is to be made commercially fruitful. The melons will be placed on exclusive boards in this city and Philadelphia during the season; in another year diners at hotels, clubs, and good restaurants may taste them generously. If half that is said of it is true, Minister Knowles could not have served the United States better than by thus appreciating, and appropriating, a fruit of the country to which he was accredited.

A fairly good workman, in good times, in this country, can earn for ten hours of labor about as much as the gentleman whose wife is suing him for abandonment draws from the income of his inheritance from his father every minute of the twenty-four hours, sleeping or waking. This calculation is not suited to abate the demand for heavy succession taxes, or a tax on income. It must, however, be remembered that the wage of the laborer is probably twice the daily income of this gentleman's father when he first peddled tinware in the country districts of New York.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Full Deserts Within Her Reach. A correspondent whose letter we printed yesterday presented what he considered the hard case of a trained nurse who has discovered a remedy by which typhoid fever can be cured in three days and finds difficulty in so bringing it into use that it may benefit at once humanity and herself, "for she deserves some reward." And the writer asserted that the chief obstacle in the way of achieving this double-barreled result was a disinclination of doctors, on and off Health Boards, to assist in the introduction of any treatment that would diminish professional fees!

Assuming, for the sake of argument—and it is an assumption both extremely large and extremely rash—that such a discovery has been made by such a person, the only advice to be given her is that she observe the most fundamental of her professional obligations, and, without a thought of self-interest, make freely public every detail as to the composition and administration of her remedy. That is what any doctor, even moderately scrupulous in observing medical ethics, would do, and what would be done by any nurse who viewed herself as something different from and higher than a more or less skilled servant hired to perform sick-room drudgery.

Of course she "deserves some reward," but the reward she deserves is the consciousness of duty unselfishly done, of conferring a benefit upon suffering humanity, of advancing medical science, and not the reward that might come from the shrewd and ruthless exploitation of a secret or proprietary cure. It is only in following the latter course, fortunately, that success would depend upon large preliminary expenditures. The right and decent procedure will cost her nothing—nothing, that is, except a slow, hard fight against the caution and incredulity which every reformer and innovator has to encounter. This antagonism, often excessive, often unintelligent, and sometimes cruel, is yet on the whole a good thing, and it is never fatal to truth.

The charge that doctors as a class, in considering new remedies, are influenced to reject them through fear of their effect on fees, is equally absurd and unjust. The constantly and rapidly increasing importance of preventive, as compared with curative, medicine is a sufficient answer to that accusation. As a matter of fact, neither kind, no matter how successful, will ever diminish the doctor's income, for until death is banished from the world there will always be work enough for him to do.

A Flutter Among the Colleges. Whatever may be said or thought about the tact and discretion exemplified in making public the views of the men connected with the Carnegie Foundation as to admission of students at this, that, and the other college, it is already evident that the sensation will be short lived, and that only institutions deserving of criticism will feel any deep resentment at the disclosures made.

The nub of the controversy, so far as it has one, seems to be the system of mitigating nominal entrance requirements by a temporary ignoring of deficiencies in one or more studies. This "conditioning," as it is called, exists, and always has existed, at all seats of learning, big and little, and is a practice justified by common sense and experience. That it can be, and sometimes has been and is, carried too far, and so turned into an evil and a dishonesty, is true, but that possibility enforces no condemnation of its legitimate use. And legitimacy is not altogether determined by the number of conditioned matriculations. Much more important is the question whether continuance in college is dependent on the making up of the conditions, and statistics on that point would be more significant than are those which have as yet been given out.

Until preparatory schools are more accurately standardized than now there will continue to appear at the doors of colleges boys who, while mentally qualified to profit by higher instruction, have not followed all the courses of study demanded. In such cases a reasonable number of conditions is entirely proper. It is only when the conditions are used as a device for secretly lowering the advertised requirements for admission that the plan becomes an abuse worthy of censure and punishment. As a matter of fact, eligibility for collegiate instruction ought to be more a matter of mental capacity than of mind content, and the ideal entrance examination would show the former rather than the latter. Unfortunately the ideal examination is as yet a dream of hope, and it is still necessary to discover what the boys know, instead of what they can learn.

Meanwhile, the colleges that have consented to accept Mr. Carnegie's alms should accept as gracefully as they can their own "conditioned" status and endure submissively the oversight and admonitions of Mr. Carnegie's representatives. Both can be avoided easily enough by refusing the alms.

A Shock for Politicians. President Delano of the Wabash Railroad declines to accept the Chinese mission for the unfamiliar reason that, while he is modestly sure of his competency where he is, there is nothing in his experience to warrant the belief that he would be a success as a diplomat at a difficult and delicate post.

This argument is not only unfamiliar; it is shockingly un-American. At any rate, it will seem so to all politicians, since it directly contradicts their dearest assumption, which is that the one qualification needed for a diplomatic career is the ability to get an appointment as Minister. It cannot be denied that the politicians are more or less justified of their faith by the far from inconsiderable number of cases in which this method of selection has worked either brilliantly or more than fairly well. More and more people, however, are coming to be of President Delano's opinion, that potential efficiency as a diplomat is not quite proved by demonstrated efficiency in business, journalism, education, or even partisan politics.

That we have done so much with untrained Ambassadors doesn't indicate that we couldn't have done more with trained ones, or that a certain regard for relevancy would not be a good thing.

UNTERMYER FOR MAYOR.

Thinks He Could Cope Successfully with Present Problems.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is doubtful whether there ever was a time when the City of New York required the strongest kind of personality for Mayor more than now, and the greatest care should be taken to secure a man who is able and willing to assume the burdens of the administration, and who possesses the necessary qualifications to insure an honest and capable Government.

I respectfully suggest that, if he can be prevailed upon to accept the position, there are few men better qualified to fill it than Samuel Untermyer. He is a man possessed of extraordinary executive ability; a lawyer of renown; a successful business man, who is constantly coping with difficult and intricate problems. His mind is peculiarly qualified to handle the situation now confronting the citizens of this city.

Mr. Untermyer's character is beyond question. He occupies the highest possible position in the estimation of his fellow-citizens, and he would command the respect of everybody. He is a regular organization man, and therefore should commend himself to the Democratic Party. All independent citizens should be glad to unite on him. He would undoubtedly bring to bear all his extraordinary abilities, obtained from a long and successful legal and business training, for the benefit of the city, and if he can be persuaded to accept the nomination and assume the burdens of the office, the citizens of the City of New York will have every reason to congratulate themselves.

THE BRITISH LINERS.

Why Are They Christened with Other Than British Names?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial in Sunday's issue on the names given to the warships of various nations suggests a question on a similar subject. Why are the English transatlantic liners the only ones which do not bear names belonging to their country?

Though many of the ships of other European lines have American names, in recognition, no doubt, of the large American patronage which they enjoy, most of them show on their bows words suggestive of the lands from which they hail. These speak for themselves: New York, St. Louis, Philadelphia, St. Paul, Bluecher, Waldersee, Cecilie, Kaiser Wilhelm, R. d'Italia, Helig Olav, Oscar II., &c. But what indication do these give of the country of their origin: Arabic, Teutonic, Majestic, Mauretania, Lusitania, Pannonia? It would seem as if their owners had searched the whole world, ancient and modern, in their zeal to avoid using an English name. The only ships I can think of which one might guess to be British are the Caledonia and Furnessia (belonging to a Scotch company) and the Canadian Empress of Ireland and Empress of Britain. The two latter titles (which are absurd, being borne by no potentate) were used only when the field of Oriental empires had become exhausted.

Are the English getting ashamed of their country, or is it so unpopular that English names would mean shorter passenger lists?

MR. CRIMMINS'S PLAN.

Recommends Covering Central Park's Reservoir with Playgrounds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a time when so many attacks are being made upon the integrity of Central Park in an attempt to divert parts of it from the one proper use to which it was originally dedicated, viz., to serve as a playground and recreation centre for our entire population, it is refreshing to find outlined in the columns of your issue of yesterday a thoroughly feasible and practical plan to increase and enlarge the usefulness of the Park as a playground for our little ones.

Mr. Crimmins's proposal to roof the lower reservoir has much to commend it, and as far as I can see there are no valid objections that can be urged against it. It will create a veritable children's paradise, where the present and future generation of city young folk will have facilities now denied them for the enjoyment of every kind and character of healthy sport.

The Times, which has stood flint-faced against any diversion of the Park from its proper purpose, does well in bringing forward this plan which, if consummated, will mean so much to the health and happiness of future New Yorkers.

LEAVING NEW YORK.

As out of the dock with waving of white and roar of whistle the steamer drew,
That sky line rose in the evening height with a splendor piercing the spirit through—
West was the sun and east those towers, those towers glorious and serene—
The mightiest hint of human powers that ever the groping world has seen,

Round the lower city we steamed and up and under the bridges rolled—
Over the city's shoulder streamed the sunset in a glory of gold—
The man-black ferry, the smoke-plumes curled over the chimneys, the tugs a-steal,
All were rich in a human world vast and busy and marvelous real.

Backs of tenements flaunted a trimming of wash lines, babies, and homes bared blunt,
Naked boys were diving and swimming along the blackened water front,
Mighty factories stood in a splendor of chimneying smoke and golden river,
Street went by and in twilight tender the air with humans all a-quiver.

And seeing life rich and a millionfold, the great tears started, the deep heart beat
With love of people and longings old, for earth was divine and life was sweet—
And when was I more alive than then, so really living, a pulsing part
Of the life of stars and earth and men, folded in nature's world-warm heart?

WOMEN SCOUT ARMED PEACE.

Representatives of 23 Nations Assembled—Attack White Slave Traffic.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., June 16.—One hundred and sixty delegates from twenty-three nations of the world arrived in Toronto this morning to take part in the Quinquennial World's Congress of the International Women's Councils, which five years ago was held at Geneva, Switzerland. The Countess of Aberdeen, who is President, reached here this afternoon, and was Chairman of the first mass meeting, held at Toronto University this evening before an audience of two thousand. Enthusiasm reached an intense point. During the two weeks' convention nine daily sessions will be occupied with problems relating to the political and social welfare of women and children throughout the world—including woman's suffrage. The white slave traffic was attacked this morning by United States and foreign delegates.

"Thirty thousand foreign girls go into Chicago every year. They have to be replaced often because they cannot stand the terrible life. It has been found that only 20 per cent. of fallen girls are in that position by inclination. Eighty per cent. have been tricked, bought, or threatened." This was one of the statements made by Mrs. Hattie Williams of Chicago. "Many maids applying for positions in some of our best families living on some of our best streets are not safe unless they know absolutely the character of these so-called best people to whom they are going. Many young girls are lured by false advertisements."

Mrs. Fanny Garrison Villard of New York, prominent in women's national council organizations, warned the congress against "the delusion of armed peace," and was supported by other prominent women workers from the United States.

"Armed peace is worse than war," said Mrs. Villard, "because war rouses mankind finally to a hatred of slaughter. We can't make progress in the peace movement until we have a definition of peace. It is the lack of sacredness attached to human life that makes peace work futile." Mrs. May Wright Sewall of Cambridge, Mass., wanted the Commandment "Thou shalt not kill" applied to nations as it is to individuals. Miss Annie B. Eckstein of Boston said the future Armageddon so much talked about was a phantom. It couldn't take place between great nations, for it would mean the economic ruin of all. Miss Eckstein said she had three million American signatures to a petition to the Federal Government to adopt international arbitration in all disputes between powers.

"The great struggle going on to-day for the increase of armaments," said the speaker, "is only a sign of mutual embarrassment before a general peace agreement."

DISTRUSTS THE JAPANESE.

Sir Edward Moss Sees Trouble Brewing for England in the Far East.

Among the passengers who sailed for Liverpool yesterday on the Cunard liner Mauretania was Sir Edward Moss, the Chairman of the Moss & Stoll Empires, London, who is on his way home from a tour around the world with his wife and daughter. In an interview with a Times reporter he said that his impressions of the Far East, gathered from Englishmen living out there, were that the Anglo-Japanese alliance was not the wisest policy for England to have adopted.

"I have admired certain ports of Japan," said Sir Edward, "but I cannot say that I admired the Japanese. Personally I dislike them and infinitely prefer the Chinese. Englishmen in banks, offices, clubs, and naval and military officers that I have met on my tour were without exception all of the same opinion. They told me that in all business transactions Chinamen could be relied upon while the more tricky Jap is as uncertain as the wind.

"Business men in the Far East all seemed to think that there would be trouble out there in the near future, and it is well for England to be prepared for emergencies."

Sir Edward added that he landed in San Francisco and had been very much impressed by the energetic manner in which the people were building up the city after its destruction by the earthquake.

He said that the lighting of Broadway at night was the most wonderful effect in illumination he had ever seen and that it was a show by itself. It was no use putting electric shows on the stage with such a rival show free to the public, he said.

PRIMARY LAW INVALID.

Illinois Supreme Court Decision May Necessitate a Special Session.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 16.—The Supreme Court to-day decided that the primary election law is unconstitutional. This is the third State primary law which has been upset by the highest tribunal in the State.

In political circles it is considered that the decision throwing out the Primary act will necessitate a special session this Fall of the Legislature, and those close to Gov. Deneen believe he will issue a call for it.

Independent voters objected to the present primary law because under it they were obliged to declare fealty to one of the political parties if they desired to vote at the primary. In spite of this provision elections under it demonstrated that voters of one party could aid in the selection of the candidates of an opposite political party. The scandals in some of the Chicago wards at the primary last August called attention to this feature of its working.

Through the action of the Supreme Court in denying the validity of the law the indictments against West Side politicians in Chicago for alleged fraud in the primaries last August will fall, it is said.

FRANCHISE TAX HEARINGS.

Special Term for Actions in Review in Erie July 12.

ALBANY, June 16.—Under authority of a law enacted by the last Legislature designed to bring to early trial actions pending for the review of unpaid special franchise taxes, involving about $41,000,000 in the State, Attorney General O'Malley announced to-day that upon his application the Governor has appointed an extraordinary term of the Supreme Court to convene in Erie County July 12 for the purpose of hearing special franchise matters in the Eighth Judicial District. The new law provides for the trial of these actions before extraordinary terms of the Supreme Court instead of before referees.

The Attorney General said to-day that he had determined to dispose of these proceedings, which are pending in every county of the State, by judicial districts.

Interprets College Man's Composition.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read "E.'s" letter in your issue of to-day. He says he is puzzled as to the disposal of the balance "due" his firm of $6.08 under the circumstance he states. I should suggest that he balance the amount, and notify the other concerns who are in agreement with him to "jack up" the rate of interest "by agreement" that the game should cease, and state the reasons given by the college man, which are cogent and judicious. In reading between the lines it evidently is a case of where the college man's house may have been slow on an account where settlement in thirty days would have entitled the concern to say 3, 4, or 5 per cent. If the college man had settled only one day later "E.'s" firm naturally would cabbage the discount, and claim it was not unjust and indecent because it was done by agreement with other firms.

ANTI-SQUARE STEAL.

New York, June 15, 1909.

A Small Corporation Tax.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Stockholders who think need not worry over the proposed tax on the earnings of corporations from which dividends are to be paid. Suppose $1,000,000 is set aside by a company for dividends. Two per cent. tax on this amount means $20,000. If a company earns dividends, will so small a tax cause any appreciable loss to any one?

SEES DANGER OF FIRE TO NEW LIBRARY

Consulting Engineer Finds That Wood Is Being Used Between the Ceiling and Plaster.

ELECTRIC WIRES CLOSE BY

Points Out the Possibility of Damage from Defective Insulation—Building's Architects Silent on This Criticism.

While freely admitting that the new public library, at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, is fireproof as a whole, a consulting civil and mining engineer of many years' experience expressed his regret to The Times yesterday that wood scantlings apparently of a cheap if not of an inflammable character were being used in the various rooms between the cornices and plaster and the ceiling.

This engineer, on looking through the library building last Sunday afternoon, found to his surprise that a perfect network of scantlings had been constructed in many of the cornices. He found also that while the ceiling proper was of fireproof material, the scantlings were attached thereto, and that the wiring of the building was between the ceiling and the plaster. In his opinion, in a building which is to cost between $7,000,000 and $10,000,000 no such wood should be used, and that through the use of it the contents of these rooms, in many instances priceless manuscripts and books, will be less safe.

In company with a reporter for The Times he again inspected the building yesterday, pointing out what he had observed last Sunday, except that he found, he declared, conditions more regrettable than he had first thought.

Workmen are now engaged in plastering the 300 rooms of the building, giving the interior the appearance of being far more incomplete than it really is. Some of the larger rooms, including the beautiful main reading room, with its pitch of fifty feet, have already been plastered, but in the main the rooms are at that stage where the framework has just been put up awaiting the first coating of plaster. It is the use of wood in this framework, exposed to view now, but soon to be covered up, which this engineer finds objectionable.

Not only did he find his less thorough observations of last Sunday correct, but he became more convinced as his investigation continued that the construction of the interior of the rooms increased the chance for damage to books and manuscripts by fire and water. He insisted that the cheap construction might cause fire, starting from faulty insulation, to spread between the plastering and the ceiling, finding ample material in the wood for burning and ample draught to feed the flames in the very considerable space between the ceiling and the plastering. The engineer contended that it was not necessary to take the chance of the contents of any room being damaged by fire or water, and that it was actually criminal for such a risk to be allowed.

The rich gold and bronze plastering in the main reading room, with handsomely painted panels, is said to have cost $60,000. This room is practically complete, and it is now impossible to see whether there is any woodwork behind the plastering or not; but from the construction of the other rooms the engineer assumed that there was.

In one of the smaller front rooms, where there are some book stacks, he pointed out to the reporter that the casements for the pillars were of thin oak, with hollow spaces within. The book stacks were of iron, but he contended that the presence of this wood in the room increased the danger of fire.

When informed later in the day of the observations of this engineer and the objections raised to the use of wood between the ceiling and plaster, Mr. Carrere of Carrere & Hastings, the architects of the building, who are also supervising its construction, declined to discuss the matter.

MRS. BOWEN SCORES POLICE.

Juvenile President Declares Their Attitude Toward Boys Wrong.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 16.—In an address before the National Conference of Charities and Correction here to-day, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, a prominent society woman of Chicago and President of the Juvenile Protective Association of that city, fired a broadside of criticism at the Police Department of the average American city. She said in part: "The police attitude toward children, especially boys, is all wrong. The children of the immigrant, instead of looking upon the policeman as a friend and regarding him as an enforcer of the law which they should respect, regard him as their natural enemy and try to get even with him by breaking the law and escaping the consequences.

"Recently in Chicago, a policeman arrested a boy who was running, lodged him in a cell, and when he was released the next day, as there was no charge against him, gave him the advice not to try running again. Another one arrested a boy for some trifling offense, saying: 'I will land you in the penitentiary yet, you young scamp; you can't escape me.'"

In conclusion, Mrs. Bowen said: "We hear a great deal about race suicide and the children yet unborn—we are only just beginning to pay attention to the thousands already born. We do not know how many there are, for we have no National birth registration law; we do not know how many die at birth or in childhood because we have no National registration of deaths. We only know that thousands of children battling against heredity and environment, struggling for fresh air, nourishing food, decent housing, put to work in factories and shops, their bodies stunted and their minds warped, are pushing their way up through a mass of obstacles toward manhood and womanhood."

In the absence of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley of the United States Department of Agriculture, at Washington, John S. Fulton of Philadelphia read a paper prepared by Dr. Wiley on "The Food Supplies of Charitable and Semi-Charitable Institutions."

READING ROAD INDICTED

For Allowing Lower Rate Than Schedule—Test Case on Foreign Shipment.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—In the indictment to-day of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway by the Federal Grand Jury for allowing a lower freight rate than that published in the schedule of the Commerce Commission, arises an important question regarding what is to be legally recognized as the original point of shipment of commodities and merchandise imported from foreign ports. The proceedings, which were started by the Government, constitute a test case of the point at issue.

A carload of beet sugar had been imported from Hamburg, Germany, its destination being Alberta, Canada. No Canadian port was acceptable for the delivery of the sugar, and the shipment was sent to the Port of Philadelphia, and was handled by the Reading for part of the way to Alberta.

United States authorities aver that to all intents and purposes of the act the carrying of the sugar by the defendant was an original shipment, the starting point being the local port, and not Hamburg.

Justice Dayton Quits as Bank Trustee.

Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Dayton has resigned as trustee of the Empire City Savings Bank, at 231 West 125th Street. He tendered his resignation and insisted upon its acceptance in consequence of his election to the Supreme Court Bench. In all probability his son, Charles W. Dayton, Jr., counsel for the bank, will be elected in his place. The trustees in accepting Justice Dayton's resignation tendered him a vote of thanks for his services to the bank.

JULIA WARD HOWE DOCTOR OF LETTERS

Brown University Confers Degree Upon Nonagenarian Author and Philanthropist.

MRS. HOWE IS PRESENT

Audience Rises and Band Plays Battle Hymn of the Republic—Gov. Hughes Among Brown Alumni There.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 16.—In the presence of Gov. Charles E. Hughes of New York and a large number of graduates and undergraduates gathered in the old Baptist meeting house for the one hundred and forty-first commencement of Brown University, President Faunce to-day conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters upon Julia Ward Howe, who lately celebrated her ninetieth birthday.

The degree was conferred in these words:

"Julia Ward Howe, Boston, Mass., author, philanthropist, mother, friend of the slave, the prison, and all who suffer, singer of the battle hymn of freedom, allied with Brown University through her distinguished husband, allied with all educators through her faith that it is the last of life for which the first was made."

When President Faunce announced the name, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, every one present arose. Chancellor Arnold B. Chace and Prof. Wilfred Munro assisted Mrs. Howe slowly from her seat. After receiving the diploma and the white insignia of the degree she trembled slightly, and then half raised the diploma in salute, bowing slightly. At that moment the band, stationed in the gallery, struck up the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and, with a smile lighting up her face, Mrs. Howe resumed her place.

At the conclusion of the exercises Mrs. Howe said:

"I feel much honored by this degree. It is doubly precious to me, because my grandfather received his degree of A. B. here. [Here she paused.] I cannot tell when, but it was long before I was born. Then, too, my husband, Dr. Howe, was a graduate. It was a most beautiful occasion, and I was much pleased when the band played the 'Battle Hymn.'"

The university has rarely conferred degrees upon women, and it has been only within recent years that it has been done at all.

Eight other honorary degrees were conferred, among them the following:

Doctor of Science—Charles Value Chapin, '76, professor in Harvard University and Superintendent of Health in Providence.

William Crawford Gorgas, member of the Isthmian Canal Commission and Chief Sanitary Officer of the Canal Zone.

John Brown Francis Herreshoff, '70, New York City, recipient of the Rumford medal, leader in the application of science to the needs of humanity.

Doctor of Law—Frederick Byron Hall, '67, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Connecticut.

One hundred and seventy-five graduates in cap and gown received regular degrees. Orations were made by James Greenan Connolly of Pawtucket; Ivory Littlefield of this city and Chauncey Earle Wheeler of Plainville, Mass.

Charles E. Hughes, Jr., son of the Governor, was to have been one of the orators of the occasion. President W. H. P. Faunce announced, however, that he had been excused because of illness. Mr. Hughes was able to come to the meeting house in company with his mother. Gov. Hughes came to the church with the invited guests and members of the Faculty. Mrs. Howe occupied a seat near the pulpit.

President Faunce at the afternoon meeting in Sayles Hall announced gifts to the university amounting to $28,000, and including $25,000 from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for endowment of Brown Union.

Gov. Pothier of Rhode Island spoke briefly, and Gov. Hughes, who presided, in a few extemporaneous remarks paid a tribute to a most successful ten years of the university under the guidance of President Faunce.

WOODWARD MADE DOCTOR.

St. John's College Honors Hanover Bank President with a Degree.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 16.—At St. John's College to-day James T. Woodward, President of the Hanover National Bank of New York, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the annual commencement marking the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the college. Similar degrees were conferred on Francis Lynde Stetson and William Barclay Parsons, both of New York.

Mr. Woodward, who is a native of this county, has done a great deal for St. John's, having built the handsome library and physical laboratory building, now called Woodward Hall. The conferring of his degree was made the occasion of an unusual ovation. The certificate was presented by Justice Harlan of the Supreme Court of the United States. When the presentation had been made the cadet battalion, which is indebted to Mr. Woodward for a new athletic field, expressed its approval by a rousing cheer.

FORDHAM'S GRADUATES.

64th Annual Commencement Celebrated—LL. D. for Gen. Edwards.

The sixty-fourth annual commencement of Fordham College was held in the University Hall yesterday afternoon. The Right Rev. Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, '67, Vicar General of the archdiocese, presided. An address to the graduates was made by Conde B. Pallen, LL. D., who argued for a liberal system of education as opposed to electivism.

The President of the university, the Rev. Daniel J. Quinn, conferred the degrees. The honorary degree of LL. D. was conferred upon Brig. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, U. S. A.; Joseph I. Kelly, LL. B., of Illinois; Dr. Willis G. McDonald of New York and Dr. Charles A. Wingerter of West Virginia.

The degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred upon J. S. Baldwin, J. W. Barrett, G. W. Black, S. A. Poggan, J. W. Clancy, Francis Fegan, W. A. Jackson, W. J. McKeown, P. G. McLoughlin, J. V. Middleton, and J. F. Reherman of New York; L. F. Fitzpatrick of Massachusetts, J. R. O'Reilly of Pennsylvania, and E. H. Conway of Canada. The degree of Bachelor of Science was conferred upon M. Gargan of New York.

For attaining the highest percentage in the year's work and examinations John W. Clancy received the class honors. The special prizes were awarded as follows: The Hughes Medal for Mental Philosophy, J. R. O'Reilly, '09; the Jouin Medal for Evidences of Religion, Francis Spellman, '11, of Massachusetts; the gold medal for the best biographical essay upon "Charles, Count de Montalembert," J. V. Middleton, '09; the gold medal for the best debater, E. H. Conway, '09; the Jouin Medal for Ethics, W. J. McKeown, '06; the Mooney Medal for Church History, Francis Schiavone, '10, of New York; the Alumni Medal for the best oration, V. H. Isaacs, '11, of Jamaica; a prize of $50 for the best essay on "Tennyson, the Lyric Poet," J. V. McKee, '11, of New York.

A purse of $25, presented by Herman Ridder for proficiency in German in the freshman class went to Luke J. Healy of New York.

DICKINSON CORNELL TRUSTEE

President of Carnegie Trust Co. Elected—Women Candidates Defeated.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 16.—Charles Courter Dickinson, of New York City, president of the Carnegie Trust Company, was elected an alumnus trustee of Cornell University to-day. The result of the election, which has been in progress for several months, was announced at a meeting of the Cornell Associate Alumni. Willard Behan of Cleveland, Ohio, was also elected. Three women graduates were defeated. They were Dr. Emily Dunning Barringer of Ithaca, Mrs. Mary Rogers Miller of Elizabeth, N. J., and Miss Ethel Stebbins of New York.

Mr. Dickinson received 4,111 out of 5,029 votes. He is a graduate of Cornell B. S. 1892, and LL. B., 1894. Mr. Behan was graduated with the class of 1878 and is chief engineer of the Lake Shore Railroad Company.

The Associate Alumni decided to widen the scope of the organization by including all matriculates of the university. They also decided to turn over $7,000 in the treasury to the new Cornellian Council, which has just been organized. The money is to go toward an alumni fund.

To-day was Alumni Day, and the classes of 1874, 1879, 1884, 1885, 1889, 1894, 1899, 1904 and 1906 held regular reunions. The annual alumni parade to Percy Field was headed by the members of the class of 1904, dressed as dervishes and dragging a wooden camel. The alumni trimmed the 'Varsity baseball team by the score of 5 to 4 in an exciting eleven inning game. Umstad and Youngs were the batteries for the Alumni, while Goodwillie and Williams played for the 'Varsity. The old players included Judge Harry Taylor, Maurice Whinery, Frank Robertson, Jimmie Braman, Sill Preston, Tar Young and others.

At the meeting of the Cornellian Council, Ira A. Place, '81, fourth Vice President and general counsel of the New York Central Railroad Company, was elected President. George W. Bacon, '92, of New York, was chosen Vice President and the Executive Committee is composed of Dr. H. D. Schenck, '82, Frank C. Affeld, '97, and E. L. Stevens, '99, all of New York City.

U. P. GRADUATES 600.

Dr. Lindsay of Columbia Gets LL. D. from Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—More than 600 graduates in all departments of the University of Pennsylvania received their degrees to-day at the one hundred and fifty-third commencement exercises, which were held at the Academy of Music. Josiah H. Penniman, the retiring Dean of the college department, was the orator of the occasion.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Prof. Samuel McCune Lindsay of Columbia University and Dr. Charles B. Penrose of Philadelphia. The Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, rector of old St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, received the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology, and John Thomson, head of the Free Library, Philadelphia, received the degree of Master of Arts.

CHEER CARNEGIE'S MESSAGE.

Welcomes Graduates of Carnegie Technical Schools Into "World of Labor."

PITTSBURG, June 16.—Formal commencement exercises of the graduating classes of the Carnegie Technical Schools began to-day. Richard C. MacLaurin, President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was the principal speaker. Cheers from the student body greeted a cable from Andrew Carnegie, founder of the schools, which read:

"Clachmore, Scotland.

"Welcome, graduates, into the great world of labor. Success attend you, as it must, if you play your part well.

"ANDREW CARNEGIE."

MARRIED IN OPEN AIR.

Miss Margaret Beaman of This City Weds Seattle Banker.

CORNISH, N. H., June 16.—John Erikson, a banker of Seattle, Washington, and Miss Margaret Beaman, daughter of Mrs. Hettie Evarts Beaman of New York, were married in the open air at Blow-Me-Down, the Beaman Summer home here, to-day. The Rev. Prescott Evarts, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Cambridge, Mass., an uncle of the bride, officiated.

Miss Beaman is a granddaughter of the late former United States Senator William Maxwell Evarts of New York.

MISS CHARLINE DALY A BRIDE.

Young Girl Graduate of Briarcliff Weds William Raymond Barnett.

William Raymond Barnett and Miss Charline Daly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Daly, were married at noon yesterday in the Ormonde, Broadway and Seventieth Street. The Rev. Dr. A. A. Evans officiated.

The bride wore white satin and point lace. She carried lilies of the valley and wore a pendant of diamonds and opals, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Lillian Sleicher of Troy, N. Y., the bride's attendant, wore white satin over green with a large hat of white tulle. She carried a bouquet of white and green flowers to correspond with the Briarcliff graduate colors, from which college Miss Daly has just been graduated. There were two little ribbon girls, the Misses Madeleine Dubuch and Madeleine Tompkins, who wore white and green dresses.

Benjamin Hammmond was best man. There were no ushers. A breakfast followed.

TOWNSEND—HORE.

The marriage of John Townsend, a son of Charles W. Townsend, and Miss Ethel Hore, daughter of the late Archibald Hore, took place yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street, the Rev. Dr. D. Parker Morgan, former rector of the church, officiating.

The bride's attendants were the Misses Eugenia B. Townsend and Amy Hore. Charles S. Kremer was best man, and the ushers were Howell B. Townsend and Julian Wilson Lyon.

ALLIBONE—MARTIN.

Joseph Hill Allibone of Syracuse and Miss Elizabeth Albro Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin, Jr., were married yesterday afternoon at the Wallace. The Rev. G. A. Oldham officiated.

The maid of honor was Miss Helen Houghton, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Dorothy Holden, Marjory Holden, Marjory Booth, Dorothy Miller, and Madeline Newman. A. D. Allibone was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Dutton, Stevens, Tompson, Pendle, and Stanfield of Syracuse.

Shortly after the reception the couple left on their honeymoon, to be away until September, when they will make their home in New York.

TRUXTON—CAMPBELL.

Joseph Davis Truxton of Essex Falls, N. J., and Miss Carolyn Beers Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Campbell, were married yesterday evening at 8 o'clock in the assembly room of Kingsley School, of which the bride's father is the head master.

Miss Helen A. Campbell, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the best man was Joseph B. Waples, Jr., of Georgetown, Del. Miss Campbell was given in marriage by her father. The Rev. Alfred K. Bates officiated.

The bridegroom is the Assistant Principal of Kingsley School, and was graduated from Delaware College in the Class of '04.

BACON—TAGGART.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Miss Emily Elizabeth Taggart and Dr. Sankey Bacon, U. S. N., were married this evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh T. Taggart, in this city. Mgr. James F. Mackin of St. Paul's Church, officiated. Richard Taggart was best man, and Miss Isabel Taggart maid of honor. Dr. and Mrs. Bacon will make a tour of the West prior to Dr. Bacon's joining his ship at Mare Island, Cal.

HAWKINS—WRIGHT.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., June 16.—Miss Margaret Foster Wright, a daughter of Major J. Montgomery Wright of Washington D. C., was married this afternoon to William Waller Hawkins of San Francisco. The bridegroom was formerly connected with The Louisville Courier-Journal. The bride's father is a United States Supreme Court marshal.

MISS D'ACOSTA TO WED.

Sister of Mrs. Philip Lydig to be A. Robeson Sargent's Bride.

Mrs. Ricardo d'Acosta has announced the engagement of her third daughter, Miss Maria d'Acosta, to A. Robeson Sargent, a son of Prof. and Mrs. Charles S. Sargent of Holm Lea, Brookline, Mass.

Miss d'Acosta is one of a large family of girls, all noted for their good looks, her two married sisters being Mrs. Philip Lydig and Mrs. Oren Root. Her two younger sisters, not yet out, are the Misses Angela and Mercedes d'Acosta. Ricardo d'Acosta is her brother.

Mr. Sargent is an architect, and had charge of the architectural work of the garden fête for the benefit of Hope Farm on the Lenox Library Field. He is a brother of Mrs. Nathaniel Bowditch Potter of 48 West Fifty-first Street, with whom he now makes his home. He is in business in this city. He is a Harvard graduate, Class of 1900, and is a member of the Somerset, Tennis and Racquet, Country, and other clubs.

Miss d'Acosta is booked to sail on Saturday with her mother and sisters for Europe, and the wedding will probably take place in the Autumn.

TO REMODEL ASTOR HOMES.

The Two Fifth Avenue Residences to be Turned Into One.

Carrere & Hastings, as architects for John Jacob Astor, to show what changes the latter proposes to make in the city residence of the late Mrs. Astor, at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street, filed with Building Supt. Murphy yesterday copies of the drawings of the late Richard M. Hunt, who designed the building, marked with the alterations which are to convert it into a single dwelling and which will chiefly have to do with remodeling the first and second stories.

As originally arranged the house was really two dwellings, of which Mrs. Astor was the occupant of the south one and Col. Astor of the north one. As revised by Carrere & Hastings the drawings show that the dining room used by Mrs. Astor is to be made over into a library, and the salons in Col. Astor's residence remodeled, one into a drawing room and the other into a morning room.

The drawing room will be finished with a large ornamental window of bronze and glass extending the entire width of the north section of the building. The new dining room will be at the northeast end of the house, being the one that Col. Astor used, and is to be finished in Vermont marble.

The old central stair hall, forty feet square, and the reception hall opening upon the picture gallery, which is used as a ballroom also, are to be rebuilt with a new vaulted ceiling of decorated glass and bronze, the new halls containing a court with a fountain in the centre with a colonnade of twelve columns at one end and a loggia leading to the picture gallery. The walls of this corridor and court are to be frescoed by William Finn, the mural painter.

The old central staircase is to be removed to the southeast corner of the new reception hall, and the old double entrance doors are to be made over to conform to the single dwelling reconstruction. The redecorations will be in the style of the Louis XVI. period, finished in white and gold.

The architects estimate the cost of the alterations at $125,000, exclusive of the decorations.

Social Notes.

The marriage of Miss Julia Romaine, daughter of Benjamin F. Romaine, to the Rev. John Van Schaick, Jr., rector of the Church of Our Father, Washington, D. C., will take place at Sea Bright, N. J., in the Autumn. On account of the recent death of the bride's mother the wedding will be small.

CLERK OF COMMONS BARS RUIZ INQUIRY

Decides That Coroners Are Not Responsible to the Home Secretary.

QUESTION IS REFRAMED

Curran Will Persist in Effort to Ventilate the Matter, but Wonders Whether He Is Getting Fair Play.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—An unexpected obstacle has been encountered in bringing the question regarding the suppression of the news of the inquest on the suicide of Mrs. Ruiz, friend of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, before the House of Commons. It almost seems as if some powerful occult influence was still at work to frustrate the desire of those who think that in the interest of the public the whole affair should be thoroughly ventilated.

Pete Curran's query, addressed to the Home Secretary, was rejected by the Chief Clerk of the House of Commons on the ground that it was improperly framed, as, according to him, the Coroner is a quasi-judicial officer on a footing similar to that of a Judge of the King's Bench, and the Home Secretary has no jurisdiction over him. The Chief Clerk at the table, as the servant of the House of Commons who gave this opinion is called, is a barrister appointed for his supposed profound knowledge of the law.

The members wishing that an inquiry be put were greatly taken aback by this check, and expressed much surprise at its being held up.

"Is it possible," asked Mr. Curran, "that the Coroner is an officer over whom no control whatever can be exercised?"

The Chief Clerk of the House suggested that if bringing the matter before that body was insisted upon, the question be framed with reference to possible new legislation requiring that Coroner's proceedings hereafter be public.

"According to the Chief Clerk's interpretation of existing law," said Mr. Curran, "it is discretionary with the Coroner to hold inquests behind closed doors and prevent any word about them from reaching the ears or eyes of the public."

It remains to be seen whether this view will be sustained in Parliament itself, for it is not at all likely that the movement for an investigation of the Ruiz case will be allowed to sleep. It certainly conflicts with the opinion as to inquests until now very widely entertained.

Mr. Curran was not aware until he saw to-day's Parliamentary order of business that the question he had prepared was not included with those printed. Later he wrote a new question in conformity with the suggestion of the Chief Clerk, couched substantially as follows: "Whether the Home Secretary is prepared to consider the desirability of introducing legislation which will require Coroners to notify the press and public when inquests are to take place, and to permit the proceedings at inquests to be published."

This he handed to the clerk quite early, but nevertheless it was placed eightieth on the list of questions to be put to-morrow. Mr. Curran is very doubtful whether it will be reached to-morrow, but is determined to exercise his privilege of renewing it each day until it is reached. He is not entirely sure he has received fair play thus far in his efforts to bring the matter forward in Parliament.

A rumor circulated for the last day or two that a new inquest might be ordered is apparently without any real foundation. The essential facts of the death and its cause having been clearly established, the "crowner's quest" law is fully satisfied.

Arthur Hammerstein Returning.

Arthur Hammerstein will arrive home this morning on the White Star liner Adriatic, bringing a contract by which he sets great store. It calls for the appearance in August at the Hammerstein Roof Garden of Consul Peter, who is described as "the most phenomenally educated monkey in the world." Peter is now at the Palace Theatre, London.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Contracts were entered into yesterday between Klaw & Erlanger and Joseph Weber whereby they are jointly to operate Weber's Theatre for five years, beginning on Aug. 1.

Robert Hilliard and his wife will sail for Europe on Saturday morning on the Baltic, to spend the Summer in England, France, and Holland.

Bertha Holly, who recently played the leading role with Fritzi Scheff, has been engaged by Brady & Grismer for the part of the widow in one of the "A Gentleman from Mississippi" companies which goes on tour early in August.

Frank W. Goodale, the boy aeronaut, who has been making daily ascensions in an airship at Palisades Park, and whose machine was destroyed on Tuesday, announces that he expects to resume his ascensions to-day.

Growing Every Day

One reason that will appeal to you for the rapid popularity of ARTHUR GOODRICH'S new novel,

The Lady Without Jewels

is that its people are as real as any of us. The Count of Ardenelles is unforgettable, and so are Donovan-McNeil and Marie Anabelle Smith and old "Eh What," and all the rest. The three different love affairs of the book are as varied as they are charming. The Count says: "The one real woman in the world, 'The Lady Without Jewels,' the woman of simplicity and sweetness."

NANTICOKE IS VENEZUELA'S.

Steamer and the Tug Despatch Released on Official Advices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Advices from Minister Russell at Caracas to the State Department to-day cleared up the mystery that has shrouded the steamer Nanticoke and the seagoing tug Despatch, which were belived to be seeking to sail for Venezuela with rifles and munitions of war for the Castro party.

Investigation by Minister Russell disclosed the fact that two vessels have been purchased by the Venezuelan Government and are intended for service on Lake Maracaibo. It is not made clear in the diplomat's dispatch to just what purposes the vessels are to be put.

On receipt of the information the Treasury Department ordered the withdrawal of the revenue tug Pamlico, which has been engaged in blockading the two vessels, while the special agents of the Department of Justice were also instructed to return to Washington.

NORFOLK, Va., June 16.—Collector of Customs Hughes has issued clearance papers for the steamer Nanticoke and the tug Despatch for Maracaibo, Venezuela, where they are consigned to T. Arriens, said to be a shipbuilder and dry dock owner representing the Gomez Government in Venezuela. They will sail to-morrow.

ELIZABETH HALDEMAN DEAD.

Daughter of Louisville Courier-Journal Owner Succumbs to Appendicitis.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 16.—Elizabeth Haldeman, daughter of W. B. Haldeman of Louisville, partner of Henry Watterson in the proprietorship of The Courier-Journal, died to-day at the Hotel Balzac after an operation for appendicitis.

The Haldemans are on a visit here.

MRS. BENJAMIN MOTT DEAD.

Her Daughter Was Mrs. Guy, Who Was Shot and Killed by Husband.

Mrs. Benjamin B. Mott, widow of one of the early settlers in the Rockaway section of Queens, died at her home in Mott Avenue, Far Rockaway, on Tuesday night. At one time the family owned half of that section.

Mr. Mott gave to the city the site for the Far Rockaway railroad depot, the Village Hall, and the site for the public school. Mrs. Mott leaves an estate valued at about $350,000. She leaves no children.

Her daughter was the wife of Dr. Samuel Guy, who shot and killed her about three years ago. Dr. Guy is now in Sing Sing for the crime.

Mrs. Mott left a will, it is said, but the disposition of her property has not yet been divulged.

COL. WILLIAM F. FOX DEAD.

ALBANY, June 16.—Col. William F. Fox, State Superintendent of Forests, died at his home in this city to-day after an illness of several months. Col. Fox had been connected with State forestry work since 1885, and had traveled extensively in Europe noting forest conditions.

Col. Fox was born at Ballston Spa, Jan. 11, 1840, and was graduated from Union College in 1860. He served in the civil war as Captain, Major, and Lieutenant Colonel of the 107th New York Volunteers. He was the author of several books relating to the civil war and to forestry, and was a contributor to magazines and technical publications.

He is survived by a widow and one son, Dr. Charles S. Fox of Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Penn.

Funeral of Mrs. Mary Morris.

Funeral services over Mrs. Mary Morris, wife of Dr. Louis Morris, surgeon at the naval station at Newport, and daughter of the late Thomas Murphy, Collector of the Port of this city, who died on April 24 while at Cavite, Philippine Islands, with her husband, were held yesterday at St. Leo's Roman Catholic Church, on East Twenty-eighth Street, the Rev. Father Ducey officiating. Mrs. Morris and her husband left for Cavite last September. She was unable to stand the rigors of the climate. A large number of friends and relatives of Mrs. Morris attended the funeral services. The interment was made in the crypt of St. Ann's Church, Morrisania. Mrs. Morris, who was Miss Mary Gibbs Murphy, married Dr. Morris three years ago. She was the former Port Collector's youngest daughter.

Obituary Notes.

ALFRED M. BURTON, once a well known race track bookmaker, died suddenly Tuesday at a sanitarium in Nashville, Tenn., of apoplexy. He was 67 years old. In the later eighties "Tennessee" Burton was a familiar figure on the race tracks about New York.

JOHN R. HAMILTON, a former Mayor of Princeton, N. J., died on Tuesday at his home, 371 West 120th Street. He was a native of Trenton, N. J., and will be buried there. He leaves a widow, a daughter, and four sons.

JAMES H. DOWNS, organist of St. Augustine's Church in Brooklyn, died on Tuesday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Downs, at Albany. He was 39 years of age, and was a Director of the Brooklyn Choral Art Society and a Director of Music in the Brooklyn public schools. He will be buried to-morrow.

RUDOLPH MUNZ, Secretary of the Newark Investment Association, died in Newark, N. J., on Monday night of heart disease just as he had finished reading the minutes of the meeting. He was 59 years old. Mr. Munz was born in Germany, and went to Newark in 1880, where he became one of the organizers of the Newark Investment Company. At the time of his death he was a member of many prominent German-American organizations in New Jersey. A widow, a son, and three daughters survive him.

FRANCIS DANA WAITE, an old time whaler and steamboat man, is dead at his home in Whitestone, L. I., aged 97 years. His wife, who is 91 years old, and who nursed him through his illness, was at his bedside when he died. Mr. Waite was born in Lyme, N. H., and following his experience as a whaler in the Arctic seas, he was engaged on Hudson River and Sound steamboats. His wife was Sarah M. James of Cold Spring, L. I. They were married in 1842. Besides the widow he leaves six daughters.

DEWITT CLINTON COWDREY, a resident of Passaic, N. J., for forty years, died on Tuesday night at his home in that city. He was descended from Puritan ancestors, the first of the name coming from England to Massachusetts in 1630. He was born in New York City in 1839, and was graduated from Rutgers Academy, which stood in the old Eighth Ward. He was senior member of the firm of Cowdrey & Franklin for several years, and later was with Catlin & Co. for twenty-five years, retiring in January, 1903.

E. BOOTH HELLBERG, Commissioner of the Salvation Army in Sweden, died in Berlin, Germany, while on a visit to that country. Commissioner Hellberg was a son-in-law of Gen. William Booth, having married the founder's youngest daughter. He had been in command of the Salvation Army work in various countries, including India and Ceylon. Miss Booth will conduct a public memorial service for the dead officer at Cooper Institute, in this city, on Sunday evening.

WILD PITCH LOSES A GAME FOR DOYLE

Naps Win First of Series from Yankees by a Score of 4 to 3, and 9,000 Mourn.

"CY" BATS IN TYING RUN

Tedious Posing by Boxmen Drags Out the Battle—Toppers Lacking in Team Work.

N. Larry Lajoie and eight other green-and-gray-clad ghosts from the Forest City glided into American League Park yesterday afternoon and went through a warlock dance that left the hilltop haunted by a host of vain regrets. Cy Young and Joe Doyle starred themselves in a classic brother act as the Human Statues, their vehicle being a sketch entitled "The Minute Men; or, Sixty Seconds to a Ball." They averaged much more than a minute per pose, one would say, and long before mid-game hoarse cries of "Play ball!" and "Wake up!" burbled from grandstand and bleacheries. A natural result of the opposing stars' sleepy boxwork was that the game not only was robbed of much charm, but was prolonged to an interminable length—an offense concerning which Ban Johnson has warned every team in the league. Two hours and twenty minutes for a nine-inning game may be baseball, but it isn't the pennant brand. Most of the toppers are able and willing to play at championship speed and fandom demands that Pitcher Doyle get into step with the procession. Doyle's stage waits in the box yesterday were absurd. The ywould have been tedious, even if he had won the game. As the locals lost to Cleveland by a score of 4 to 3 after tying in the second and taking the lead in the sixth, it's probable Manager Stallings will have a word or two to say to young Joe in regard to the thinking part the boxman persists in playing.

Not that Doyle's twirling was bad throughout. The Naps got to him for a jog, a double, and a single in the initial inning, which, in conjunction with Bradley's steal, were good for two tallies. He held them hitless, however, in the second and third, allowed them a rap to a round in the fourth, fifth, and sixth, and didn't let down again until the seventh, when Easterly's two-timer, Lord's sacrifice, and Young's own one-bagger enabled the visitors to wipe out New York's lead. But Joseph himself threw away his game in the eighth. He franked Ball, and, following Lajoie's sacrifice, perpetrated a wild pitch that permitted the runner to register from the far turn. Warhop relieved Doyle—also the spectators—for the ninth. He started badly, as he stood for Cy's second single and walked Goode. But the substitute pitcher steadied down quickly, Goode dying on Bradley's force hit and Ball flying to Demmitt. With men on third and first, Warhop worked headily. He passed Larry and caused Hinchman to sky to Keeler.

It was a game in which the Hilltoppers betrayed lack of teaminess and resiliency. They achieved a creditable batting rally when they evened the entries in the second, and they batted brainily to get the advantage in the sixth. Yet, when it came to the grueling finish, they were shy of gruel and only plumped into the soup. Keeler and Kleinow were not at their best with the willow, Cree and Hemphill fell down as pinch hitters, and Knight, with as fast a man as Chase on third in the final, whom any old hit would have brought in with a tying run, sent a sophomoric soar into Stovall's grips on foul ground.

Nine thousand rooters were just honing for a local victory. Fashion was represented dazzlingly in the excellent Tuesday crowd. The ground was fast, the weather ideal, the whole prospect inviting. But the game as well might have been played in Prospect Park for all the snap the toppers threw into it. It was a draggy affair, such as one seldom sees in Farrellville. Even Big Larry couldn't put the real nip in it. 'Twas paprika, not pepper, the Yankees served to the fans—looked red enough, but it wasn't really hot. And with it all there was that wearisome pitching by Doyle and Young, with only one inning of Warhop to enliven things a little. No wonder fandom turned so often to the Giants' scoreboard to find food for enthusiasm. The score:

GIANTS STOP PIRATES IN RUSH FOR PENNANT

Pittsburgs Are Easy Prey After Winning Fourteen Consecutive Games.

MATHEWSON ON THE MOUND

Peerless Pitcher's Appearance Unnerves League Leaders—Two Pirate Boxmen Batted Out of Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 16.—It did not take the New York team very long to-day to stop the winning streak of the Pittsburgs. The home team had won fourteen straight games when they faced New York in the opening game at the park to-day. But with Mathewson in the box New York simply made a show of the pennant chasers, beating them 8 to 2. Strange as it may seem, the Pittsburgs appeared to have a case of stage fright when they saw Mathewson, and they went to pieces badly, allowing New York to score runs almost when they chose. What made matters still worse from a Pittsburg standpoint was the fact that three pitchers were used up in an effort to stop the New York batting streak. Pitchers, however, all looked alike to the New Yorks to-day, as they batted for thirteen safe drives, including a home run, three triples, and a double. Leifield, Phillippe, and Leever were the victims of New York's swatting ability.

Tenney, the first man up at the start of the game, hit for a base, and a moment later stole second and kept on to third when Gibson made a bad throw. This was the beginning, and 12,167 people groaned. Then Herzog hit for a home run. The Giants kept it up in the second inning, when Devlin walked, took second on a sacrifice, and scored on Myers's hit. This settled Leifield, and Leever was sent out to the mound in the third inning.

In the meantime Pittsburg took a run in the second. With two down Wilson and Gibson singled and on Devlin's poor throw Wilson scored. In the third Pittsburg scored one more and appeared to be acquiring the habit. With Barbeau out, Leach and Clarke hit in succession and both advanced on Bridwell's bad throw. Leach scored on Wagner's out at first. This ended the scoring for the day for Pittsburg. In the fourth Bridwell tripled and Myers followed suit, scoring Bridwell.

It was in the fifth that New York made things cinchy looking. O'Hara came first and singled, going along on an out. Bridwell singled and O'Hara scored. Myers once more tripled and Bridwell came home. Mathewson flew to Wagner, but Tenney doubled to centre, scoring Myers. Doyle walked and it was now apparent that Leever wouldn't do and Phillippe was sent in. Herzog singled, scoring Tenney, but Murray went out. This made four runs for the inning, however, and eight for the game. The score:

Special to The New York Times.

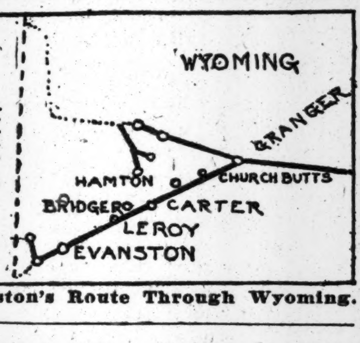
EVANSTON, Wyo., via Wahsatch, Utah, June 16.—My condition was very much improved this morning, and after eating a hearty breakfast I left Spring Valley at 7:20 A. M. to-day.

Through the kindness of the officials of the Union Pacific Railroad arrangements had been made to escort me through the famous Aspen Tunnel, one mile and a quarter in length. I arrived at the eastern end at 8:30 this morning and found Noah E. Johnston, engineer; B. S. Esbenson, roadmaster; Robert R. Wilson, signalman, and John Benson, section foreman. With two workmen leading with torches, under the direction of Mr. Benson, I started through the dark passage and reached the western end at 9:08 A. M. We passed a great many men working in this tunnel laying a bed of cement and concrete of four feet thickness.



Weston's Route Through Wyoming.

After coming out of the tunnel we were greeted by many employes at this point, also Mr. Wilson's family, who extended me an invitation to stop at their home, where I was most hospitably served with eggs and milk, the first refreshing drink I have enjoyed since reaching Wyoming. I arrived at Evanston at 1:45 P. M., where I had dinner and rested three hours. Then I left for Castle Rock at 4:45 P. M., and expect to arrive at 10 P. M. EDWARD PAYSON WESTON.

Cubs Raise Pennant; It Blows Away.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Chicago's second successive world's championship pennant was hoisted to-day after a parade of both teams, headed by a brass band. Just before reaching the top of the high pole, however, the rope pulley broke, and the emblem blew away back of the bleachers in centre field. Ignoring the evil omen, Chicago went in and won the game by bunching four hits in the second inning. Reulbach was hit harder than Rucker, but kept Brooklyn's safeties well scattered. Score:

ALFRED NOBLE WON SUBURBAN TRIAL

Gelding's Victory Put Him Among Horses Prominent in Sheepshead Bay Feature.

FILLIES IN A DEAD HEAT

Evening Song and Huda's Sister Divided Purse for Opening Race at Gravesend Extra Day.

A programme of overnight races, the chief attraction of which was the well-balanced fields, developed an uncommonly interesting afternoon's sport for the crowd of about 3,000 which attended the first extra day's racing at the Gravesend Spring meeting. The contests were close throughout, but the best race and the most interesting result was in the mile and a sixteenth handicap, in which C. L. Harrison's four-year-old gelding Alfred Noble was a winner in such style as to put him among the horses that figure prominently in the Suburban Handicap, the big event of the Sheepshead Bay opening next Thursday.

The excellence of the performance was simply in the manner of the victory, for the time was slow. Alfred Noble, ridden by Butler, was behind the Squire and Question Mark until the race was all but over. The Squire and Question Mark were racing together around the last turn, after The Squire had made all the pace to that point; but Butler hesitated to go up to them, as whichever side he took he would risk being shut off and pocketed, or being carried out. So Alfred Noble made his run after the horses were well in the stretch and coming from far behind got up close on the post to win by a neck from The Squire, with Question Mark stopping fast at the end, third. The value of the race won was not sufficient to penalize the winner, which it was stated positively will be a runner for the Suburban.

In the opening race the first dead heat of the season was the result of a fiercely contested race from the lifting of the barrier to the winning post between H. P. Whitney's Evening Song and Mr. Earle's Huda's Sister.

The summaries:

SHERIDAN'S NEW RECORDS.

New York Earns More Athletic Honors in Games at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, June 16.—Martin J. Sheridan, champion all-around athlete of the world, wearing the insignia of the Irish-American Athletic Club of New York, to-day lowered his own record in the standing hop, skip, and jump by hurling himself 32 feet 6½ inches. Handicapped by having to throw up hill, Sheridan also tossed the discus, free style, 140 feet ½ inch.

Matt McGrath of the New York Athletic Cluband J. J. Flanagan of the I. A. A. C., New York, tied the sixteen-pound hammer throw event, each throwing 167 feet. The contest was stopped by the police, as both contestants threw the weight into a dense crowd several times. No one was injured.

Fifteen thousand persons witnessed the field programme given under the auspices of the A. O. H. of Western Pennsylvania.

YALE AND HARVARD TRIALS.

'Varsity Crews in First Real Test on New London Waters.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 16.—Since Harvard's rowing squad arrived Monday afternoon every one at both the Yale and Harvard training quarters has been waiting patiently to see the 'Varsity eights go over the four-mile course in a time trial under about the same conditions. An opportunity presented itself this evening, when Yale rowed the full four miles up stream, and Harvard followed ten minutes later in the same direction, the Crimson shell, however, being rowed over the upper three miles of the course.

Comparison of watches showed that Yale's eight covered the four miles in 20 minutes and 55 seconds, while Harvard's crew was credited with 16 minutes and 15 seconds for its three miles. Yale's time was given out as official, but Harvard's Captain was non-committal as to the exactness of the Cambridge crew's time. It is, no doubt, about correct, as an outside watch showed the time to be 16 minutes and 13 seconds.

SPEEDWAY FORM REVERSALS.

Cup Leaders Meet with Defeat in Postponed Matinee.

Fast steppers on the Speedway yesterday showed a complete reversal of form, and many of the leaders for the Matinee Cups met with defeat, making the final result more open and uncertain. A stiff wind blew up the drive, operating against fast time, but in spite of this the performances were creditable and many of the finishes exceedingly close. This was particularly the case with Earl B. and Composer in the Class C trot, when the horses were so close as they flashed under the wire in one heat that the judges had considerable difficulty in placing them.

In the Class D pace, Helen Paudit was placed first in two consecutive heats, but James Kennedy, the owner of Billy K., which was placed second, protested. The decision will remain open until the Brush Committee passes on it. Joe Jap was sent against the trotting time 1:06 in Class A, owing to the absence of Dicker, and failed.

Thomas J. Hinds scored Kate Nelson in the Class A A pace, but before reaching the flag the tire of the wheel slipped and the weight of the wagon broke the wheel. The horse started to runaway, but was stopped in time.

SMITH vs. MACKIE
Six Better Than Fours

Tuesday, at the Fox Hills course, in the most remarkable golf match ever played in this country, Alec Smith and Isaac Mackie both made the last eighteen holes in 66 strokes, three below the best previous record. Just think of it! Four 33's for the last round!!

Possibly, the Spalding "Black and White" Golf Ball (used by both players) aided in this record smashing

RAYMOND WILL BE GOOD NOW.

Manager McGraw Sorry He Had to Severely Chastise Eccentric Player.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 16.—Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants and "Bugs" Raymond, the pitcher who mixed it up so bitterly on a sleeper out of Cincinnati last night, met on a more friendly footing this evening. They had a long talk in the lobby of the Colonial, and it was decided that Raymond would go into the game either to-morrow against Pittsburg or on the day following. It has been decided by McGraw that Mathewson, who won his game to-day, will pitch again on Saturday, unless something should happen that would make it necessary to work him in either of the two games intervening. Mathewson was instructed to-night to appear in uniform at the park during each Pittsburg game, for he may be called on at any moment. Speaking of Raymond to-night, McGraw said:

"Raymond will take his turn in the box against Pittsburg just the same as if we had not had our little row on the train last night. He is a good man when he behaves himself, and he has promised to be good hereafter. I have nothing but regret for the incident of last night, but I cannot see how the condition which presented itself could have been solved otherwise. We have a good team and we will continue to win games now that we have started in to hit the ball."

Three Seattle Racing Cars Bunched.

Special to The New York Times.

GRANGER, Wyo., June 16.—In the New York to Seattle auto race the Shawmut car arrived here this evening at 5 o'clock and left at 6:25. The Ford No. 2 arrived at 6 P. M. and left twelve minutes later. Ford No. 1 arrived at 7:35 and left at 7:55 P. M. All three cars expect to make Opal to-night, twenty-five miles. The roads are dry and dusty, and the cars are apparently in good condition. Each crew seems confident of victory. The weather is ideal for the contest in this section of the country.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Daily Consular and Trade Report for to-morrow notes the following trade opportunities. Further information regarding these can be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C.:

PANAMA CANAL SUPPLIES.—Sealed proposals in triplicate will be received at the office of the general purchasing offices of the Isthmian Canal Commission, Washington, until July 9, for furnishing machinery for a central pumping station and three pumping units for hydraulic excavating and sluicing, including pumps, motors, engines, boilers, monitors, pipes, and fittings, &c.

TENDERS FOR POST OFFICE CONSTRUCTION.—An American Consular officer in Latin-America reports that the plan presented by a local architect for the new Post Office in the city in which he is located has been approved by the President of the republic, its cost being estimated at $4,200,000. The Board of Architecture has been instructed to call for tenders for the works, but the Government will undertake to provide only $1,275,000 until Congress has voted the sum required. The board will also have pamphlets printed containing the specifications, conditions, metrical calculations, &c., which will be delivered to applicants at the price of $21.23.

WASTE PRODUCTS OF VARIOUS KINDS.—A New York firm of commission merchants writes that it has inquiries from abroad and would like to get in touch with parties desiring to export skins, fleshings of all kinds, cotton rags, cotton waste, horn tips, and leather.

SEWERS, GRANOLITHIC SIDEWALKS, AND BUILDINGS.—An American Consul, in Canada, has forwarded copies of by-laws to be submitted to the voters of a municipality in his district, which, if carried out, will represent a total outlay of $73,000, and should interest some American contractors. The first project is for the construction of sewers, for which $55,000 is to be expended. The second undertaking includes the extension of granolithic sidewalks at a cost of $15,000, and the expenditure of about $3,000 for buildings on the public park.

STATIONARY GAS, OIL, OR GASOLINE ENGINES.—A report has been received from an American Consul in Western Europe advising that an engineer and shipbuilder in his district has asked for the names of some good American manufacturers of stationary, gas, oil, or gasoline engines. He wishes to enter into relation with houses who have no representative in Europe, as it is impossible to sell motors in that region after they have passed through different agencies.

AMERICAN APPLES FOR INDIA.—A letter has been received at an American Consulate in India, from a local business firm requesting to be placed in communication with fruit growers and exporters in the United States. The firm desires to hear fully as to the best time of shipments from America, and the varieties recommended, so that it can give suggestions for small trial shipments. American apples have been imported from the Pacific Coast, and have given satisfaction in everything but color. Red apples are preferred, and command higher prices. As there are no cold storage plants in that region the fruit should be very carefully selected and packed.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 16.—With few exceptions prices were shaded at the opening in the stock market. Later dealings saw no improvement in the volume of trading, and prices continued irregular for the most part. Most all the coppers were fractionally weak on a further reduction of the selling prices. Amalgamated was the only active copper.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Favorable new crop prospects again dominated yesterday. Cash wheat in St. Louis was off 3c. per bushel and a similar decline occurred in July at Winnipeg. Just previous to the weakest interval considerable buying was induced by a prediction credited to leading bulls that July in Chicago would yet sell at $1.25. There was a renewal of larger crop estimates from Kansas. Liverpool was off ⅛ to ⅝d., while Budapest closed 2c. lower, reflecting better weather in South Russia. Interior receipts were 200,000 bushels. Export business of 3 loads was reported. Old red wheat was still nominal, $1.51 elevator and free on board, afloat. New red, end of August shipment, $1.81¼, free on board, afloat. Old No. 1 Northern closed $1.37 and old No. 2 hard Winter $1.34, nominal, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—July corn broke about a cent a bushel yesterday, followed by a similar drop in September. Advices from the belt indicated good progress with cultivation and a thriving plant. Receipts were light. Exporters bought 4 loads, cash trade otherwise being slow. Liverpool closed ⅛ to ¼d. net lower. New corn in New York was quoted 66¾c. for Winter shipment. Old No. 2 corn was still nominal, 85c. in elevator and 83c. free on board, afloat. Other grades were nominal.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

KATE HAUKAP.—Judge Hand has appointed Rudolph Rothschild receiver in bankruptcy for Kate Haukap, dealer in millinery at 26 West 125th Street.

H. HERRMANN & SON.—Schedules in bankruptcy of H. Herrmann & Son, vest manufacturers at 70 East Eleventh Street, show liabilities of $2,762 and no assets.

H. DE VEER.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on Dec. 8 against H. de Veer, (corporation,) importer of silk yarns and fabrics at 260 West Broadway. The liabilities were $128,498 and the nominal assets $89,437.

HENRY R. GOGAY.—Henry R. Gogay, steward and restaurant manager, living at 305 West Fifty-fifth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $2,705 and assets of $249. The debts are to creditors in this city, Brooklyn, and Coney Island.

MILLIKEN BROTHERS.—In the bankruptcy proceedings against Milliken Brothers, (corporation,) structural iron and steel contractors of 11 Broadway, the time to file an answer to the petition in bankruptcy filed against the corporation on June 10, 1907, was yesterday extended to July 15 by consent of the attorneys for the corporation and petitioning creditors.

JACOB S. HAFT COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Jacob S. Haft Company, dealer in window and plate glass at 2,590 Third Avenue, the Bronx, by the Pittsburg Plate Glass Company, a creditor for $1,000. It was alleged that the company was insolvent. Jacob S. Haft, who has been manager of the company, began business about twenty-five years ago, and incorporated the company in June, 1902, with a capital stock of $10,000.

UNITED CORNICE AND SKYLIGHT WORKS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the United Cornice and Skylight Works, 158 Lewis Street, by these creditors: Smith & Rosenfeld, $253; Fishel Rosenthal, trading as the National Tinsmith and Roofing Supply Company, $285, and Barnet L. Abrahams, $350. It was alleged that the corporation was insolvent, and made preferential payments and transfers of merchandise and accounts of $1,000. The business was started in 1900, and incorporated on April 4, 1907, with a cpaital stock of $6,000.

DAVID COHEN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against David Cohen, wholesale dealer in silks under the style of the Crescent Silk Company at 3 East Seventeenth Street, by Blumenstiel & Blumenstiel, attorneys for Rusch & Co., creditors for $500. It was alleged that he was insolvent, made preferential payments, and transferred all his stock and fixtures to the Morton Silk Weaving Company. The Sheriff has also received an execution against him for $4,300 in favor of J. H. & C. K. Eagle. Mr. Cohen has been in business fourteen years, and a year ago claimed to have a capital of $89,000.

SHARP BREAKS IN WHEAT

Favorable Developments in Grain Markets Subordinated to News of Steel Listing Check—Money Markets Dull.

Overnight news of the check to the negotiations so long under way for the indirect listing of Steel common on the parquet of the Paris Bourse was sufficiently disappointing to the speculative element, whose operations very largely control prices at the moment, to carry still further the reaction under way at the close of business on Thursday. It is difficult to see why so much excitement should have been created by the endeavor of a syndicate to secure listing of the shares of a holding company for Steel common in the particular department of the Bourse from which it is now possible they will be excluded. Dealings in the same shares in the so-called Coulisse, which is only another section of the Paris market, would answer all the practical purposes of the promoters of this enterprise. Of course it would have been an occasion for congratulation if the exclusive Paris Bourse had opened up its innermost recesses to American shares, but it would also have been quite contrary to a long standing policy. So, with the shares dealt in elsewhere in that market, as are Utah Copper and United States Rubber issues, there is really very little reason for disappointment. Perhaps second thoughts along these lines had something to do with the later recovery in prices on the Stock Exchange. At any rate, after considerable irregularity firmness developed and recoveries ensued which brought prices back to levels in most instances above those obtaining on Tuesday night. Another instance of the fashion in which speculative imagination has run riot of late, and, it should be added, without the least encouragement from those in charge of corporate affairs, was to be found in the absurd theories built up about the recent advance in Reading. On the eve of every meeting of the Directors of this property a new and if possible more fantastic story is invented to accompany purely speculative movements in the stock, and each time it is ruthlessly overthrown by the experienced men who really direct the affairs of that company. Such was the case yesterday when rumors of increased dividends and extra distribution were answered by the Reading Directors with the customary declaration. The stock moved violently back and forth on heavy transactions, and finally closed up ⅛. It is unfortunate, but apparently inevitable, that such incidents should mark the solid progress of business toward prosperity. In all the furore over these unessential matters the happenings of real importance during the day were entirely overlooked. Chief among them was the decline of 1 cent a bushel in the price of July wheat and of 2 cents a bushel in the September option. Nothing could be more encouraging than this absolute evidence of steady improvement in the crop situation. Again, reflecting the solidity of the betterment in the steel and iron trade there was the increase of 1 per cent. per annum in the dividend upon Crucible Steel preferred announced during the day.

Conditions in the money market were practically unchanged, although in time money there was a slight falling off in demand, which led to trifling concessions. Abroad the only incident of interest in this respect was the purchase by the Bank of England of nearly $1,000,000 in gold, this constituting of course evidence of the intention of that institution to strengthen its position.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Although there was marked weakness during the forenoon, prices on the stock market took an upward turn in the early afternoon, causing many issues to recover a large part of their earlier losses, while others were forced fractionally above prices prevailing last night. The tone of the market, however, was weak, and slight reactions followed rallies with much frequency. The market closed strong and active.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Prices Reactionary in the Early Trading, but Show Improvement Later.

COPPER STOCKS FEATURE

Bulk of the Day's Business Concentrated in the Metal Issues—Bonds Quieter in Tone.

The reactionary tone which developed in the curb market in the late trading on Tuesday became more pronounced shortly after the opening yesterday, and prices at that time, particularly in the copper issues, showed losses of substantial fractions. The selling pressure lessened as the day progressed and prices gradually recovered until at the close many issues were within small fractions of the previous day's final figures, and in some cases slightly above them. This latter was true of United Copper and Nevada Consolidated, which showed net gains of ¼ each, and Davis-Daly, which was up 1-16. Miami at the lowest point in the early trading had lost ⅝, but its closing price was at a decline of only ¼. Nevada-Utah receded 5-16 to 1⅞ and closed at 2, a net loss of 3-16. Cumberland-Ely fell off 3-16 to 8⅛. Utah Gold-Copper was under particular selling pressure and fell from $1.17 to $1.00, closing at $1.05, with a loss of .17. In the industrial list Standard Oil maintained its strong tone, advancing 1 to 688. American Tobacco lost 1 to 439 on small sales. Atlantic-Gulf and West Indies common rose ¾ to 9¼. Great Western, when issued, changed hands at 20 to 21⅝, with the latter the closing price. A quieter tone was in evidence in the bond issues, and prices were a shade easier.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Support and Short Covering.

Except during panic times rarely does the stock market experience two successive days of violently declining prices without some rather sharp recoveries being experienced. This is due to two reasons. In the first place, unless something is radically wrong with underlying conditions, banking support in various substantial form appears on the second day. Furthermore, a large short interest usually accumulates as prices decline, and on the first show of strength and resistance to further pressure many of the shorts immediately retire from their position. According to brokers on the floor of the Exchange, yesterday proved no exception to the rule. For obvious reasons it would have been unwise to allow prices to go falling yesterday in the same manner in which they went down on Tuesday. A couple of days of that sort of work might begin to jar on the nerves of investors, or at least upon the semi-investing public. Consequently, instead of having things pretty much their own way, the bears, after the first hour, found that there was another side to the story. Hence some of them decided to cash in while profits were still in sight.

Recovery in Steel.

London had an opportunity before our market opened to take advantage of the reports from Paris that the listing of United States Steel common on the Bourse had been confronted with serious, if not insurmountable, obstacles, and a large volume of selling orders in the stock was sent over along with lower quotations from that side. Initial transactions in Steel common here showed a break of more than a point, extending to 1⅝ per cent during the first hour, when the decline was checked by banking support and more reassuring news concerning the progress of the listing negotiations. Before the end of the day it had completely recovered. Intrinsically considered, few brokers would admit that it made such a great amount of difference whether the Steel certificates were officially quoted on the Bourse proper or in the Coulisse Department. The fact that our market assumed to take the alleged hitch so seriously was regarded as another indication of the large amount of buying of stocks which had been going on for purely sentimental reasons.

Stages of Liquidation.

It is always difficult to tell just what effect a break of two to five points in the market, followed by a subsequent partial rally, is going to have on the list, particularly when this comes after a prolonged advance in prices. On the way up weak accounts accumulate in pretty large volume, and the first impulse of speculators who have seen their margins begin to become impaired is to hold tight during the first break, but get out as quickly as they can on the next rally and breathe a sigh of relief. Should the succeeding rally be followed by another decline, as frequently occurs, it is likely to force out more long holdings which had been inadequately protected, and commission houses begin to send out additional margin calls. If they are not promptly responded to it usually means another moderate wave of liquidation. The cleaning out of a top-heavy market is often accomplished in three distinct stages, roughly as outlined above. It has been the contention of many observers that the participants in the recent rise on the Stock Exchange were chiefly those with ample resources to protect their ventures. If this proves to be the case, it was argued by some, that yesterday morning's break marked the culmination of the decline. Others were not willing to accept the premise upon which that deduction was based.

Reading's Action.

Two weeks ago the most intense interest was manifested in the outcome of the Reading Directors' meeting, scheduled for yesterday. At that time many fanciful stories obtained circulation and more or less credence, but since then the delusions under which Wall Street was laboring had been pretty well dissipated. Early in the day Reading fell nearly two points, to 152¾, but as the time for the Directors' meeting approached the price moved up, and half an hour before the market closed, when Wall Street learned that only the regular dividend had been declared, the stock rose to the highest price of the day, reacting slightly at the end of business, when official announcement of a dividend declaration was made. To many the action of the stock signified nothing at all, except that it is likely to continue its own course, irrespective of dividends or anything else.

Absorption of Bonds.

Announcement that the bankers who recently purchased the $25,000,000 new St. Paul bonds had disposed of the entire issue was taken in some circles as more evidence of an exceptionally good market for investment issues. There are, however, three distinct steps in the marketing of a big bond flotation: first, their sale to the syndicate; second, its transferance of them to the retail bond houses, and, finally, the placing of them with the "ultimate consumer," so to speak, represented by the individual investor and investing institutions. The time which elapses between the first and last process is occasionally long and weary. Since the first of the year up to recently the process seems to have been accomplished with considerable alacrity, but some bond dealers are beginning to wonder if before long the "ultimate consumer" will not get his fill of new issues. They admit that with the present low money rates and prospects of their continuance for at least several weeks more the demand from that source ought to keep up for a while longer.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Trading Irregular and Uncertain on the London Exchange.

LONDON, June 16.—Money was plentiful on the market to-day, and the demand was moderate. Discounts were steady.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was irregular and uncertain, and the weakness of Kaffirs and Americans was a feature. The latter were influenced by Wall Street liquidation and the disappointment regarding the listing of United States Steel common on the Paris Bourse. Home rails continued to harden on investment buying, but gilt-edged securities were barely maintained, and copper shares weakened in sympathy with New York.

American securities opened flat at ¼ to ⅜ decline under bear pressure. Later the market reacted, and at noon was steady, with prices ranging from ⅜ below to ⅛ above yesterday's New York closing. This recovery continued until Wall Street sold in the afternoon. Prices relapsed and then recovered, but closed weaker a fraction below the noon level.

Bar silver firm at 24⅛d per ounce.

Money, 1@1¼ per cent. Rate of discount in the open market, for short bills, 1⅞ per cent.; for three months' bills, 1⅞ per cent.

PARIS, June 16.—Trading on the Bourse to-day was affected adversely on reports of the failure of the efforts to list United States Steel common on the Exchange.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 45c ex coupon.

BERLIN, June 16.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was inactive, but prices were firm, except in the case of American securities.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Booth Fisheries reflected some evening up of the part of those who subscribed to the new stock. Swift shares closed three-fourths of a point below last night, but Street's Western Stable Car preferred was really the strong point of the market, and showed an advance of a point, holding ⅞ of this gain. National Biscuit showed a loss over night of ¾, Edison ½, and American Can preferred of 1¾.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

All the $25,000,000 St. Paul debentures purchased last week by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Bank, it was made known yesterday, have been sold.

Robert F. Munro, President of the American Cotton Oil Company, sailed for Europe yesterday on the Mauretania. Mr. Munro goes abroad in the interests of the company.

Large deposits of the stock of the Chicago Great Western, which is being reorganized under the management of J. P. Morgan & Co., have been received, it was stated yesterday, the deposits indicating that the stock of the road is very widely distributed.

Lee, Higginson & Co. have bought $1,650,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the Butte Electric and Power Company, dated June 1, 1901, due June 1, 1951. The Butte Electric and Power Company operations extend over a territory 225 miles in length in a rapidly growing section. During each year since organization net earnings have exceeded twice annual interest charges upon its bonded debt, and for the four months ending April 30, 1909, were nearly three times interest charges.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company

To the holders of Central Trust Company of New York certificates of deposit representing 4½ per cent. notes of The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, issued under the Deposit Agreement dated December 14, 1905, and to the holders of said undeposited notes:

After negotiations extending over a long period, a plan of readjustment of The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company has been prepared, copies of which plan, and the agreement providing for the deposit with the Central Trust Company of New York, the depositary therein named, of the aforesaid outstanding certificates of the Central Trust Company of New York, may be obtained from said depositary, the members of the Committee, or the Secretary of the Committee.

The Committee, believing that it is to the interests of the holders of said notes that said plan be carried out, recommends that there be deposited thereunder, without delay, the outstanding certificates of deposit of the Central Trust Company of New York. Suitable certificates of the Central Trust Company of New York will be issued against the deposit of said outstanding certificates of the Central Trust Company of New York, endorsed in blank for transfer.

As more fully appears from said plan—

(1) The control of The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway system is to be acquired by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, and ample capital is to be provided through securities to be guaranteed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company and otherwise, to pay or secure all claims or liens ranking ahead of the 4½ per cent. notes, for construction and development purposes and for working capital;

(2) The holders of the aforesaid outstanding certificates of deposit of the Central Trust Company of New York will receive for each $1,000 of notes represented thereby $60 in cash and $1,000 of new General Mortgage bonds, secured by a mortgage upon The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton system; the said bonds are to draw interest, represented by coupons, as follows: 4½% dependent upon income until July 1, 1911; 1% fixed and 3½% dependent upon income until July 1, 1914; 3% fixed and 1½% dependent upon income until July 1, 1916; thereafter 4½% fixed;

(3) During the month of July, 1916 (or sooner, in the event of the earlier acquisition by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company of the controlling stock of The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company), the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company will, upon demand of the holders of the General Mortgage bonds—unless said General Mortgage bonds shall have been sooner redeemed and paid—either (a) pay 85 per cent. in cash and accrued interest for said bonds, or (b) issue in exchange therefor a new 4 per cent. coupon bond, secured by said General Mortgage and guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company; the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company to elect whether to make such purchase or such exchange;

(4) The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company may, prior to July 1, 1916, substitute for the General Mortgage bonds above referred to new bonds of a like amount, secured by said General Mortgage, bearing 4 per cent. fixed interest and guaranteed, principal and interest, by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company;

(5) All expenses of the Committee are to be paid, and no charge therefor shall be made against the depositing noteholders; and a nominee of the Committee is to become a member of the Board of Directors of The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company.

For the purpose of enabling the holders of undeposited notes to share in the benefits of said plan, the time for the deposit of said notes with the Central Trust Company of New York, under the agreement of December 14, 1905, has been extended until the close of business on June 22, 1909.

Dated May 29, 1909.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Site Bought for New Factory in the Bronx—Big Tract Sold in Riverdale Section—Justice Gerard's Purchase.

The Vari Lace Manufacturing Company of 225 Fifth Avenue has purchased from Frank S. Hill a plot, 100 by 100, on Bronx Boulevard, Williamsbridge. This property adjoins the corner of 216th Street, which is owned by the company, and upon which it is about to erect a lace factory. The company's plot has frontage of 500 feet on Bronx Boulevard, 200 feet on 216th Street, and 100 feet on Olinville Avenue. W. L. Varian was the broker in the transaction.

Samler Tract at Riverdale Sold.

The Mary Samler tract in the Riverdale section of the Bronx, consisting of about 210 lots, has been sold by Calder & Nassoit for the Samler estate to a syndicate represented by the Berman Realty Company.

The property is opposite Van Cortlandt Park parade grounds, about a mile and a half north of the terminus of the west side Subway, and has a frontage of about 700 feet on Broadway and the old Albany Post Road. It lies between 254th and 256th Streets, and is intersected by Newton, Sylvan, and Valles Avenues.

The new owners, who were doubtless impelled to make the purchase because of the successful auction sale of the Waldo Hutchins property early in the month, contemplate the development of the tract, which contains seventeen and one-half acres, for home-building purposes.

The Samler farm was acquired in 1835 for $100 an acre. At the present sale price, which is reported to be close to $200,000, the rate per acre is about $12,000. Some of the heirs of the original purchasers who were born on the farm are still living in the old homestead.

Justice Gerard the Buyer.

Justice James W. Gerard is the buyer of 581 and 583 Fifth Avenue, near Forty-seventh Street, sold by Mrs. Virginia Dingee through Francis B. Robert and Frederick Winant. Justice Gerard buys for investment, the property having been leased for a long term before he concluded negotiations for the purchase of it. The buildings will be remodeled from plans by John H. Duncan.

The dwellings, 41 and 43 East Sixty-fifth Street, sold recently by F. V. & J. H. Burton, were bought by John M. Bowers of Bowers & Sands, and Benson B. Sloan of Post & Flagg, who have also acquired the adjoining house, No. 45. On the entire plot, 56 by 100, Messrs Bowers & Sloan intend to erect, for their own ocupancy, two English basement dwellings, each 28 by 100.

At Riverside Drive and 181st Street.

The Minoma Realty Company has sold the plot, 100 by 100, at the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 181st Street. This is part of a large plot ocupying the block front on the north side of 181st Street between Riverside Drive and Northern Avenue, acquired by the company last December.

Arnold, Byrne & Baumann have sold for Edward Osserman the five-story apartment house in plot, 50 by 100, on the east side of Wadsworth Avenue, 50 feet south of 174th Street.

Operator Adds to 27th St. Plot.

Henry M. Weill has sold for Ernest Harvier to Mayer S. Auerbach 113 West Twenty-seventh street, a four-story building, on lot 20x100. The same broker recently sold 115 and 117, adjoining, to Mr. Auerbach. The entire plot will probably be improved with a twelve-story mercantile building.

Plans have been filed for enlarging and remodeling the five-story building at 23 West Forty-second street, owned by the Hoffman estate. The improvements will be made for Waunsen & Schakleton as lessees from plans by Thomas W. Lamb.

Big Building Loans Recorded.

The City Real Estate Company has made a building loan of $950,000 to the Six Hundred and Ninety-four Broadway Company, on the property 692 and 694 Broadway and 9 to 13 Lafayette Place, corner of Fourth Street, where a twelve-story loft and store building is to be erected.

Paterno Brothers secured from the City Mortgage Company a building loan of $500,000 on the property at the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 116th Street, running through to Claremont Avenue.

Lower East Side Transaction.

Frank H. Quinby has sold to John M. Talbot 46 Cherry Street, northeast corner of Roosevelt Street, a three-story building on lot 18.5 by 58.3.

Charles B. Van Valen was the broker in the sale of 67 and 69 West 125th Street reported yesterday. The properties 394 Water Street and 100 Roosevelt Street were given in part payment by the buyer, Sarah M. Sandford, of Newark, N. J.

Corner Sold on Greenwich Avenue.

Golde & Cohen have sold the northwest corner of Greenwich Avenue and West Twelfth Street, a six-story flat, with stores, on plot 40 by 62.

John R. & Oscar L Foley have sold for William Gullery 6 to 10 Minetta Street, two and three-story tenements, on plot 66 by 75, and irregular. Mr. Gullery bought the property through the same brokers in March, 1908.

Robert G. Furey has sold for B. F. Kenny to Thomas Hennessy 667 Tenth Avenue, southwest corner of Forty-seventh Street.

The West Side Taxpayers' Association will meet to-morrow evening at 267 West Thirty-fourth Street.

Plans for New Bronx Theatre.

Plans were filed yesterday for the new theatre to be erected by the Acme Theatre Company, of which H. C. Miner is President, on the west side of Brook Avenue, 61 feet south of 156th Street. Architect George Keister estimates the cost at $150,000.

George H. Janss has sold to John Novak the plot, 125 by 100, on the west side of Matilda Street, 200 feet north of 237th Street; also, the plot, 100 by 114, on the north side of 228th Street, 280 feet east of White Plains Road, and the plot, 100 by 100, on the north side of Kossuth Avenue, 41.7 feet east of Fulton Street.

Buyer for South Elberon Corner.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have sold for Max Marx to Samuel H. Mills the plot, with stable, at the southeast corner of Highland and Phillips Avenues, South Elberon, N. J. The property will be improved immediately.

The Frederick W. Avery Company has sold for the Warranty Realty Company to Theresa M. Avery a plot, 50 by 113, at Harbor Heights, Mamaroneck, on the north side of Bryant Circle, 100 feet east of Morgan Street.

Staten Island Acreage in Trade.

The firm of J. B. Ketcham has sold for the Richmond Development Company a tract of fifty acres at Richmond Valley, S. I. In part payment the buyer gives ten acres at Shackford's Head, Eastport, Me.

The same brokers have also sold for George W. Miller a tract of about 500 lots at Singac, N. J. The property will be subdivided and developed by the new owner.

Deal for Brooklyn Dwellings.

Burrill Brothers have sold the three-story dwelling, 479 Second Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, Brooklyn, for John and Mary Wolfe to H. K. MacLoughlin. The new owner will occupy the house in the Fall.

De Selding Brothers have sold for George H. Evans the two-story dwelling, 116 Jefferson Avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I.

SOME FACTS about BALMIERE PARK, in the beautiful residential town of CRANFORD, N. J., where there is to be an AUCTION SALE on SATURDAY, JUNE 26, of the 68 CHOICE RESTRICTED RESIDENTIAL PLOTS of which BALMIERE PARK is composed.

LOCATION: On the Jersey Central Road, 17 miles from New York; 30 trains to CRANFORD, 26 trains from CRANFORD on week days; time 34 to 45 Minutes including ferriage and comfortable seat for everybody every time. BALMIERE PARK is within easy walking distance of the station.

IMPROVEMENTS: Sewers, water, gas, concrete walks, macadam pavements and No Assessments.

THIS OFFERING is one of the most attractive in all particulars that has ever come under our observation.

THE PROPERTY is a natural grove of big trees, situated amid high grade surroundings, on the Rahway River, which in this vicinity is of the kind that affords opportunity for such enjoyment as canoeing and fishing (with real fish), and for unlimited decorative possibilities.

OUR BOOKLET, with maps and illustrations, gives a better idea of the tone and character of CRANFORD as a place of residence for people of discriminating taste than we can afford to convey in these advertisements. Please send for it, and if really interested send to us for railroad tickets and go and see the town and the property for yourselves.

Another Straight Talk
To "Times" Readers on The Suburban Home Question

Let's get right down to business.

We will assume that YOU have made up your mind—that YOU have fully decided that YOU are going to have a HOME—A REAL HOME—which is to say—A SUBURBAN HOME.

YOU have a WIFE—CHILDREN, TOO, perhaps, and A BUSINESS.

ALL MUST BE CONSIDERED, for ALL WILL BE AFFECTED.

From the FAMILY'S STANDPOINT the requirements are: A WELL-LOCATED AND DEVELOPED PROPERTY, PROPER ENVIRONMENTS and SPLENDID EDUCATIONAL AND SHOPPING FACILITIES.

YOUR BUSINESS INTERESTS demand that you locate along some line which affords AMPLE AND FREQUENT TRANSPORTATION SERVICE and within EASY COMMUTING DISTANCE of the city.

CRESTWOOD HEIGHTS MEETS ALL THESE REQUIREMENTS.

This property is about a half hour's ride out of Grand Central on the HARLEM DIVISION of the New York Central.

The HARLEM DIVISION IS THE EXCLUSIVE SUBURBAN SERVICE ROAD, upon which the New York Central is expending millions.

CRESTWOOD HEIGHTS is the "last word" in Suburban Development perfection; it is a HOMELIKE PLACE FOR HOME LOVING PEOPLE—YOU WILL LIKE IT.

During the month of June HOMESEEKERS will be allowed a cash discount of ten per cent.; a FURTHER TEN PER CENT. DISCOUNT will be allowed "This Season" builders, and this company will provide, FREE OF CHARGE, SAND, STONE, AND GRAVEL for building purposes.

Let's get right down to business—YOU take the time—WE furnish the transportation. SEND FOR IT NOW—SEE THE PROPERTY—YOU WILL LIKE IT

BOARDWALK, LONG BEACH

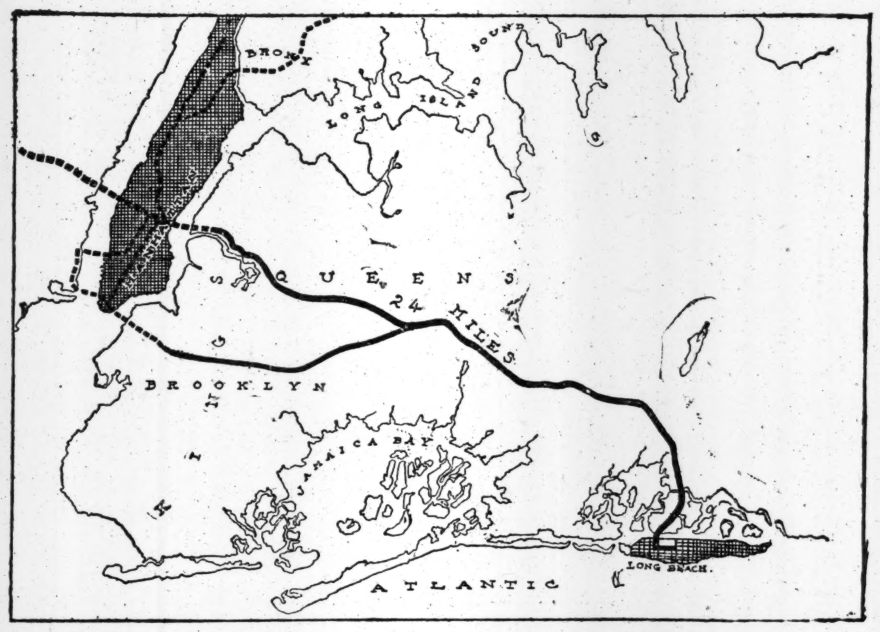
Let Five Million People Contribute to Your Income

You who have always regretted you didn't buy land in Harlem and the Bronx before the subways—

You who have foresight—but who have never profited by it—

You who are looking for the "nest egg" of a snug fortune—

Here at last is your opportunity to get your share of the biggest profit-making realty investment ever known in the history of Real Estate. An investment opportunity that compels the attention and response of every man and woman who wants to make money.



Just as Atlantic City is the logical pleasure resort for Philadelphia's 1,500,000 people, Long Beach represents the future playground of New York's 5,000,000 inhabitants.

Long Beach is the last and final stretch of strand on the Atlantic Seaboard. It represents the cream of seaside properties—the peer of investments.

Riches have come to those who bought lots in the world-famous ocean resorts before they arrived. Atlantic City, Brighton, Nice and Ostend are paying enormous dividends to early investors.

Yet none of these places possessed the marvelous money-making future of

LONG BEACH

For here is a city by the sea, 40 minutes from New York—so advantageously located, so unrivalled in natural attractions, so complete in every facility for enjoyment and recreation, that you'll marvel at its overwhelming superiority.

Over five million dollars' worth of lots have been purchased by investors in two years.

Nowhere in the world can you find seaside attractions so harmoniously combined with the refinements of a high class pleasure resort as at Long Beach.

The surf bathing is incomparable. Think of nine miles of hard, white sandy beach upon which thunders the mighty combers of the Atlantic. Think of the millions of people who will visit Long Beach for its unsurpassed bathing alone. And the millions more who will go there for its other attractions. Its magnificent board-walk, its grand hotels, bathing pavilions and casino, its crowds, gayety and invigorating breath of the sea.

Then think of the profits that will be made by the foresighted investors who seized this opportunity to buy Long Beach lots during the process of development—while prices are at rock bottom.

PALATIAL HOTEL NASSAU
Open Saturday, June 19th

On Saturday next the doors of a wonderful seaside hotel will be thrown wide to the public. June 19th marks the Hotel Nassau's first opening day. And arrangements have been made for a fitting celebration.

All the luxuries of Twentieth Century civilization are to be found here. New York's most famous hostelries have no greater living facilities. Every conceivable human want has been provided for. And the matter of service has been perfected in every detail.

Of the Hotel Nassau's 350 rooms each has direct outside exposure. All have running water. Two hundred have toilet and bath. Hot and cold sea water baths are one of the innovations. Handsome dining rooms, delightful lounging rooms, and Nahan Franko's celebrated orchestra are features that add to the pre-eminence of this superb caravansary.

Now is your opportunity to get your share of this tremendous profit-making opportunity. Now is the time for you to come to Long Beach Estates and get a mental picture of its future. You have never seen a tract handled on such a gigantic scale as at Long Beach.

Let Your Money Grow in This Great American Playground.

Every requirement of a national seaside resort has been fulfilled. Every improvement and convenience of a high-class summer home place has been provided for.

Every street has its wise restrictions. Every lot owner has the protection and co-operation of a thoroughly responsible company.

In all the world there is no other spot where you can buy lots so sure of quick profits as at Long Beach.

Remember—Long Beach is the last desirable and available piece of sea coast on the Empire State Coast.

Come to Long Beach!

You must visit Long Beach to realize its superb location—its unrivalled attractions—its huge money-making certainty. You must see, with your own eyes, this most wonderful of all seaside cities to appreciate its pre-eminence as an investment. Come Saturday if you can. Next Sunday at the latest. Phone or write for literature. And be sure you do it now before you forget.

SUMMER RESORTS.

A Summer Vacation In Delaware and Hudson Territory IS A JOY

The renowned Summer resorts, superb hotels, and unrivalled beauty of the diversified panorama of lake, forest, and mountains, attest the appropriateness of its sub-title, "A Summer Paradise." In through Pullmans or lake steamers the tourist may travel in comfort to Saratoga Springs, Lake George, Lake Champlain, Au Sable Chasm, Lake Placid, and other Adirondack resorts—highest standard of train service; meals on train or steamer; superb and moderate-priced houses throughout this region.

Fishermen can fill their baskets with trout from Lake George, with bass or pickerel from Lake Champlain, and the Adirondack streams are full of brook trout.

The Tercentenary of the discovery of Lake Champlain will be elaborately celebrated in July. Program on request.

FIGHT CENTRAL PLAN TO WIPE OUT STATION

Bronx Property Owners Say They Were Deceived by the Company.

PUT $20,000 IN STATION

Then Bought Real Estate from Syndicate on the Strength of It—Depew's Name Mentioned in Deal.

The apparently simple matter of allowing the New York Central Railroad to close up a station at 183d Street on its Harlem Division has developed into a considerable issue before the Public Service Commission by reason of the emphatic protests of Bronx property holders, who say that they have been deceived by the railroad, and because of the declaration of the Central that public convenience demanded the closing of the station so that better service might be given at points further up the line.

Yesterday the matter came up before the Public Service Commission at a hearing at which the entire commission was present. Hearings had been held previously before Commissioner Eustis, who, at the last one, intimated that he would deny the Central's application.

A good deal of feeling was evidenced by A. S. Lyman, counsel for the New York Central, who demanded a hearing before the entire commission. Representatives of the Northern Improvement Company of the Bronx, also, were considerably stirred up for the reason that this company had purchased considerable property from a real estate syndicate of which Chauncey M. Depew, Chairman of the Board of the New York Central, was a member, on the strength of the construction of the 183d Street station. After this purchase the Northern Improvement Company put up $5,000 toward the station cost and other property holders in the neighborhood put up $15,000.

At the hearing yesterday Mr. Lyman told the commission that he believed the station ought to be closed for the benefit of people living further up the line. Commissioner Maltbie asked whether Mr. Lyman thought it would be a fair proposition also to seek to close the Seventy-second Street station of th Subway so as to give better service at Ninety-sixth Street.

Mr. Lyman retorted that it depended upon the number of people who used the Seventy-second Street station, and went on to say that the Central's traffic from Harlem and the Bronx had steadily decreased since the Subway das opened.

"Is it therefore to be the policy of your road to wipe out the stations in the Bronx?" demanded Commissioner Eustis.

Mr. Lyman could not say.

Then W. W. Niles, representing the Bronx Civic League, took the floor and argued that the poor patronage of the 183d Street station was due to the poor service rendered by the Central.

"As it is," said Mr. Niles, "the people of the Bronx, along the line of the Harlem Road, have been reduced to the use of the Third Avenue elevated road. It has been the practice of the Harlem Road to occupy the central depressions through the Bronx, and yet deny us decent facilities. It is impossible for any one who has studied this situation not to have a feeling that the Central's ultimate policy is to abandon its stations in the Bronx."

"In connection with this talk about closing stations," retorted Mr. Lyman, "it may be well to recall that the last Legislature empowered the New York Central to spend millions on a great central station for the Bronx at 149th Street."

"I fear I will be dead before it is completed," commented Mr. Niles.

"You certainly will if you keep on blocking us in this way," declared Mr. Lyman.

Yesterday's hearing closed up the 183d Street station matter so far as evidence and argument are concerned. Decision was reserved.

OPPOSE NEW PLAYGROUND.

City College, a Convent, and Orphan Asylums Join in Opposition.

The Mayor's Playground Commission met yesterday afternoon at City Hall and considered the question of establishing a playground on vacant lots adjoining the City College. Serious objections to this were presented from the college, the Sacred Heart Convent, the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, and the Protestant Episcopal Home for Orphaned Children. President McGowan of the Aldermen suggested that it was probable that all of the protests were inspired by the City College, and the matter was referred to a special committee.

Supt. of Schools Maxwell appeared to explain why he asked the Board of Aldermen to rescind its resolutions appropriating $105,000 for establishing two vacation schools for girls and opening school yards for Summer playgrounds. He stated that the amount was nowhere near large enough, and that he thought it best to have the entire matter taken up by the commission and then have the Aldermen make their appropriation on the basis of its recommendations.

TURNSTILE PLAN CONDEMNED.

Police Expect Trouble When It Is Tried At the Bridge.

The police and the Public Service Commission are expecting trouble when the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company begins the sale of tickets at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge next week through turnstiles. The erection of the booths for this purpose has already been started, and the service will be ready by the first of next week.

The turnstiles will run entirely across the mezzanine floor of the bridge terminal, on which the entrances to the principal Brooklyn elevated lines are situated, and they will also be constructed at the other approaches. Public Service Commissioners Bassett and McCarroll, both of whom live in Brooklyn and are familiar with the bridge crushes, have condemned the idea, and it is generally believed that serious trouble will follow the installation of the new system.

The road issued a statement yesterday in which it was declared that the turnstile system has been tried out and proved satisfactory, but that its installation at the bridge is more or less of an experiment, to be abandoned if found to be inefficient for handling the crowds.

Mayor Takes Up the Duffy Case Again.

Mayor McClellan was at his office at the City Hall yesterday after a four-day absence, during which time he attended the commencement exercises at Princeton and the Lawrenceville School. He immediately took up the Duffy matter again, examining eleven witnesses. He refused to divulge the nature of their testimony, but it was learned that the majority of those seen by him were called on behalf of the police. It is probable that the Mayor will not render his final decision in the case until the latter part of the week.

HEINZES'S FRIEND INDICTED.

Carlos Warfield and Clerk Geer Accused of Spiriting Copper Books Away.

When the two latest Heinze indictments were handed up before Judge Ray in the United States Circuit Court yesterday it developed that not only F. A. Heinze, his brother, Arthur P. Heinze, and Sanford Robinson, his lawyer, had been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury, but also Carlos Warfield and Calvin O. Geer. Mr. Warfield is an old-time friend of F. A. Heinze, who stood beside him in the long fight in Butte against the Amalgamated Copper Company, and recently came to New York to assist Heinze in his trouble. Geer is a clerk in the office of A. P. Heinze & Co.

All of the defendants were in court when the indictments were handed up. F. A. Heinze was represented by John C. Tomlinson, Jr., A. P. Heinze by ex-Assistant District Attorney William Rand, Jr., and Warfield by John D. Stanchfield. District Attorney Wise announced that he proposed to move these cases for trial next week. The attorneys for the defense, it is understood, will seek a postponement of the trial until next Fall.

The indictments both charge conspiracy to obstruct the administration of justice, and, as has already been made public, are based upon the spiriting away of a large number of the books of the United Copper Company, the mutilation of three of these books, and the departure of Tracy Buckingham, formerly the transfer agent of the United Copper Company, to Canada when he was wanted as a witness before the Federal Grand Jury.

The indictments against A. P. Heinze and Sanford Robinson cover the sending away of Buckingham and charge that the two defendants, in conspiring to get Buckingham out of this jurisdiction, gave him $100 to defray his traveling expenses.

The other indictment, which is against all five men named, relates in general to the Buckingham incident, and then specifically to the removal and mutilation of the 20 books of account, 100 letters, 10 letter-press copy books, 10 minute books, and 100 other documents in two trunks. Carlos Warfield is charged with the removal of ten books of account, fifty letters, five minute books, and fifty other documents in one trunk, and general accusations are made against A. P. Heinze in connection with both of these charges.

F. A. Heinze, A. P. Heinze, and Geer are charged with mutilation of books which the United States Attorney needed by having eighteen and one-half pages torn out of one ledger and forty-four pages out of three books known as Ledger "A," Journal "A," and Cash Book "A." All of the defendants were held in $2,500 bail, which was furnished.

The Federal Grand Jury for the June term of the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court was sworn in yesterday by Judge Holt. This is the Grand Jury which will handle from now on the investigation of the Heinze case, both as to the charges of misapplication of funds of the Mercantile National Bank against F. A. Heinze personally, and the disappearance of the books of the United Copper Company, which has resulted in the indictments of F. A., and A. P. Heinze, as well as Sanford Robinson, one of the Heinze attorneys, and several others.

The Grand Jury sits until October. It probably has a lively Summer ahead of it.

REHEARING ON FRANCHISE.

Service Board Told That South Shore Co. Is an Interborough Annex.

The Public Service Commission, with all of its members present save Chairman Willcox, held a formal rehearing yesterday on the application of the South Shore Traction Company for a franchise through Hoffman Boulevard in the Borough of Queens and over the Queensboro Bridge to Manhattan. The hearing was granted so that the South Shore Road might complete the record on which it proposes to submit the adverse decision of the Public Service Commission upon its franchise as passed by the Board of Estimate to the Appellate Division.

Clarence Lexow, counsel for the South Shore Road, declared that the South Shore Company took the course that it has announced because it did not think it proper to apply for a modification of the franchise passed by the Board of Estimate in accordance with the suggestions of Commissioner Bassett of the Public Service Commission.

"The franchise as granted by the Board of Estimate," said Mr. Lexow, "contained conditions so onerous that two other companies who were bidders along with the South Shore Company, had declined to submit to them."

Commissioner Bassett, who presided, interrupted to ask Mr. Lexow if he had any further evidence to offer, and Mr. Lexow replied that he had not.

Then Rudolf Horak, a Queens Borough citizen, asked to be heard, and said that there was a widespread impression in his borough that the South Shore Company was a "stall" for the Interborough and that he thought the Public Service Commission should be informed of the fact. James J. Hart of Jamaica voiced the same opinion.

Mr. Lexow denied emphatically that the South Shore Company was directly or indirectly connected with the Interborough.

The hearing was thereupon closed. William C. Douglass, of counsel to the Interborough was an interested spectator.

THE WRIGHTS' DAY AT DAYTON.

Aviators' Home Town Ready to Celebrate—Parades, Illumination, Medals.

DAYTON, Ohio, June 16.—Almost everything in Dayton to-morrow will bear some semblance to a flying machine. Vehicles will be decorated to look like aeroplanes, airships will rest on the tops of high buildings as in pose for flight. The occasion will be the opening of a two days' celebration in honor of Wilbur and Orville Wright, a tribute from the brothers' home town.

After a salute of cannon a character representing Jonathan Dayton, founder of the city, dressed in the costume of a century ago, will welcome the aviators home from their triumphs, and trumpeters perched on tall buildings in various sections will formally announce to the world that man-flight is an accomplished fact. Parades of troops through streets spanned by triumphal arches will be followed at night by a fireworks display on the Miami River.

The presentation of medals by the Nation, State, and city will occur Friday. Daytonians are wondering whether the Wrights at the ceremony "will respond" as announced by the printed programme. It is said that on a former occasion Wilbur Wright made this speech:

"Gentlemen: The only bird that talks is a parrot, and he is not a good flier."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Charles Taylor, chief mechanician for the Wright brothers, reached Washington to-day, and the preparations for the final tests of the Wright aeroplane have begun. The aeroplane has been shipped from Dayton, Ohio, in eight boxes, which will be hurried upon their arrival out to Fort Myer. Taylor has everything in readiness to assemble the flier.

RICHMOND, Ind., June 16.—Earlham College to-day in its semi-centennial exercises conferred the degree of Bachelor of Science on Wilbur and Orville Wright, who received their early education here.

BIG ORDER FOR STEEL RAILS.

49,000 Tons for Argentina Placed—General Trade Picking Up.

The United States Steel Products Export Company has secured the order for the 49,000 tons of steel rails for the Argentine railways, and other large orders for steel rails, including the 150,000 tons needed by the Harriman lines, are about to be allotted, The Iron Age says, in its issue of today.

Many inquiries for new railroad equipment are also coming into the market according to The Iron Trade Review, which says:

> Optimism continues to prevail, and there is moderate increase of activity in finishing mills, while pig iron is holding its own. The principal development of the week is the heavy increase of inquiry for cars and improved prospects for heavy buying by the railroads. The Pennsylvania Railroad is in the market for 35,000 cars, and the B. & O. will receive bids on from 8,000 to 10,000 cars. The Harriman lines have received figures on 4,300 freight cars. The American Car and Foundry Company has received a contract for 2,250 freight cars for the Western Pacific. The Chicago & Great Western is in the market for 1,000 cars and the Northern Pacific for 2,000 cars. It is expected that orders for fully 60,000 cars will be placed at an early date.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL GETS GEORGIA ROAD

Harriman Transfers $5,000,000 Central Stock He Took Up in the Panic of 1907.

VOTING AGREEMENT EXPIRES

Carries Control of Steamship Line to New York and Gives Illinois Central an Atlantic Outlet.

Control of the Central of Georgia Railway, which was acquired by E. H. Harriman in 1907, has been formally transferred to the Illinois Central, it was announced yesterday by President J. F. Hanson of the Central of Georgia. The two roads connect at Birmingham, Ala. The acquisition of the Georgia Road by the Illinois Central, which is dominated by E. H. Harriman, has been regarded as a probability ever since it became known in October, 1907, that the $5,000,000 stock of the Central of Georgia had been taken over by Mr. Harriman. This fact came out during the 1907 panic upon the taking up of a loan of about $2,700,000 made by the Trust Company of America on this Central of Georgia stock, which earlier in the year had been bought by Oakleigh Thorne and Marsden J. Perry from the Trustees, who held it for the benefit of the southern railway.

Mr. Harriman was understood to have paid about 60 for the stock, or $3,000,000 for the $5,000,000 par value. The terms upon which the transfer to the Illinois Central has been made were not announced. The taking over of the Central of Georgia by the Illinois Central gives the latter system an outlet to the Atlantic Seaboard at Savannah; the Illinois Central's lines now extending from Chicago to New Orleans and across the Southern States to the seaboard.

It was in June, 1907, that Messrs. Thorne and Perry acquired the Central of Georgia stock, and it was agreed at that time that they should retain voting control of the stock for two years. Upon the expiration of these two years the road has been formally transferred to the Harriman road. When the Southern Railway was reorganized in 1896, the Central of Georgia was not included in the system owing to provisions of the Georgia laws. The stock was held in the interest of the Southern Railway, and when the stock was sold two years ago the proceeds were turned over to the Southern Railway. The stock, while owned by Mr. Harriman, is understood to have been held in the names of William Nelson Cromwell and John W. Castles.

Purchase of the Central of Georgia carries with it control of the Ocean Steamship Company, which operates steamship lines from Savannah to New York and Boston. The Central of Georgia itself operates about 1,900 miles of railway. Litigation is now in progress between the railroad and holders of its income bonds, who claim that the earnings of the company entitle them to larger interest payments than they have received during the last two years.

W. B. SMITH & CO. FAIL.

Consolidated Exchange Firm Bankrupt, Due to Heavy Withdrawals.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against W. B. Smith & Co. of 11 Broadway, a Consolidated Exchange house established in 1878, which maintained half a dozen branches in this city and a number in Connecticut. The creditors who signed the petition were A. Graham, H. Anderson, and H. Frost, members of the Consolidated Exchange, who hold claims aggregating about $1,800 for commissions.

At the office of the firm it was said that customers had for some time been withdrawing balances, being influenced by recent Consolidated Exchange failures, and that this was largely responsible for the embarrassment of the firm. The recent action by the Stock Exchange forbidding Stock Exchange members to execute orders for members of the Consolidated also had unfavorable effect upon the business of the firm, the manager of the head office said. Another thing which added to the firm's diffficulties, this man said, was the recovery of money from the firm in a recent suit brought against the firm by one of its correspondents for margins. This man also said that a manager of one of the firm's branches had caused the firm to lose money, but he would not say in what branch this occurred except that it was one of the out-of-town branches.

The liabilities will be relatively small, it was said, owing to the recent withdrawals of customers' accounts, but at the office of the firm it was said that no estimate could be put upon the liabilities for the present.

The members of the firm are W. B. Smith, who was admitted to the Consolidated April 9, 1879, and W. H. Osborne, who was admitted to the exchange in 1903. The firm also held membership in the Chicago Board of Trade.

The firm besides its main office at 11 Broadway maintained six branch offices in New York City, one in Jersey City, one in Newark, and a number in Connecticut.

TAMMANY AIDS MRS. WALSH.

Assessments Will Give Magistrate's Widow $7,500—City Convention Plans.

The Executive Committee of Tammany Hall, composed of all the district leaders in Manhattan and the Bronx, held a meeting yesterday, at which a committee of three was appointed to arrange with the various boroughs for a basis of representation in the next Democratic City Convention.

The committee also decided to assess each one of the thirty-five Assembly districts in Manhattan and the Bronx $200 for the benefit of the widow and children of the late Magistrate James J. Walsh, who died recently. Magistrate Walsh was the Tammany leader of the Twenty-first Assembly District. The Executive Committee will add $500 to the $7,000 collected from the districts. The resolution was offered by Leader Charles F. Murphy.

ROCKEFELLER SENDS A CHECK

Treasurer Guggenheim Hopes Other Rich Men Will Help Playground Plan.

John D. Rockefeller sent yesterday to S. R. Guggenheim, Treasurer of the Public Schools Athletic League, a check to help the organization. This is the third donation made by Mr. Rockefeller to assist the school children of New York in obtaining opportunities for athletic exercises on public playgrounds. Mr. Guggenheim said yesterday:

"I hope that many more of New York's rich men will assist in giving the school boys and girls of New York a chance to have outdoor athletic exercises under careful guidance. Dr. Crampton recently said that if healthful, joyous and constructive play in the fresh air and sunshine was provided for every boy and girl resident of the crowded sections of New York, tuberculosis would become impossible."

DUPED REVOLUTIONISTS.

Ex-Convict's Excuse for Sending Nicaragua Dross Instead of Arms.

James D. Hallen, formerly a New York lawyer, who was disbarred in 1899, following a conviction of forgery in the first degree, was put on trial again yesterday before Judge Malone in General Sessions for the larceny of $11,000, paid him for cartridges and firearms, which he was supposed to have shipped from this country to Nicaragua for use in a Central American revolution.

Hallen's forgery trial attracted much attention, as he defended himself. James W. Osborne, then an Assistant District Attorney, had charge of the prosecution. Hallen was convicted of having uttered a forged mortgage on property in West End Avenue to secure an indebtedness of $16,500, and was sentenced to eight years and four months in Sing Sing.

After his release Hallen was not heard from until a charge of grand larceny was made against him by Ramon Echazarreta, then Nicaraguan Consul at New Orleans, who told of having received instructions from his Government to purchase 1,000,000 cartridges and 10,000 rifles in this country, to be shipped at once to Nicaragua.

Echazarreta met Hallen on Nov. 26, 1906, in New Orleans, and gave him the contract to furnish the firearms and ship them to Nicaragua. According to the charge Hallen ordered the cartridges from a manufacturer, but instead of shipping them had boxes made in imitation of the regulation cartridge boxes, filled them with copper dross, and then ordered them shipped to Nicaragua.

The prosecution, which is being conducted by Assistant District Attorney Appleton, received a severe blow in the death several months ago of Echazarreta, who was to have been the chief witness. Hallen is being defended by John F. McIntyre.

The first witness called yesterday was Joseph Livingston of 59 Pearl Street, who was born in South America and lived there for a number of years. He testified to being present when the contract between Echazarreta and Hallen was signed.

Mr. McIntyre, in stating his defense, said that he intended to show that Echazarreta, Graham, and a number of others had banded themselves together under the leadership of President Zalaya of Nicaragua for the purpose of uniting the Republics of Cost Rica, Honduras, San Salvador, and Nicaragua under one Government. According to Mr. McIntyre, Hallen was a secret agent of the Republic of Guatemala, working to overthrow this alleged conspiracy. In confiscating the cartridges, he said, Hallen was only serving the cause in which he had enlisted.

Mr. McIntyre announced that Ramon Bengoechea, the Guatemalan Consul General in this city, who had been summoned to appear, had replied that he would stand on his Consular rights and decline to appear. The lawyer said he would test this privilege.

MISS VAN STUDDIFORD ROBBED

Actress Causes Arrest of Colored Girl and Two Men for $3,500 Theft.

Miss Grace Van Studdiford, the actress, who lives in an apartment house at 1.2 Madison Avenue, is bemoaning the loss of $3,500 worth of jewels, an opera cloak and hat, and an automobile outfit. They disappeared from her apartments one day last week after she had had Melissa Brown, the 17-year-old daughter of Edward Brown, the colored janitor, in to do some work for her.

Melissa Brown is now under arrest in Police Headquarters, and with her are two young negroes, Phillip Scroggins of 706 De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn, and Frank Crosby of 235 West 124th Street, but up to last night the police had not recovered Miss Van Studdiford's valuables.

When she found her property gone, Miss Van Studdiford told her brother Edward, and he, learning that the young colored girl was not at home, traced her to the home of a Mrs. Woods, at 51 West 135th Street. He told Detectives Shibles and Doyle, who visited the house and learned, they say, that the girl was known there as the wife of Scroggins. So on Monday last they arrested Scroggins and Crosby, whose addresses they learned in the neighborhood.

According to the police, Scroggins, who, with Crosby, was charged with abduction of the girl, confessed that the girl had taken the valuables, and that she and they had been cutting a wide swath in the colored Tenderloin on the proceeds.

Yesterday the detectives traced the girl through a note which she sent to Mrs. Woods, and arrested her as she was trying to take a train for Saratoga. In her room at Mrs. Woods's home the detectives say they found a pawnticket for an eleven-hundred-dollar diamond ring owned by Miss Van Studdiford.

LEPER SUSPECT MAY COME.

Health Board Doesn't Believe Early Has the Disease and Will Not Bar Him

The question whether or not John Early, the suspected leper, now in Washington, should be allowed to come to this city was thrashed out in the Board of Health yesterday afternoon, the board as a whole sustaining both Health Commissioner Darlington and Sanitary Supt. Bensel that it made absolutely no difference to the Department of Health whether Early came or stayed.

Dr. L. Duncan Bulkley, the leprosy specialist of this city, who is befriending Early, told the board that in spite of what both the Health Commissioner and the Sanitary Superintendent had said, Health Officer Woodward of the District of Columbia, who is holding Early in quarantine, refuses to permit him to come to New York on the ground that the Board of Health might refuse him permission. Dr. Bulkley thought it might be well for the Board of Health to communicate either directly with Dr. Woodward or place a certificate in his own hands to the effect that Early might come into the city. While the board declined to do just this, Dr. Bulkley was informed that if Health Officer Woodward were to apply to the New York board for such a certificate it would be at once issued and forwarded to him.

The impression has gained ground among some of the Health Department experts that Early is not a leper; that Dr. Woodward is not so convinced of it as he was at first, and that his seeming reluctance to have Early leave his jurisdiction is in some way traceable to this.

With the assurance that Dr. Woodward may have the certificate which he says he requires for the asking, Dr. Bulkley will at once renew his efforts to bring Early here for treatment. Dr. Bulkley is convinced that the man is not a leper.

SMALL BLAZE FANNED INTO $150,000 FIRE

Factory Building of Hardman, Peck Piano Company Completely Destroyed.

CLOSE CALL FOR CROKER

Fire Chief Just Escaped Falling Wall—Four Alarms Sent In and Firemen Have a Stubborn Fight.

When fire was first discovered yesterday morning by employes in the four-story brick building occupied by the Hardman, Peck Piano Company, at 628-640 West Forty-ninth Street, it was thought that it could be easily extinguished with a few buckets of water, but before an hour had elapsed four alarms had been sent to the Fire Department, with the result that engine companies came even from 103d Street.

The building was a complete wreck by the time the fire was extinguished, and the loss is estimated at $150,000, fully covered by insurance.

The clouds of dense smoke which arose from the burning building were easily visible from Broadway, and thousands of people crowded down the side streets to Eleventh Avenue to watch the fire. There the smoke from more than twenty fire engines, combined with that of the fire, made the atmosphere so dense that it seemed as if a total eclipse of the sun had occurred.

Three sections of the wall fell at different times, and once Chief Croker was dangerously near being hit. Each time the wall bulged out slightly and the cry of "Look out!" warned the firemen who were playing ten streams of water into the building, and they dodged back each time just in time to escape the falling walls.

In the building on the Forty-ninth Street side were employed 370 men and thirty girls. Shortly before 11 o'clock the first signs of fire were discovered by a score of men employed in the veneering department on the ground floor. They saw smoke coming up from the floor in several places. With buckets of water they tried to reach the blaze, but it was evident soon that nothing could be accomplished that way, so word was telephoned to August Kuhle, Superintendent of the factory, and he turned in an alarm of fire.

The alarm was also sounded through the building, and all the employes had time to get out, and the books of the firm were saved. Before the firemen, under Battalion Chief Devanney, arrived the flames had spread to the second floor, into rooms in which were stored large quantities of oil and varnish. Realizing that the fire was of a nasty character, the Chief sent in second and third alarms together, and later turned in the fourth alarm which brought Chief Croker.

Just east of the structure is the bottling establishment of the Pabst Brewing Company. The firemen played half a dozen streams of water on it and managed to keep this building from catching fire. Thirty horses were taken out of the company's stables.

Running at right angles to the mill of the factory, which was completely destroyed, is a building used for offices and storing purposes, which contained pianos valued at $300,000. This building was also saved.

The only building to which the flames spread was a small wooden stable to the rear of the factory, in which was a horse owned by Daniel McNally. The horse was saved, but the stable was destroyed.

Besides the fire companies which worked at the blaze the fireboats New Yorker, James Duane, and Thomas Willett were at the foot of West Forty-ninth Street, the pier of the Erie Railroad, and with their streams of water did good work in preventing the spread of the flames.

$150,000 Fire in Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., June 16.—The three-story concrete building of the Peninsular Milled Screw Company and the one-story frame structure of the Michigan Stamping Company were destroyed early to-day by a fire of unknown origin. The loss on the Peninsular establishment is estimated at $100,000 and that on the stamping company $50,000.
